AVIATRIX SAFE AFTER LANDING PLANE IN GALE

Mrs. Keith-Miller Says She Was Forced Down in Bahamas.

ARRIVES IN NASSAU AFTER FOUR DAYS

Sends Mother Message Advising Her About Good Fortune.

ALSO CABLES BACKER OF FLIGHT TO HAVANA

Capt. Lancaster Declares Flier Was Picked Up at Sea on Raft.

Nassau, Bahama, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—The lonely island of Andros, largest in the great Bahama bank, saved the life of Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller after she had virtually been given up for dead for four days.

Mrs. Keith-Miller, a widely known Australian air woman, left Havana at 9:11 o'clock Friday morning with the announced intention of going to Miami.

She flew a small and much-used monoplane, which had no radio, bank dial or blind flying instruments and took off in the face of expert advice that the weather was too bad for such a venture.

Was Caught in Gale.

After that nothing was heard until she arrived here today, saying she had been caught in a terrific gale Friday and was forced to land on Andros.

She immediately sent cablegrams to her mother, Mrs. C. S. Beveridge, of New York, and Mrs. John Liggett, jr., of Pittsburgh, advising them of her safety. Mrs. Liggett was one of the sponsors of Mrs. Keith-Miller's Pittsburgh-Havana flight.

Aviation circles are puzzled as to why Mrs. Keith-Miller ended her flight in the Bahamas, which lie much to the east of the normal Havana-Miami course.

Winds Were From East.

The assumption would be that she was blown eastward by winds, but aviators say that the winds of last Friday were blowing strongly from the east and hence would have been more likely to drive her south of Florida and westward over the Gulf of Mexico.

Details of the landing were difficult to obtain. Capt. W. N. Lancaster, former flying partner of Mrs. Keith-Miller, said at Miami he had been advised by the flier's mother that she was forced to use a collapsible rubber raft after landing and that she was picked up by a fishing boat. His opinion was that the slowness of this craft in getting to Nassau presumably accounted for the length of time required to get the story of her safety to the world.

Sylvester Resigns His Police Position

Former Head of District's Force Retires From Du Pont Job.

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Maj. Richard Sylvester, once the head of the police force of the Nation's Capital, has laid aside his badge.

After more than 30 years spent in administrative police work, first in the District of Columbia, then as chief of the protection service of the widely scattered plants of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., Maj. Sylvester announced his retirement today.

He organized the International Association of Chiefs of Police, of which he was president for fifteen years. In his early days he was special Washington correspondent for various newspapers.

Comptroller's Aid Takes New Post

Special Position Created for L. R. Ginn; Retirement Act Forced Move.

Retirement from one position and assumption of the duties or another ranking position in the General Accounting Office was accomplished yesterday by Lurtin R. Ginn in ending his service as Assistant Comptroller General of the United States.

In conformity with an act of Congress, stipulating mandatory retirement of the Comptroller General and the Assistant Comptroller General upon reaching 70 years, Mr. Ginn was forced to drop his duties at that age limit.

Comptroller General McCarl created the position of special counsel to the Comptroller General and named Mr. Ginn as the first appointee to the post.

Reports were in circulation in the General Accounting Office yesterday that the vacated position has been accepted by a prominent "lame duck" member of the House of Representatives to whom it was tendered by President Hoover.

Post's Fund To Buy Toys Is Swelling

A letter from E. P. R. containing $1 for The Post Christmas Toy Fund contains an explanation that because of other charitable work, more of a contribution is impossible. Thanks, E. P. R., and if everyone does as well, the funds will furnish many children with the happiest Christmas they have known.

And M. C. B. writes, "Your plan to buy Christmas toys for children who otherwise would have no toys at Christmas seems to me so much nicer than the wholesale distribution of toys by the worthy charities of the city."

These are samples of the response which is being made to The Post's appeal for funds with which to buy toys for needy children for Christmas. The campaign is only three days old but is well under way with contributions rapidly mounting.

The idea of having the toys given to the children by their parents rather than through a social agency or some stranger seems to have appealed to everyone. It not only makes the children happier and the parents glad because their boys and girls are not being neglected, but also creates in the youngsters a respect

SENATE MAY DEFER WORLD COURT MOVE

Leaders Fear Consideration of Protocol Would Call for Extra Session.

SWANSON FAVORS IDEA

(Associated Press.)

A movement to defer consideration of the world court protocol until a year hence was launched in the Senate yesterday but there was no assurance last night for such an agreement.

Oddly enough, friends of the court were initiating the postponement move to avoid involving it in the snarl over an extra session while some of the most bitter foes were among those insisting that the protocol be given prompt consideration.

It was agreed by both sides that there was little or no likelihood that the protocol could be acted upon at the short session.

Administration leaders including Senator Watson, of Indiana, the party chieftain, are fearful that the court fight will lead to an extra session. They are most anxious for postponement.

Senator Watson conferred yesterday with Chairman Borah of the Foreign Relations Committee about the deferment but no announcement was forthcoming after the parley. Mr. Borah has insisted that if the protocol is to be sent up now by President Hoover it will be acted upon by his committee.

Senator Swanson, of Virginia, the ranking Democrat on the committee and an ardent advocate of American entry into the court, is prepared to move for postponement of consideration by the committee until next December.

Senator Vandenberg, Michigan, a Republican member, likewise believes the protocol should be laid aside until next year.

Minister, Trial Figure, Announces Birth of Son

Dayton, Ky., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—The Rev. Julius A. Velasco, of St. John's Episcopal Church here, a principal in an ecclesiastical trial last spring because he married a woman of the Catholic faith, announced today that a son was born to them last Friday.

After the marriage Mr. Velasco was charged by Bishop H. P. A. Abbott, of the Lexington diocese, with conduct unbecoming a minister and with having broken a pledge to the standing committee. The minister was reprimanded by an ecclesiastical court on the first charge and acquitted on the second.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The Nation's lawmakers masked their conflicting ambitions, hopes and prejudices behind an exchange of amenities yesterday in the social gathering that always constitutes the first day of Congress.

Gossip of enmities and rumors of enmities, of intrigue and of personalities ran strong in the corridors, but to those who crowded the galleries the only thing that happened was that in the Senate six senators were sworn in and in the House thirteen members filling vacancies were administered the oath. Then Senators Watson and Robinson, and Majority Leader Tilson, Representative Hawley and Minority Leader Jack Garner were named to go down to the White House and tell the President that Congress was ready for business.

An added attraction for this year's opening was a Communist demonstration outside the Capitol, but it drew only from the overflow crowd, not in the least detracting, as some may have feared, from the Congress itself.

Colorful Styles Revealed.

What the well-dressed woman and the well-dressed man will wear this winter were colorfully apparent in the galleries of both houses, and there was also evidence of the buyers' strike.

Evidence of the Republican disaster of last November 4 came with the swearing in of three new Democratic senators, Bulkley, of Ohio; McGill, of Kansas, and Ben Williamson, of Kentucky. The only bright spot in this picture for the Republicans was the swearing in of Senator Dan Hastings, who, with Metcalf, of Rhode Island, was the only Republican of the doubtful States to survive the Democratic onslaught.

Right proud his friends and Republican colleagues were of him, too. About 100 Delawarians, if that is what they are called, came down to see him take the oath.

Bulkley Escorted by Fess.

Bulkley was the center of much admiring attention as the man who came out wet in Ohio when everybody said the State was politically dry and won by nearly 200,000. Senator Fess, who says the Republicans would better still be dry, escorted him to the Vice President's dais.

Senators Roscoe McCullough, whom Bulkley defeated, and Robsion, of Kentucky—or rather, former Senators McCullough and Robsion—sat together and eyed the procession ruefully. McCullough proved to be right gracious, though. He did not have to give up his seat until December 15, but he retired to permit Bulkley to take the oath on the opening day, and then came all the way to Washington to be on hand to congratulate him when he did.

Robsion, as he sat there inscrutable, gave no suggestion of the political tragedy that has been his.

SHOTGUNS ISSUED CAPITOL GUARDS AFTER ATTEMPT OF REDS TO STORM CONGRESS IN LEGISLATION PROTEST

Shotguns were issued to Capitol guards last night as a precautionary measure against the threatened return of Communists who were dispersed earlier in the day by tear gas bombs and night sticks after they had attempted to storm the opening session of Congress to protest against "discriminatory legislation."

Capt. Stephen E. Nash, of the Capitol police, ordered the shotguns issued. Twice yesterday, he said, he had received word that Communists would return to "do things." After a consultation with his superiors it was decided to place a heavier guard around the building.

Capt. Nash does not believe there will be any trouble, but he decided to place the extra guard as a precautionary measure.

Tear Gas Bombs Used.

During the noon battle a dozen tear gas bombs were exploded into the throngs that fought hand to hand with about 100 policemen gathered to prevent their entry into the Capitol Building. In the melee, although scores of persons were affected by the fumes from the chemical bombs, none was hurt seriously.

Unknown to the police, two committees of Communists had slipped into the Capitol to interview Speaker Nicholas Longworth and Representative Albert Johnson, chairman of the House committee on immigration.

J. Louis Engdahl, national secretary of the International Labor Defense, said that he had sought to interview Vice President Curtis, but he was in the Senate wing of the Capitol. Vice President Curtis later told a Post reporter that he had heard nothing from the delegation.

Seven Put Under Arrest.

Seven men and women were arrested and four were overcome by the gas bombs during the melee. Those taken into custody will appear in Police Court today. They will be represented by Charles E. Ford.

They are: Helen Roberts, 17 years old, a presser of Baltimore.

Rose Stein, 38 years old, a Russian dressmaker, New York City.

Floreto De Angelo, 35 years old, an Italian cook, of Akron, Ohio.

John Zilic, 41 years old, a Russian blacksmith, of McKeesport, Pa.

Rose Markle, 34 years old, a Russian, of New York City.

Paudelis Kiridin, 35 years old, a Turk, of Chicago.

Julia A. Whitfield, 32 years old, of Youngstown, Ohio.

All are charged with disorderly conduct. Zulic is also charged with assault on Patrolman P. O'Brien. Zulic was treated at Casualty Hospital for a bruised nose received during the scuffle with the officer.

Gas Victims Treated.

Those overcome by tear gas were treated at Emergency Hospital.

They are: Louis Hardous, 35 years old, a Ukrainian, of New York City.

James Paulos, 32 years old, a Greek, of Philadelphia.

Gabriel Ohanesian, 33 years old, Armenian, of New York City.

Mani Starr, 37 years old, a Russian, of New York City.

$9,500,000 FOR CITY FROM U. S. HELD FAIR

Tilson's View Regarded as Assurance That Bill Is Not to Be Delayed.

HOOVER APPROVES SUM

A Federal appropriation of $9,500,000 toward the maintenance and development of the National Capital is a "fair compromise," Representative John Q. Tilson (Republican), of Connecticut, majority leader of the House, said yesterday.

Mr. Tilson's declaration was unquestionably an assurance that the House will not hold up enactment of the bill for next fiscal year in an effort to force the Senate to yield the $500,000 increase it forced in the Federal appropriation at the last session.

It was the fight over the amount of the Federal appropriation toward the cost of operating the Capital which threatened to defeat passage of the District appropriation bill at the last session.

For weeks the bill was held in a deadlock between the House and the Senate. The House conferees, led by Representative Robert Simmons (Republican), of Nebraska, chairman of the House subcommittee on District appropriations, insisted that $9,000,000 was the ultimate to be appropriated for the District out of the Federal Treasury. Senate conferees, lead by Senator Hiram Bingham (Republi-

Senate Lags on Davis As Doak Marks Time

Failure to Seat Secretary Throws Program Into Disorder and Leaves Both Men to Await Pleasure of Upper House.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

When James J. Davis was a little boy his shrewd Welsh father gave him some advice on how to get along in the world.

"Never give up one job until you have your hands firmly on another," the elder Davis warned his son.

That bit of advice, together with a sentimental desire on the part of James J. Davis to pass directly from the office of Secretary of Labor to the office of United States senator from Pennsylvania, yesterday led to a situation that was at once confusing and comic.

It was a situation that found Davis still Secretary of Labor and William N. Doak figuratively all dressed up with no place to go.

Late yesterday, after a series of bewildering developments, including a mock swearing in of Mr. Doak at the Labor Department, President Hoover cleared the situation somewhat by announcing that Mr. Davis' resignation as Secretary had been accepted, effective today.

But where does this leave Mr. Doak? May he take the oath as Secretary after Mr. Davis steps down? The answer is that he certainly may not. He will have to wait now until the Senate has confirmed his nomination, which will go to the Capitol tomorrow.

Until the Senate has acted, there will be no Secretary of Labor, although the office will be administered by Robe Carl White, the Assistant Secretary.

Thus, to sum up, both Mr. Davis and Mr. Doak will now be members of the army of the unemployed until the Senate has voted to give one his seat in the Senate and the other his post in the Labor Department.

The original program, which was wrecked when Chairman Nye, of the Senate campaign funds committee, announced that he wanted Davis to delay taking his Senate seat until the Senate had investigated his expenses in the Pennsylvania senatorial race, was as follows:

Mr. Davis was to quit as Secretary of Labor just before he took his oath of office as senator. Then Mr. Doak, as a recess appointee, was to take the oath as Secretary of Labor.

He could have taken the oath under such an arrangement at 1 minute before 12 o'clock yesterday, and it would have been entirely legal. Once the Senate had convened at 12 o'clock, however, Doak was placed in a position where he had to wait until his nomination was confirmed.

The position of President Hoover was this: He knew of Mr. Davis' desire to live up to that old Welsh custom of not giving up one job until he had his hands firmly on another, and so, when Chairman Nye

FREEDOM OF SEAS ACCORD REPORTED

America and Great Britain Said to Be in Complete Understanding.

ISSUE HITHERTO EVADED

Geneva, Dec. 1 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The United States and British governments are understood to have reached a complete understanding on the long troublesome issue of the freedom of the seas. This information is given to the New York World News Service on high authority.

Whether written agreements have been promulgated as a result of diplomatic conversations between Washington and London can not be ascertained tonight, but it was a rapprochement between the two mightiest naval powers on this question that made possible acceptance by the American delegation at the preparatory disarmament commission of the obligation to "advise as to the situation" in regard to violations of the projected general disarmament treaty.

The second of President Wilson's fourteen points is understood to be the foundation stone of the Anglo-American understanding. This provided for "freedom of navigation upon the seas outside territorial waters alike in peace and war except as seas may be closed in whole or in part by international action for enforcement of international covenants."

High Japanese officials in Geneva tonight admitted that they are informed of Anglo-American negotiations on the freedom of the seas question, but declare that their gov-

Calvin Coolidge Says:

One of the hardest problems the Congress has to meet is the constant pressure of outside influences. The old lobby that was so frequently charged with vicious activity practically has disappeared. But the organized minorities of special interests with agents and publicity bureaus for creating an artificial appearance of public opinion and showering senators and representatives with letters and telegrams has grown to huge proportions. It is a species of supergovernment undertaking to exercise sovereignty without any duly constituted authority or public responsibility. In consequence the Congress is put under duress. Almost all these organizations seek an expenditure of the taxpayer's money.

Every interest has a right to organize and be heard. But the right to congressional action depends on the relation of the request to the welfare of all the people. If the Congress could be let alone, if it could be free to form its own judgment on what it knows are the realities instead of being forced to surrender to the artificial, much time and money could be saved and much better legislation would result. The congressmen are the legal representatives of the people. No other agency can claim exclusive right to speak in the name of the people.

2 Dead, 2 Seriously Hurt In Head-on Car Collision

Baltimore Broker and Fiancee Victims of Unexplained Crash Near Laurel; Mother Badly Injured and Daughter Believed Dying.

A man and his fiancee were killed instantly and a woman and daughter critically injured in a head-on automobile collision on the Washington-Baltimore boulevard, a mile south of Laurel, late yesterday afternoon.

The dead are John M. Braun, 36-year-old broker, of Baltimore, and Miss Eleanor Follmer, 22 years old, also of Baltimore.

The injured women are Mrs. Mabel Harris, 42 years old, and her daughter, Miss Gladys Harris, 23 years old, both of Pittsburgh, Pa.

After receiving first aid from Dr. D. P. Warren, of Laurel, the two women were taken by ambulance to Casualty Hospital. Physicians there said Miss Harris is in a dying condition from a severely fractured skull. Mrs. Harris is suffering from critical internal injuries.

Maryland State police said that the car occupied by Braun and Miss Follmer crashed with the Harris car, in the center of the road. They could not determine the cause of the accident. Both cars were badly damaged.

Braun and Miss Follmer were pronounced dead by Dr. Warren. The terrific impact of the collision threw them forward into the windshield, and their necks were broken.

The engagement of Mr. Braun and

Wets Attack Prohibition From Five Angles in House

Call Issued for Meeting of Opponents of Dry Law Tomorrow as Two National Referenda on Repeal of Eighteenth Amendment Are Proposed.

(Associated Press.)

Confident of more strength in the next Congress, wets attacked prohibition from five legislative angles yesterday as a call was issued for House antiprohibitionists to meet tomorrow.

Two national referenda on the repeal of the eighteenth amendment were proposed along with bills to permit the manufacture and sale of wines and beer. In addition, Representative Woodruff, Republican, Michigan, proposed in a bill that the Federal Government give assistance to States in bringing interstate gangsters and racketeers to justice.

Representative Linthicum, Democrat, Maryland, chairman of the House wet bloc, summoned the executive committee to a conference tomorrow to map out an aggressive plan of action for modification or repeal in both this session and in the new Congress.

Proposing a national referendum on prohibition, Representative McLeod, Republican, Michigan, also offered an amendment to the Constitution to legalize the manufacture of liquor for "use in homes and places of abode" and a constitutional convention.

for more than twelve years and have not taken out citizenship papers.

All of the Communists who had gathered in the city to attend the National Conference for the Protection of the Foreign-Born had gathered on the Capitol Plaza shortly before noon. They were instructed to come in small groups.

Mob Becomes Unit.

At a prearranged signal the mob converged into one group and raised placards reading, "Down With Lynching!" "Down With Registration and Fingerprinting of Immigrants!" "Down With the Capitalist Nations!"

They moved toward the Capitol. When it appeared that the mob could not be deflected by peaceful means, a bombardment of tear gas bombs began.

Capitol police under Capt. Stephen G. Nash, augmented by headquarters men and metropolitan policemen under Inspector William S. Shelby, mingled with the mob, tearing down posters and engaging in its fights with the demonstrators.

Spectators Aid Police.

Spectators, who came to the aid of police, were so zealous in their assistance that the officers had to restrain them from doing violence to the demonstrators.

Several hundred spectators, gathered to view the march, scattered as the bombs were set off. The mob of Communists moved toward the House wing, where other gas bombs were discharged. Picking up the tattered pieces of their placards, the reds then moved toward the House Office Building.

An attempt was made to assemble their leaders as movie cameras ground out the visual story of their demonstration. Several men and women gathered around one agitator, who again moved toward the House wing with two score following in their wake.

As they neared the steps another bomb halted their advance. Spectators began pummeling the reds as they marched toward the Peace Monument.

An attempt was made to circle the Capitol Grounds on the west side but officers stationed there shunted them toward Pennsylvania avenue. Several were beaten by clubs during this maneuver.

The reds gathered at the Botanic Gardens where several speakers tried to harangue the groups. Their addresses were promptly stifled by the police. Traffic near the Peace Monument was tied up as a group tried to gather there.

Guided Down Avenue.

Officers guided them down the south side of Pennsylvania avenue. At Seventh and D streets another demonstration was staged which was broken up by motorcycle policemen. The group then went to the headquarters of the Communist party on Seventh street near O street northwest.

There leaders addressed them and alluded to the policemen as the "Cossacks and gendarmes of capitalistic America."

There were rumors that the mob would parade before the White House. Although this was denied by them additional policemen were placed about the White House.

In the afternoon buses took about 100 of the Communists to Philadelphia and New York.

Engdahl Makes Report.

J. Louis Engdahl, one of the leaders, addressed the group and said he had succeeded in placing in the hands of Representative Johnson and Speaker Nicholas Longworth the demands of the Communists for repeal of discriminatory legislation.

At Speaker Longworth's office it was said that the resolution had been received. Representative Johnson's secretary said she did not know whether any resolutions had been received.

Attempted to See Curtis.

Engdahl led the committee which went to the House wing. Ella R. Bloor, a Communist leader, of Minot, N. Dak., went to the Senate wing in an attempt to see Vice President Curtis, but was unsuccessful.

The demand made in the resolutions were: To reject photographing, fingerprinting, and deportation of foreign born; to reject police supervision of the foreign born; to abolish all restrictions on immigration, and to abolish the exclusion of Chinese, Japanese, and Hindus and Mexicans.

After mingling for two hours with 200 of the Communists in their headquarters a reporter was unable to locate a native-born American. Most of the gathering was of Russians, Ukrainians, Finns, Armenians, Swedes and Poles.

Immigration Ban Introduced.

While the Communists were at their headquarters, Representative Bachmann (Republican), West Virginia, introduced a bill to block all immigration from Russia permanently.

Chairman Fish of the Communists investigating committee announced that he would grant a hearing Friday to Communist leaders. William Z. Foster, Communist candidate for President in 1928; Israel Amter, head of the National Conference for the Protection of the Foreign Born, and Boris A. Skvirsky, head of the Russian Press Bureau, will testify.

HURLEY URGES NEED OF HIGHER ARMY PAY

Secretary of War Mentions This Among Preparedness Warnings.

RATES EFFICIENCY GOOD

(Associated Press.)

The Secretary of War saluted his commanding officer yesterday; reported the Army more efficient than at any time since the World War, and at the same time gave three warnings lest preparedness be impaired.

Secretary Hurley embodied the warnings in his annual report to President Hoover as follows:

Continuance of building up the Air Corps enlisted strength by transfers from other branches, under the mandatory five-year program, means the Army soon will be seriously handicapped.

Increased Army pay is a vital subject requiring proper adjustment, pay being related to morale and morale to efficiency; and

At the present depletion rate, "it will be but a matter of several years when there will be no properly balanced reserve stocks on hand for immediate issue to mobilize man power."

Emphasizes Needs.

"The lack of such war reserve stocks," Mr. Hurley emphasized, "would make prompt and complete military effectiveness impossible in a given situation."

"Except for the slight relief afforded by the pay act of 1922, the pay of the Army has remained practically unchanged since 1908, notwithstanding the cost of living has steadily mounted since that time," he wrote. "The situation confronting the junior officers is particularly to be deplored. A great deal is expected of the regular Army officer. Men who meet these requirements are entitled to adequate compensation."

As for the Air Corps, the Secretary reported normal progress on the five-year program, expected to be completed when due in 1932. Plane deliveries keep abreast of schedule and the corps gains slowly in commissioned strength, despite limitation of the Army's total. This led to the declaration that depletion of other arms must stop "or else our program of national defense must undergo reorganization."

Army Personnel About 131,000.

One June 30, ending the year covered by the report, the Army personnel, exclusive of Philippine scouts, was just under 131,000.

Attributing the military efficiency largely to work of his predecessors, Mr. Hurley especially praised the accomplishments by the man he succeeded—the late James W. Good.

The report reviewed the department's far-flung activities, from supervising the Government-owned inland waterways transportation systems to its functions in the Philippine Islands and Porto Rico.

During the fiscal year Army engineers were working on 330 harbor and waterway projects in all parts of the country, in addition to 50 canals.

The Secretary mentioned the $35,400,000 appropriated for flood control work on the Mississippi this fiscal year. The program includes levee and revetment work on the main river, work on the setback of Bird's Point-New Madrid floodway, and on the Bonnet Carr spillway, as well as dredging for the navigable channel. He promised liberal use of the emergency fund to aid localities above backwater influence which are visited by damaging waters and unable to take care of themselves.

Economic Survey Under Way.

An economic survey for a program of industrial mobilization to be ready in any emergency is being prosecuted.

"A proper plan for industrial mobilization must constantly adjust itself to meet the varying industrial conditions of the country and the everchanging demands of possible military operations," Mr. Hurley continued. "This applies equally to proposals for a selective service law for the mobilization of manpower in an emergency.

"The policy of the Department is to revise constantly all drafts of bills deemed necessary in an emergency and to submit them to congressional committees for informal discussion, review and approval, whenever Congress desires."

The department expects to lay its plans before the congressional commission studying methods for minimizing the profits of war and for distributing its economic burdens equitably.

Production of 17 Crops Shows 6 Per Cent Drop

(Associated Press.)

The composite production of seventeen principal crops was estimated yesterday by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics to be 6 per cent smaller than in 1929 and 5 per cent less than 1919-28 ten-year average.

The supply situation, the bureau said, would seem to justify a price level higher than last year, whereas in fact prices are at the lowest in several years.

CALIFORNIA JUDGES DENY BILLING'S PLEA

Supreme Court Refuses to Recommend Pardon for Alleged Bomber.

DECISION HITS MOONEY

San Francisco, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—For the second time this year the California Supreme Court refused today to recommend a pardon for Warren K. Billings, serving a life sentence for bombing a preparedness parade here in 1916, killing ten persons and injurying 40.

The decision likewise affects Thomas J. Mooney, also serving a life term for the bombing. Mooney, at San Quentin, and Billings, at Folsom, said they were not surprised by the decision.

The court's refusal to recommend a pardon was based on the contention Billings had not made a case or materially altered the status of the case since the previous decision.

The decision was forwarded to Gov. C. C. Young with a letter which said certain sections of the public and press apparently had assumed the hearing which preceded the decision was a new trial with the usual presumption of innocence on the part of the accused.

Held Proof Not Produced.

This, it was pointed out, was not the case. Instead the letter said Billings had been fairly and constitutionally tried and the burden of proof of innocence in his petition for a pardon lay on him and not the State. The court held such proof had not ben produced.

In the decision today Justice William H. Langdon dissented, as he did last July, on the ground Billings is entitled to clemency. He prepared a separate opinion. Two other justices, although concurring, issued separate opinions.

The decision goes to Gov. Young in the form of a recommendation. Under California law a man twice convicted of a felony, as Billings has been, can not appeal direct to the governor for a pardon. He must first obtain approval of the justices of the Supreme Court, acting as an advisory pardon board.

Mooney has a plea for a pardon before the governor who has said he will deal with Mooney's case according to the decision in the Billings case.

Follows Long Hearing.

The decision was based on a long hearing here last summer in which the justices, sitting off bench, went into every angle of the bombing case without hindrances incident to ordinary court procedure.

Edwin Mackenzie and other attorneys for Billings and Mooney, who initiated the hearing asked the justices to consider two things: The allegedly prejudiced testimony of several witnesses and the alibis of the prisoners. It was contended the alibis had been strengthened by time.

Billings said he was too far away to have possibly reached the spot of the explosion in time to place a suitcase. Mooney maintained he and his wife were on the Eilers Building 5 minutes before the bomb exploded, 6,000 feet away, and introduced a photograph showing him and a street clock to prove it.

Both prisoners asserted they were arrested and convicted because they admittedly had been engaged in radical disorders but the real bombers were either German spies or agents of interests seeking to destroy them.

The explosion occurred at Steuart and Market streets as the parade was forming. An old brown leather suitcase containing a time bomb was placed against a building on the northwest corner of the street intersection.

Billings and Mooney have refused to ask for paroles, both contending such a request would be an admission of their guilt and subsequent remorse and a desire to make amends.

Ruth Nichols Sets Plane Speed Mark

17 Hours Used in Flying From New York to California Port.

Burbank, Calif., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Flying faster than any woman has crossed the United States before, and nearly as fast as man has traveled, Miss Ruth Nichols, Rye, N. Y., society woman, landed here today from New York in a flying time of 16 hours, 39½ minutes.

She arrived at the United Airport at 11:57 a. m., making the last 250 miles from Kingman, Ariz., at 161 miles an hour. Her time lowered by 4 hours, 44½ minutes the East-to-West record set recently by Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller, Australian aviator. Miss Nichols' flight was only slightly more than two hours slower than the speed mark Capt. Frank M. Hawks set last August over a similar route.

Work is progressing on the construction of dental clinics for the District school children at the Raymond and the Bell elementary schools, Maj. H. L. Robb, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, announced yesterday. They will be completed within about two weeks.

The clinics were provided for in a bill adopted at the previous session of Congress. Actual construction work costs about $2,200, but the equipment, which will be furnished by the school administration, will be extra.

EFFORTS TO SETTLE SCOTS' STRIKE FAIL

Anxiety Is Felt That Trouble May Extend to South Wales District.

70,000 MINERS IDLE

London, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Negotiations for the settlement of the strike in the Scottish coal fields, where 70,000 of the 90,000 miners have quit work, failed today.

High hopes were based on today's peace negotiations and news of their failure caused keen disappointment. Some anxiety was expressed that the trouble might extend to the South Wales district, where a shutdown on a gigantic scale was so narrowly averted over the week-end. Thus far such abstentions from work as have occurred outside Scotland have been on a small scale. One that has created much concern is the refusal of half of the 1,500 miners employed at a colliery at Trehafod, South Wales, to work owing to allegedly Communist agitation.

Public opinion in general remains entirely tranquil, although it is felt failure to reach an early settlement of the Scottish strike might have disastrous consequences, not only to the Scottish coal fields but to the whole national situation.

For this reason the proceedings of the Scottish miners' delegates conference at Glasgow tomorrow will be watched with the closest attention.

After collapse of today's negotiations at Glasgow, James Doonan, president of the National Union of Scottish Mine Workers, announced he had asked the men to stand firm and await further negotiations. He added, however, he expected the negotiations to take such a form that at least a temporary settlement was almost certain.

The next critical date in the situation as a whole is Thursday, when a meeting of the miners' federation will be held in London. The leaders then will discuss whether the "spread-over" system, which now is in effect in a majority of the collieries, will be permitted to continue. Under this system the owners are permitted to spread 45 hours of work over a week instead of a flat seven and one-half hour day as demanded by the men.

LETTER RATE BOOST PROPOSED BY BROWN

Postmaster General Recommends ½-Cent Rise in Report to Congress.

WOULD OFFSET DEFICIT

Increase in the rate on first-class mail from 2 to 2½ cents an ounce was proposed by Postmaster General Brown yesterday in his annual report to Congress.

The increase, which would be the first of its kind in more than 45 years, with the exception of emergency rates during the World War period, was urged as one means of offsetting the huge postal deficit. This debit reached $68,779,064 in the last fiscal year, increasing $1,913,346 over 1929.

Would Cover Deficit.

Mr. Brown said the ½-cent increase would take care of the deficit and balance the Postoffice budget. Even a larger increase would be justified, his report told Congress, saying that the 2-cent postage rate established in 1885 was equivalent to 3½ cents at the present time. If relative wages paid labor were taken into account, the original 2-cent rate was the equivalent of 7 cents today, he argued.

The Postmaster General also said that while the first-class rate had not been raised permanently since 1885 there had been an increase of 82 per cent in the second-class rate, an increase of 21 per cent in the third-class rate and an average increase of 10 per cent in the parcel post rate since 1916. Postal cards would not be affected by the proposed boost, Mr. Brown said.

A general survey of the building needs of the country is being conducted with a view of spending $115,000,000 appropriated at the last session of Congress, the report said.

Against High Leases.

Criticizing the present policy of leasing postoffice and garage quarters, where the rental exceeds $6,000 a year, as "uneconomical and unbusinesslike," the Postmaster General said he had formulated a plan for ultimate Government ownership of all postoffice and garage quarters in such instances.

Commenting on the increased popularity of the air mail service, he made known that 7,719,698 pounds of mail were carried over 14,939,469 air miles by this new branch of the service in the last fiscal year.

Air mail service is now maintained to all countries of Central and South America and the West Indies, except Brazil and Jamaica, and action is being taken to extend service to those countries, he said.

$9,500,000 U. S. SUM FOR CITY HELD FAIR

can), of Connecticut, chairman of the Senate subcommittee on District appropriations, proposed a $12,000,000 appropriation, and successively brought the amount down in an effort to get an agreement with the House, but it was only when the Senate made it clear that several of its members would sit in session throughout the summer rather than yield completely that the House conferees agreed to increase their limit by $500,000 to $9,500,000, the amount provided in the bill for the current fiscal year.

The estimates prepared for 1932 by the District Commissioners, approved by the Budget Bureau and President Hoover, call for a Federal appropriation of $9,500,000.

The question has been whether the House would again insist on appropriation of not more than $9,000,000 despite its yielding last session.

Representative Simmons has been busy with other appropriation measures since he returned to Washington following his reelection and he has consistently refused to discuss District fiscal affairs. He has not seen the estimates for next year, Mr. Simmons said, nor has he had opportunity to talk with members of the District appropriations subcommittee and he does not intend to make an opportunity to study the question until it is time to take up the annual appropriation bill in regular order, Mr. Simmons said. He said he had no comment to make on Mr. Tilson's expression yesterday.

Representative Carl Mapes (Republican), of Michigan, chairman of the special House committee to study District fiscal relations, also withheld comment.

This special committee is to meet at 10:30 o'clock this morning. It will be the first meeting of the group. Just what the committee is to do and how it is to do it is expected to be decided at the meeting, with all indications pointing to a decision on the part of the committee to take its time and gather material for its report without regard to the status of the District appropriation bill.

Representative Charles R. Crisp (Democrat), of Georgia, named by Speaker Longworth as one of the fiscal committee members, sought yesterday to relieve himself of the job. He conferred with Mr. Mapes, and subsequently the two had a conference with Mr. Longworth. Mr. Crisp intimated that he might change his mind, and subsequently Mr. Longworth said he hoped he would and that in the meantime he would give no thought to selection of a successor.

PRESIDENT UPHELD ON OIL LAND POLICY

Court Rules Executive Has Power of Temporary Withdrawals.

APPEAL HELD PROBABLE

The oil conservation policy of President Hoover, which has resulted in the rejection of applications of 5,000 prospectors to seek oil on Government lands, was upheld yesterday in a majority opinion by the District Court of Appeals. It was considered probable the case will be taken to the United States Supreme Court.

The majority opinion held that the President or his agent, Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, was empowered to make temporary withdrawals of public lands without formal proclamation as determined by the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the Midwest Oil case. Congress has a right to disaffirm the act, the majority opinion stated, but the court said it would not interfere with such action of the Chief Executive in the public interest except in a "clear" case.

A vigorous dissenting opinion was filed by Justice Josiah A. Van Orsdel, who claimed that Secretary Wilbur acted wholly beyond the scope of his power. The majority opinion, written by Justice Charles H. Robb, was concurred in by Chief Justice George E. Martin. It was pointed out, however, that when the case was presented earlier to the District Supreme Court, both Justice Jennings Bailey and Justice Frederick L. Siddons held that the conservation policy was unconstitutional. Thus of the five judges who have acted on the policy three have been opposed to the majority decision of the appeals court yesterday.

Alarmed at the depletion of the national oil resources, President Hoover announced at a press interview in March, 1929, that "there will be complete conservation of governmental oil in this administration." No further formal proclamation was made, and Secretary Wilbur proceeded to interpret the announcement by refusing further oil permits. More than 300 suits have been filed against the Interior Department Secretary protesting against the action.

In his dissenting opinion yesterday, Justice Van Orsdel asserted that President Hoover's announcement was "merely the statement of a future policy which may or may not be adopted, and would have to be put into effect by a formal proclamation by the President before it could justify in the remotest degree the action taken by Wilbur." Justice Van Orsdel also attacked the applicability of the Supreme Court decision on which the majority opinion was based. He added:

"It is immaterial whether 1, or 5,000, or 10,000 applicants would be affected by the court's decision. Neither in the agitated state of the public mind should the fact that this is an 'oil case' entitle it to any particular sanctity in the eyes of the law or furnish adequate grounds for the wholesale slaughter of private property rights by judicial decree."

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THE ambition of our civic leaders to make Washington outstanding among the world capitals is laudable, of course, but we should realize our limitations.

There are some things for which our city is particularly adapted and we should make the best of them, not try to have everything that the other world capitals have. When we overstretch ouselves, attempt the things for which the city is not suited, simply because Paris or Berlin has them, then we become ridiculous.

• • • •

FOR example, that communist demonstration yesterday was a flop. At least, it was not a success. Compared with the demonstrations they have in Berlin and Paris we seemed like rank amateurs in the art of communist demonstrating.

It was not the fault of our movie men, either. They did everything they could to make the thing a success, but when the Parisians and Berliners see the pictures of our show they will laugh, and well might they do so.

In the first place, it was a mistake to stage the show on the same day that Congress was opening. Indeed, there is no need of staging it at any time Congress is in session.

OUR visitors can not watch both performances at once. Yesterday it was like a three-ring circus, and it was a caution to see the crowd running back and forth from the Senate and House galleries to the Communist demonstration trying to see both shows.

The upshot of such as this is that no one is satisfied. No one was fully satisfied with the spectacle of Congress and there is bound to be disappointment over the Communist fracas.

• • • •

IT seems to me that we have many things with which to sell our city to the country, our government officials in person, our cherry blossoms, not that there is a comparison, our foreign diplomats and embassies and many other features.

And I would not say that we should entirely abandon the Communist demonstrations. But it should be rehearsed before another one is staged, and then it should be staged in the summer time, when there is not so much here to do—when we need attractions, in other words.

In the meantime, we might send a commission over to Europe to study Communist demonstrations and come home and make report. If any legislative assistance is needed, it will be readily forthcoming.

NEW FACES AND LAME DUCKS AROUSE INTEREST IN CONGRESS

a Kentucky mountain district, this man's ambition took a story book flight about two years ago. He hitched his wagon to the Hoover star and rode it hard. To an extent, one might say that even the Nation's foreign affairs were shaped by this man's desire.

Frederick H. Sackett, happy and contented, was lifted bodily from his Senate seat and transplanted to far away Berlin so that Mr. Robsion might have the seat he occupied.

But all of the planning and driving on Robsion's part were to prove of no avail. When the election came along two Democrats beat him, Williamson for the short term and Judge Logan for the long term. Robsion's throne toppled like a house of cards.

Williamson, an angular, raw-boned fellow in swallow-tail coat and starched to the point of seeming a bit stiff, was escorted to the dais by Senator Barkley.

McGill Rouses Interest.

The most amusing incident was Senator Capper's escorting the Democrat who beat Henry Allen. George McGill is his name, a frazzle-haired, outdoor-complexioned man who didn't trouble to put on a swallow-tail coat. Capper, who gets a lot of happiness out of life studying people and their ways, seemed to be considerably interested in McGill.

Incidentally, neither Capper nor Vice President Curtis, both of whom have been all over Kansas and met nearly everybody in the State, had ever met McGill. Democrats are such a rarity in the State, particularly successful ones, that they were right anxious to meet him.

Dwight Morrow was not sworn in, neither was Jimmy Davis. Morrow's certificate of election had not yet arrived because of the slowness of the New Jersey legal machinery. He will probably take his seat tomorrow.

It is a long story about Davis. Apparently a perverse destiny is taking delight in harassing him.

Heflin Seems Dour.

Old Tom Heflin was there, and apparently in no happy mood. In fact, about all that was seen of him was just before the roll call, when he stuck his head furtively out of the cloakroom and came in the chamber to vote, after which he disappeared again.

The thirteen new members of the House are Goss, of the Fifth Connecticut; Chiperfield, of the Fifteenth Illinois; Parsons, of the Twenty-fourth Illinois; Dorsey, of the Second Kentucky; Hancock, of the Fifth North Carolina; James, of the Seventh North Carolina; Berk, of the Thirty-seventh Pennsylvania; Rich, of the Sixteenth Pennsylvania; Condon, of the Third Rhode Island; Loofbourow, of the Second Utah; Hogg, of the Fourth West Virginia; Reilly, of the Sixth Wisconsin, and Mrs. Wingo, who succeeds her husband as a member from Arkansas.

These members are merely to fill vacancies. There were about 50 members with long, drawn faces. The lame ducks, they are.

Representative Tilson, of Connecticut, the majority leader, announced a meeting of the unofficial steering committee for this morning to map out a legislative program.

Reading of the President's message will comprise today's business, and the budget will be received Wednesday. Then the House will probably start out with appropriation bills and the Senate will take up where it left off on the Parker bus bill. Consideration of nominations, scores of them, will be sandwiched in.

Unemployment and drought relief, along with the supply bills, are to be the principal business, all leaders agree, but the months ahead are fraught with all sorts of political evil.

Characteristic of the mood of the Congress was the shaft at Senator Joe Robinson that was going the rounds. It was the suggestion that Robinson was to replace Watson as Republican leader. This from unfriendly sources as a jibe at his cooperation program.

HOUSE WETS START ATTACK ON DRY LAW

ferent slant, Representative Andrew (Republican), Massachusetts, asked in a resolution for a vote on an amendment to the Constitution repealing the eighteenth amendment. He would allow seven years for ratification by the States through conventions.

A Democrat, Representative Boylan, of New York, proposed to exclude beer, ale, porter and stout of not more than 4 per cent alcohol and wine and cider of not more than 10 per cent from prohibited beverages, provided they are legalized by the States.

Representative Goss, Connecticut Republican who took his seat yesterday, announced he would introduce today a bill to legalize 4 per cent beer, and another to authorize physicians to prescribe malt liquors for medicinal purposes in increased quantities.

The Senate campaign funds investigating committee will examine Edward B. Dunford, treasurer of the Antisaloon League, today regarding expenditures by the dry organization in support of candidates for the Senate.

Representatives of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment will be heard by the committee later this week in New York.

Woman Seeks $20,000 Over Injury in Theater

Mary S. Halley, of 62 Randolph place northwest, filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court seeking to recover $20,000 damages from the C. H. Amusement Corporation, of 1112 F street northwest.

The woman claims that she stumbled down a 6-inch step from a seat at Loew's Theater, and was seriously injured. Negligence on the part of the theater owners is claimed. Attorneys James S. Easby-Smith and Francis W. Hill, jr., appear for the woman.

Hurricane Hits Vera Cruz.

Mexico City, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Newspaper dispatches from Vera Cruz said a hurricane had hit the city, imperiling shipping. First accounts were that seven small boats engaged in coastwise traffic were unreported. The yacht of D. C. Jackling sailed from the port just before the storm struck.

GENERAL ARMS PACT SOUGHT BY GERMANY

Demand Is Not Discussed by Geneva Commission but Early Action Is Doubted.

FINAL DRAFT REVIEWED

Geneva, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Germany tonight demanded at the meeting of the preperatory disarmament commission that a general disarmament conference be called for November 2, 1931. No discussion followed, but the general belief was that the general conference would not be called before early in 1932.

The German demand was made as the commission began its final review of the draft disarmament convention which it has been formulating the last several weeks. In its final review, the commission confirmed its former decision tc limit effectives of land, sea and air by direct enumeration and voted by a narrow majority to limit government-owned air craft in reserve as well as military air craft in service.

The commission made rapid progress and most of the articles were adopted without comment.

Russian Move Again Rejected.

Russia again was defeated, in her attempt to commit governments to reduce as well as limit armaments. The commission declined to accept the Soviet proposal that the convention read "to limit and reduce" their forces, and instead made it read "to limit and as far as possible to reduce."

The decision to limit directly Government-owned aircraft was on a British amendment, supported by the United States, Italy, Canada and Holland. The amendment was opposed by the French group, but was carried by a vote of nine to eight.

The former decision to limit military aircraft by total horsepower as well as by number was adhered to despite a Canadian effort to eliminate the horsepower method as impracticable.

The United States favored the Canadian move and later declared it now was for the experts to find some satisfactory scheme for limiting by total horsepower.

Limitation of Reserves.

Walter Riddell, the Canadian delegate, favored limitation by number plus a limit on total budget expenditures.

The representatives of Spain, France and Germany spoke in favor of the horsepower method and Riddell then withdrew his opposition.

Russia also pressed again for a limitation of trained reserves, but without success.

Lord Cecil, of Great Britain, said his government had abandoned this proposal after vigorously supporting it for a long time because sentiment in certain countries, which are committed to conscription, is so strong against limitation that Great Britain had considered it hopeless to oppose.

Arguments Near End Upon Consent Decree

Concluding arguments in the packers' consent decree hearing were begun yesterday in District of Columbia Supreme Court before Justice Jennings Bailey.

Arguments yesterday were made by Attorney Frank J. Hogan, for the packers, who stressed merchandising conditions in the country. The packers are seeking a modification of the consent decree signed in 1920, claiming that merchandising conditions have materially changed since that date.

DAVIS, DOAK TO WAIT SENATE'S PLEASURE

HOOVER TAKES ACTION

threatened to bar Davis from his seat in the Senate, the President delayed in accepting Davis' resignation as Secretary of Labor.

What led the President to announce late yesterday that he had finally accepted the resignation was a statement given out by Secretary Davis along about 4:30 o'clock.

This statement said:

"I was informed that Senator Nye wished to study further the matter of contributions in the recent Pennsylvania election.

"After consultation with Senate Republican leaders, who had also conferred with Senator Nye, it seemed to me best to withhold my credentials until Chairman Nye had time to make his examination—that is, until tomorrow.

Nothing to Conceal.

"In the meantime I desire to say that I have nothing whatever to conceal. I fully court whatever further investigation Senator Nye cares to make, and will cooperate with him and the committee."

Newspapermen took this statement to the White House, it was shown to the President, and there followed the announcement that Davis' resignation had been accepted, effective today.

If Mr. Davis expects to present his credentials and to take his seat today, he evidently is going to be disappointed.

Chairman Nye announced later that, while he regarded Mr. Davis' action as "gracious," he would be compelled to ask a delay in acceptance of his credentials if he appeared in the Senate chmaber before the committee has completed its investigation.

$625,000 Expense Reported.

The Nye committee has received reports that a total of $625,000 was expended on behalf of the Davis-Brown ticket, and it wants to keep Davis out of the Senate until these reports have been run down.

The prospect is, therefore, that after today, Davis will have to go along for a while with no job at all. He will be out as Secretary of Labor, and his seat in the Senate will be hanging in the balance.

Meanwhile, to quote one Republican wit, Mr. Doak will be "Secretary of What Not."

The Swearing-In Ceremony.

The low-down on the swearing-in ceremony that took place at the Labor Department is this: Friends of Mr. Doak, believing that he would be sworn in yesterday, flocked to the Labor Department Building to see him installed.

Rather than disappoint these friends, it was decided to go through with a mock ceremony, and Samuel Gompers, the son of the late labor leader and for many years chief clerk of the Labor Department, was called in to "administer the oath of office."

So far, as those assembled were concerned, the ceremony was the real thing. After Mr. Doak had apparently taken the oath, Mr. Davis introduced him as the new Secretary of Labor, and the crowd applauded.

Davis Pays Compliment.

Then Mr. Davis turned to Mrs. Doak and said:

"Permit me to introduce the most handsome Secretary of Labor in the history of the United States."

A burst of laughter and more cheering, and then photographs of Mr. Doak with upraised hand, and another dress rehearsal before the sound cameras followed.

The trouble with this mock ceremony, however, was that those responsible for it forgot to tell reporters that it was a mock ceremony. As a consequence, the story went out over the country that Mr. Doak had been installed as Secretary of Labor.

"I Have No Status," He Says.

Certainly Mr. Doak knew that he was not Secretary of Labor; at least, he knew it when he called at the White House later in the day.

"Who is Secretary of Labor?" he was asked.

"I don't know," he replied.

And then, in response to a question as to status, he replied, "I have no status."

Mr. Davis, however, was under the impression that Mr. Doak could take office whenever he wanted to, and so stated to newspaper men late in the afternoon.

President Hoover, in his letter accepting Davis' resignation, thanked him for "the manner in which you have conducted the Department of Labor for a period of nearly ten years," and added that it was fortunate that the country is to retain his service in the Senate.

Mr. Davis, in his letter of resignation, recalled that he and President Hoover had entered the Harding cabinet together in 1921.

Committee to Meet Tomorrow.

"Under your guidance," Mr. Davis told the President, "we will emerge from the present depression into a prosperity as great as the one before."

The Nye committee is expected to meet tomorrow to consider the case of Davis. In a statement yesterday, Chairman Nye said:

"I have desired and gained a delay on action upon his credentials to the end that there might be afforded further opportunity to determine the amounts which have been expended in behalf of the Brown-Davis ticket in the primary election in Pennsylvania. It is essential that this information be before the Senate when it acts upon the Davis credentials."

Samuel Vauclain, treasurer of the Davis-Brown campaign committee, Nye said, would be called as a witness.

Alleged Discrepancy Cited.

Last May, Nye said, Vauclain showed the committee expenditures totaling $368,962. Later, he said, Vauclain made a report to the Secretary of State of Pennsylvania, which revealed an expense of $185,055 more than was reported to the committee. Other reports filed with the Secretary of State, he said, revealed expenditures heretofore unknown to the committee in excess of $75,000.

A representative of the Nye committee, sent to Harrisburg to investigate the Davis-Brown expenditures, was scheduled to return to Washington last night.

REWRITTEN BORLAND LAW IS SUBMITTED

INEQUALITIES TAKEN OUT

A virtual rewriting of the moot Borland act, which was recently held unconstitutional in the District Court of Appeals, was forwarded by the District Commissioners yesterday to Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, chairman of the House District committee.

Passage at the present session of the measure relating to the levying of assessments against abutting property for the paving of streets, avenues and roads in the District, is regarded as a "vital necessity," the Commissioners stated in a lengthy letter accompanying the proposal.

Recalling the reason the Appellate Court held the present act unconstitutional lay in its application to property fronting on thoroughfares having a diagonal course through the city, the Commissioners admit that "there can be no question but that assessments without limit upon such lots for the paving of all lots on the streets upon which they abut greatly exceed the benefits to the property and, therefore, amount to confiscation."

Such diagonal highways, it was pointed out, divide property into triangular and irregular shaped lots with resulting inequalities of assessments.

Attempt to Omit Inequalities.

"We are of the opinion that property is benefited by the paving of the street upon which it abuts and should pay to the extent of the benefit," the Commissioners state. "In the proposed law we have endeavored to make the property subject to assessment to that extent and to remove the inequalities and injustices that result from the application of the present law."

The proposed act is divided into eleven sections, which are summarized as follows:

(1) Provides for the assessment of one-half of the cost of the paving of a street against the property abuting the street. It is, substantially, the same as the existing law, except that no assessment is levied for the laying of penetration macadem.

(2) Provides that gutters and curbings are to be included in the term "roadway," but that where no roadway is laid any new and permanent construction of curb and gutter shall be assessed against the abutting property.

(3) The assessments shall not be levied for paving the roadway in excess of 40 feet in width or for the paving at intersections, or for paving for which street railway companies are required to pay.

Limits on Assessments.

(4) The maximum linear front foot assessment shall not exceed $3.50 per linear front foot. The total assessment shall not exceed the number of square feet of area multiplied by one-tenth of 1 per cent of the assessment per front foot. No assessment is to exceed 20 per cent of the assessed value of the land, exclusive of improvements. This section is intended to equalize the assessments so that a shallow lot will not be taxed at the same rate as a deep lot and to take into account whether the roadway accommodates heavy traffic or is more or less restricted.

(5) When a property owner has once paid an assessment for a roadway improvement he shall not be liable to further assessment for the replacement thereof. This is in the present law.

(6) Under certain conditions where the original pavements were laid at the whole cost of the owner or owners of abutting property no assessment shall be levied for the replacement thereof.

(7.) Provides for assessment for certain repairs.

(8) This limits the aggregate assessments to 3½ cents per square foot when property abuts two or more streets.

(9) Provides the manner of making assessments in accordance with the present law.

(10) Any property owner aggrieved by any assessment may within 60 days after the service of a notice of assessment file a protest in writing with the commissioners, who may adjust the case as they see fit.

(11) Provides for the repeal of the inconsistent laws.

ENGINEERING GROUP TO AID EMPLOYMENT

Convention Acts Following Plea Made to It By Col. Woods.

PROGRAM IS OUTLINED

New York, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Hope for solution of the unemployment problem lies largely with the country's engineers, Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the President's committee on employment, told the American Society of Mechanical Engineers today.

"If the engineers of America could apply the same degree of trained intelligence to the problems of stabilization of industry as they have in the past to its expansion, we should march a long way toward regularization of employment," said Col. Woods.

"We must find within the resources of every community throughout this country the basis for our recovered national prosperity. Foreign trade offers little help to the situation because the business depression it worldwide."

Urges Study by Engineers.

The unemployment crisis, he asserted, has come about as hte result of uncontrolled economic forces which are not well understood. He urged that engineers make a study of methods already in operation to stabilize employment and prevent another crisis in the future.

The society responded to his appeal by voting to undertake a Nation-wide investigation into means adopted throughout the country to stabilize employment. Committees in each of the society's 71 local sections in every principal industrial area of the country will conduct the inquiry, under supervision of a central committee.

Lawrence W. Wallace, of Washington, executive secretary of the American Engineering Council, sponsored adoption of the resolution by the society.

Text of Resolution.

"The American Society of Mechanical Engineers pledges its full cooperation and assistance in response to the requests of Col. Arthur Woods, chairman of the President's emergency committee for unemployment, transmitted by the American Engineering Council," it said.

"The society will undertake a program of:

"1. Urging industry to adopt measures now to relieve the winter emergency, and

"2. Compiling data as to effective policies and methods used to deal with the general question of irregular employment, and

"3. Assisting in all other practicable ways."

Awards were conferred tonight on Harold L. Adams and Richard L. Stith, University of Washington, among others.

U. S.-ANGLO ACCORD ON SEAS REPORTED

ernment has not been officially consulted, although Ambassador Tsuneo Matsudaira, at London, is conversant with the situation.

The Japanese pointed out that the question is obviously one between the two most powerful sea powers who have naval parity.

However, for the time being, the Japanese declare, they will cling to the principles of neutrality recognized by the league conference. Recognition of the principle of freedom of the seas is understood to mean simply manitenance of the maximum rights of private belligerents. Blockade and seizure are not to be tolerated as private weapons, but the high seas should only be closed as an international sanction for the constraint of a peace breaker.

Both Washington and London, it is stated, accept at face value the Kellogg pact for the renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy, even though conciliation breaks down. Already, it is pointed out, the question of freedom of the seas has been evaded four times—at the Paris Peace Conference, and at the Washington, Geneva nad London Naval Conferences.

Washington's agreement to advise or consult in connection with the treaty being negotiated here, which is taken as a precursor to extension of the same principle in future treaties, is met by Great Britain's unqualified renunciation of blockade as a private weapon. Clinging to the blockade principle, in view of both the league covenant and the Kellogg pact's obligations is regarded by the British government as impeding progress toward "disarmament, cooperative security and radical disarmament."

The chances of a Franco-Italian agreement along the lines of the British compromise—tantamount to extension of the Franco-Italian naval building holiday until 1936—appear brighter today with the return to Geneva from Rome of an Italian delegation. After reviewing the latest proposals, Prime Minister Benito Mussolini sent an emissary back to Geneva with four reservations to them.

The French are still maintaining two reservations to the scheme, which means that the London pact would be signed by the French and Italians without the inclusion of tonnage figures.

Should the effort to bring the Italians into line fail, it is predicted the French will sign a treaty under a so-called "gentleman's agreement" with Great Britain on their safeguard clause already outlined.

Appeal Court Upholds Manganese Co. Claim

The mandamus order of the District Supreme Court, requiring Comptroller General J. Raymond McCarl to certify for payment an award of $97,139.50, with interest from December 9, 1925, in favor of David Halstead, receiver of the American Manganese Manufacturing Co., was upheld yesterday by the District Court of Appeals in a decision by Justice Charles H. Robb.

The court held there was no valid claim of the United States which could be set off against the award, which was granted December 5, 1928, by the Secretary of the Interior, under the war minerals relief act. McCarl contended excess taxes were owed by the company to the United States, but the court said this claim had been withdrawn. The court also defined McCarl's jurisdiction as "purely ministerial and subject to control by mandamus."

FUND MOUNTING TO FURNISH TOYS TO CAPITAL CHILDREN

for fathers and mothers, who by this method, can furnish a real Christmas for their families despite hard times, unemployment and sickness.

Organized charities are caring for the wants of families in distress, seeing to it that clothing, food and fuel is supplied, so that winter does not mean so many hardships to those who have been unfortunate. But the demands on these organizations have been greater than ever this year so that no mony is left to spread additional Christmas cheer through the purchase of things which might not be termed necessities.

However, the children are not aware of conditions. They want bright, new toys just like the banker's son or daughter around the corner. And The Post's appeal is to fill this need. Where parehts have shown a desire to do what is right, the money raised will be given them to buy what their sons and daughters have requested. Where any doubt lingers as to how the parents might spend the money, if they were given the cash, a representative of the Council of Social Agencies will see that the children, for whom the money is contributed, get the toys for which they have asked.

The council, apart from its regular work, has agreed to aid The Post in this undertaking, by listing all the families where children were unlikely to receive presents. To these children the toys will be sent and every dollar contributed to the fund will be used only for the youngsters. There will be no diversion of the fund to any other cause, no matter how worthy.

Christmas will not be Christmas if Washingtonians do not make the children happy. And the easiest way is to see that the boys and girls get at least a portion of the things they have seen and wanted. No contribution is too small. Children may give pennies, nickels or dimes and for the grownups there is not limit.

The fund will be open until December 21, but the earlier your contribution comes in, the sooner some child will be assured of a happy Christmas. There is not time like the present. Send your donation to the Christmas Toy Fund Editor of The Post. He'll do the rest.

MAJOR GIVEN DELAY ON TRIAL IN DEATH

Attorney Admits "Another Woman" Figures in Case Against Shepard.

WIFE POISONED, CLAIM

Kansas City, Kans., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Harry S. Glass, attorney for Maj. Charles A. Shepard, accused of poisoning his second wife, today said he expected to prove that all the medical officer did "was to fall in love with another woman."

Mr. Glass came here from Denver, where Maj. Shepard is stationed, and is associated with C. L. Kagey, of Beloit, Kans., in the defense. His announcement was made after the officer appeared in Federal district court today for the trial, which was postponed until Thursday on account of the delayed arrival of Maj. Paul R. Hawley, a witness, from Nicaragua.

In explaining what was expected to be the defense case, Mr. Glass said the Government, prosecuting the case, was trying the major on a motive, rather than for a crime.

Woman Died at Fort Riley.

Mrs. Zenana Shepard, the woman alleged to have been poisoned, died in June, 1929, at Fort Riley, Kans., where Maj. Shepard was stationed. Maj. Hawley, a medical officer, attended Mrs. Shepard.

Months later, after a long investigation, the husband was arrested. The prosecution has asserted Shepard killed his wife after paying marked attentions to Miss Grace Brandon, a pretty blonde. She was a stenographer at Brooks Field, San Antonio, Tex., while the officer was stationed there, and is considered an important witness in the trial.

Many of the other threescore subpenaed witnesses are Army officers from scattered Army posts where Maj. Shepard had been stationed.

Free on $20,000 Bail.

The Government has announced much of the testimony will be of a technical nature from members of the Army Medical Corps, to which Maj. Shepard is attached.

Arraignment of Maj. Sherpard has not yet been made and he still is at liberty on the $20,000 bond posted following his indictment by a grand jury at Topeka, Kans., April 18, 1930.

His counsel has announced he will plead not guilty when arraigned, just before the start of the trial Thursday.

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 1.—Classes were resumed this afternoon at the Chapel Wood School, near here, after a new stove was sent to the school to replace the one stolen over the week-end.

A truck pulled up to the school Saturday night, a neighbor recalled today. The front door was broken open and the stove was gone when Miss Margaret Lowery, the teacher, and the children arrived this morning.

Americanization Association Holding Annual Event This Week.

MEALS ALSO SERVED

Articles from more than 50 foreign countries are on display at the bazaar of the Americanization School Association which opened yesterday at the Americanization School, Tenth and H streets northwest.

Dolls, tapestries, and various kinds of handiwork are on display, and members of the association are dressed in their native costumes. Luncheons and dinner, typical of various countries, are being served each day. The bazaar is open from 10 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock at night. It will continue through Saturday.

Concerts from the Americanization School Orchestra and entertainment from students will be features each evening. Miss Maude E. Aiton, principal of the Americanization School, points to the value of the association as an aid in finding employment for Americanized foreigners. More than 100 have been given employment through the association within the last year, according to Miss Aiton.

The association is also of benefit in aiding sick members and others in distress of various kinds. Former Chief Justice Walter I McCoy is president. More than $600 was made at the association bazaar last year, and the association hopes to make more this year.

Eastport School Girl Swallows Poison Dose

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 1.—Rosa Welch, 15-year-old school girl, of Eastport, near Annapolis, is in a serious condition in Emergency Hospital here from the effects of swallowing some disinfectant at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Welch, yesterday afternoon. Her parents were away at the time.

Whether the girl took one or more tablets of the preparation, or that her act was deliberate or accidental, has not been revealed. She has made no statement to hospital attendants and her parents also refuse to discuss the incident. Dr. James J. Murphy, attending physician, says the child's condition is favorable for recovery, as indications are she did not swallow more than one tablet.

U. S., FRENCH LOAN POLICY STIRS PARIS

Tacit Understanding to Bar Bellicose Countries Revealed There.

PEACE AIM EMPHASIZED

Paris, Dec. 1 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The tacit understanding between the United States and France against lending money to bellicose countries became known in Paris today for the first time and has caused some stir.

Jules Sauerwein, foreign editor of Le Matin, who always is informed correctly on matters relating to France's foreign policy, gives considerable detail on the conversations between George L. Harrison, governor of the Federal Reserve Board of New York, and Governor Moret, of the Bank of France, who, he says, met frequently during Harrison's stay in Paris.

He says they covered the whole field, created by the fact that they represent, as bankers with quasi-political power, two of the great masses of the world's gold. They treated questions as bankers, not as government representatives, M. Sauerwein is careful to point out; but he adds:

"It is not a question of serving any particular policy, but to employ financial strength uniquely in the great cause of peace. Against this cause we hear today in Europe from the north and south, the center and the east a whole concert of menaces and intimidations."

Leon Bailby, editor of the Intransigeant, who was recently in the United States, for which he has shown intense admiration in a series of articles in his newspaper, sees, however, in the collaboration of France and the United States the danger of France losing her liberty of action.

Bailby is concerned particularly with the question of France's relation to Italy and lets it be understood, without directly saying so, he considers France's superior financial position useful as a means of forcing Italy into a reasonable policy toward France, which he fears will be weakened by too close cooperation between France and the United States.

Bailby says Italy has been seeking loans in France for nearly $300,000,000, but he intimates French bankers have been given to understand by their own government that no loans or credits should be extended to Italy until that country changes its tone and policies respecting France.

NEW CHIEF TO HEAD STRIKE AREA POLICE

Special Body Being Picked to Replace Troops in Danville Region.

TO ACT INDEPENDENTLY

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., Dec. 1.—The first step in line with the plan to reorganize the county police force, to cope with the strike situation after the soldiers have been withdrawn from Schoolfield, was taken tonight when Judge Turner Clement, of Pittsylvania, said he would appoint Lindsey W. Moore, of the county, as a chief of police, at the head of a specially recruited body of men which will be chosen this week.

Moore said he would accept. He is 35, with a record of Army service during the war. After hostilities ended he was sent into occupied Germany, where he was military burgomaster of Wiesbaden. He holds a degree from Washington and Lee University and played for two years on the college football team. For two years in succession he was the All-Southern selection for left tackle. The new police force will operate separately from the organization directed by Sheriff Charles R. Murphy.

Danville, Va., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—An increased military force patrolled the quiet strike area at Schoolfield today as nonunion workers, estimated by striking union pickets at approximately 400, entered the mill gates in the gloom of a murky dawn.

Pickets were again on duty near the mill gates, under the new order relative to picketing which was issued Saturday after Gov. Pollard's visit and inspection at Schoolfield.

Decision to resume picketing was reached at a meeting last night of the executive committee of the local organization of the United Textile Workers of America.

C. L. Anderson, picket captain for the striking union textile workers in the Dan River Mills, said today he would see Col. H. L. Opie, commanding the National Guard units here, during the afternoon and ask for instruction on rules governing picket activities.

Meanwhile 100 more soldiers, Company D of Roanoke, a machine gun unit, and the Emporia Howitzer Company were ordered withdrawn, leaving approximately 740 men and officers on duty. The troops, however, will not leave until tomorrow morning.

Commonwealth's Attorney John Carter, of Danville City, and Chief of Police Hannibal Martin of Danville, appeared today before the Pittsylvania County Board of Supervisors to discuss cooperation between the county and city for the restoration of civil law enforcement at Schoolfield when the troops leave.

COLD WAVE MOVES ACROSS MIDWEST

Subzero Temperatures Are Recorded in North Central States.

SNOWFALLS ARE LIGHT

Chicago, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Cold returned to the Middle West today with renewed vigor after its week-end holiday. Unlike its immediate predecessors, today's frigid wave carried little snow. In Ohio there was a heavy fall to add to the drifts piled up last week, but in nearly all the other States there was just a raw, biting wind from the Northwest.

The lowest temperatures of the season, marks that equaled the minimums in Canada, were recorded in the northern tier of the Central States. An unofficial 20 below at Bemidji, Minn., and an official 18 below at Devils Lake, N. Dak., headed the list of subzero readings. There were others not far behind, including Duluth, with —14, and St. Paul, with —10.

The center of the icy blast was expected to move southward into central Illinois and Indiana tonight, spreading to a lesser degree into all nearby States. Rising temperatures were predicted for the northern plains coincident with the start of a light snowfall. Some relief was in sight for tomorrow, the Weather Bureau said, for the entire Chicago forecast area.

Much colder weather has overspread the upper Great Lakes region and the upper Mississippi Valley. Since Saturday morning there have been moderate to heavy rains in the Ohio Valley, rains or snows over the middle Mississippi Valley and Great Lakes region and snows over the upper Mississippi Valley and the northern plains.

Eleven District, Maryland and Virginia projects are included in the $60,000,000 waterway improvement estimates submitted Congress yesterday by Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of Army engineers.

Maryland and Virginia projects included in the budget are: Baltimore harbor and channels, $440,000, with $200,000 for maintenance; Elk River, Md., $6,000; Potomac River at Washington, D. C., $5,000 for maintenance; Rappahannock River, Va., $27,000 for maintenance; Norfolk Harbor, Va., $11,200, with $95,000 for maintenance; Thimble Shoals Channels, Va., $45,000 for maintenance; James River, Va., $126,000; Appomattox River, Va., $5,000 for maintenance; Pagan River, Va., $22,000 for maintenance; Ononcock River, Va., $8,000 for maintenance; Blackwater River, Va., $3,000 for maintenance.

Natural Gas Pipeline Plan Strikes Court Snag

Baltimore, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Plans of a natural gas pipeline company to pipe gas through Maryland from West Virginia to Pennsylvania struck a snag in circuit court today.

Judge C. Gus Grason ruled that the company, the Maryland Gas Tranmission Corporation, has no right to condemn property without first showing that the people of Maryland will benefit from the proposed pipe line. Attorneys for the company announced they would appeal. The company was said in court to also plan a pipeline to Virginia.

COMMISSION SEEKS NEW TRAFFIC POWER

Bill Sent to Capper Carrying Amendment to Give Added Authority.

OUTGROWTH OF SURVEY

The District Commissioners yesterday forwarded to Senator Arthur Capper, chairman of the Senate District committee, a bill intended to amend the existing traffic acts so that the Commissioners would have a "flexible authority over vehicular traffic and the titling and registering of vehicles."

The measure, which is an outgrowth of the exhaustive survey made by the District traffic advisory council, transfers many of the powers hertofore assigned to the traffic director to the Commissioners themselves. It also proposes to set up a joint body of the District Commissioners and the members of the Public Utilities Commission to do away with the present uncertainty as to their respective claims.

Should the bill be adopted, the present speed limit of 22 miles an hour in the downtown section would be eliminated, and the whole question would be left to the Commissioners for regulation.

Would Regulate Speed.

Section 9 (a) states: "No vehicle shall be operated at a greater rate of speed than permitted by the regulations adopted under the authority of this act."

This would give the Commissioners the power to decide whether there shall be a set limit or a varying schedule of limits for the speed of motor vehicles. The traffic advisory council pointed out that the average speed of vehicles in the business area is very low, largely because of congestion resulting from the 22-miles-an-hour limit.

The new measure still provides for the appointment of a traffic director, while curtailing his authority. The Commissioners are authorized to "make, modify, and enforce reasonable regulations in respect to brakes, horns, lights, mufflers and other equipment, and the inspection of the same, the registering, titling, retitling, transferring of titles and revocation of titles of motor vehicles and trailers."

Bill Retains $1 Fee.

Under the present system the traffic director made these regulations and then submitted them to the Commissioners for approval. The Commissioners themselves, however, can not originate any traffic rules.

The bill retains the $1 license tag fee despite the recommendation of the advisory council to raise it to $2.

The proposal would also empower the Commissioners to designate the length, weight, height, routing and parking of vehicles.

Concerning the division of authority between the Commissioners and the Public Utilities Commission, the measure says:

"That as to common carriers, primary control shall be in the Public Utilities Commission * * * but that whenever any order of the District Commissioners shall be made which is inconsistent and repugnant to any order of the Public Utilities Commission, or vice versa, involving the location of public vehicle stands, stops, and routes, or the movement of traffic, there is hereby set up a joint body to be composed of the District Commissioners and the members of the Public Utilities Commission, and the affirmative action of any three members thereof shall be binding and given the full force and effect of law when promulgated in accordance with the provisions of this act, and the Engineer Commissioner shall be chairman of such joint body and shall have but one vote."

Penalties Are Altered.

The bill alters the penalties for violation of the traffic regulations, removing the mandatory jail sentence for driving while drunk. The penalty provided in the bill is a fine of from $100 to $500 for the first offense or imprisonment of from 60 days to 6 months, or both; for second offense, the penalty is a fine of from $200 to $1,000 and imprisonment of from six months to a year.

Upon conviction for reckless driving, an offender would be fined from $25 to $100 or imprisoned for not more than 30 days; for the second offense, if committed within two years of the first, the penalty would be a fine of from $100 to $1,000, imprisonment of not more than a year, or both.

The penalties for other minor violations of traffic regulations are altered so that the motorist's permit is not revoked unless the three offenses occur within a year.

A clause full of teeth for the hit-and-run driver is included in the new measure, making it mandatory on an automobile driver in the case of an accident or collision to give his name, address and permit number to the person struck, the owner of the car damaged, or to a bystander. Heretofore this report could be made to a police station within 24 hours.

Offenders in the case of personal injury would face penalties of a fine of from $100 to $500 and imprisonment of from 60 days to six months; for the second offense the fine would be from $500 to $1,000 and imprisonment of from six months to a year. When only property damage is involved, the penalty is a fine of not more than $500 or six months imprisonment, or both, for the first offense.

Confederates of Man Slain by Police Sought

Oakland, Calif., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Police were searching tonight for the confederates of Frank E. Smith, shot to death yesterday when he tried to escape arrest as leader of a band of robbers responsible for several sensational hold-ups over the West in recent years.

While loot and a small arsenal seized at Smith's home, where he was killed, was being examined, authorities in San Francisco and vicinity joined Oakland police in a search for other members of Smith's gang. He had a long criminal record.

REDS AT THE CAPITOL.

The Communists and their dupes who persist in disorderly demonstrations like that of yesterday will always be curbed by the law. They are following the rule laid down by Communist policy, which is to provoke collisions, in the hope of stirring up civil commotions and eventual revolution. Every strike is to be turned into rioting and bloodshed, if possible. Meetings of agitators are to be transformed into clashes with the police. Fanatical believers in communism have been taught to court martyrdom under police clubs and horses' hoofs. In this respect the female of the red species is more deadly than the male.

Yesterday's "demonstration" was a pitiful exhibition of unreason and ignorance. It was a fiasco, also, as an attempt to create wild disorder. The police disposed of the more disorderly characters with neatness and dispatch. The incident means nothing in Washington; but the "demonstration" will doubtless be widely advertised among Communists, and enemies of society everywhere will be assured that the cause of world revolution has been advanced by the "heroism" of the tatterdemalions who squabbled with the police at the Capitol. Cracked brains will be inflamed by false reports of the brutality of the police.

In the meantime the United States permits Communists of keen intellect and devilish purpose to enter this country under the pretext that they are peaceful traders and merchants. These guiding spirits are not found in the mobs that clash with the police. They stay in the background, directing public disorders, strikes, riots and the sabotage of industrial establishments, naval vessels, &c. Why the State Department issues visas to these expert inciters of violence is one of the mysteries of big business.

SMUGGLING ALIENS AS "SEAMEN."

The merchant marine acts are being used to defeat the immigration law. Since the close of the World War merchant vessels on coming to the United States have carried more men than provided for by minimum manning regulations of the several nations. On leaving the United States they have done so with the minimum number or less, thus leaving in the United States a number of aliens masquerading as "seamen," conservatively estimated to be between 50,000 and 60,000 a year. The official figures are much smaller than the estimate. Investigation by the Labor Department has proved that official figures, which are obtained from masters reporting the number of desertions to the immigration authorities, are smaller than the number reported to the consuls of the several nations.

Chinese "sailors" coming in violation of law are paying up to $1,100 per person to get into the United States. Immigrants, most of whom could not obtain a visa, are paying from $200 to $400 for their passage as "seamen."

This racket has continued since the World War. Senate bill 202, to provide for the deportation of alien seamen unlawfully in the United States, has been before Congress since 1924. This bill passed the Senate in the Sixty-ninth Congress, but failed in the House. In the Seventieth Congress it was reported from the Senate committee on immigration and naturalization, but so late in the session that the objection to unanimous consent made by Senator Bingham, of Connecticut, prevented the passage of the bill. In the Seventy-first Congress it passed the Senate by unanimous consent in the temporary absence of Senator Bingham, who, on returning to the Senate, offered a motion to reconsider. This motion to reconsider has not been disposed of. The bill should be taken up and disposed of at once, in order that the House committee and the House may have an opportunity to act upon it.

With the existing condition of unemployment there is certainly no reason why the bill should not be passed. It would close a side door through which immigrants are smuggled into the United States, thus swelling the number of unemployed.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE DUB.

When the year 1930 dies at midnight, December 31, it will carry with it into oblivion the golf ball that has been standard these many years. From the first of January on the larger, lighter ball will alone be recognized as "standard" by the United States Golf Association. The new ball is but slightly larger and lighter than the old, but golfers generally are of the opinion that the substitution will make considerable differences in scores. The association contends that, inasmuch as the ball sets up better on the fairway, it will result in improving the score of the "average" golfer, but golfers themselves have heard that the new ball can not be driven as far as the old, and they do not face the change with any feeling of pleasure.

Evidence that the new ball is "shorter" from the tee than the old was supplied by contestants in the Oregon open golf tournament. Gene Sarazen won the driving contest by poking the small pellet 253 yards down the fairway, but when the new ball was substituted the best distance he could get out of it was 242 yards. The average of the best ten drives with the old ball was 236 yards, as against 231.2 yards average for the ten best drives with the new ball. During the contest there was no wind and the turf was heavy.

If the difference in "length" between the old and the new ball is only a matter of five or ten yards, the substitution should not affect the average score at all. Recently the handicapper of the Arlmont Country Club, J. W. F. Macdonald, checked up on 2,673 attested score cards turned in by 201 players, finding that the average score of all individual averages is 107.1 strokes. About 72 per cent of the players average over 100, while about 46 per cent have never broken 100. Only 12 per cent consistently score under 95. "These figures," says Mr. Macdonald, "are probably not much different from any average club. Let the so-called 'dub golfer' take hope, for he may not be so bad after all."

To golfers like Gene Sarazen, deep and poignant tragedy may be involved in having to use a globule that is five or ten yards "shorter" from the tee. To the 88 per cent of all golf players composing the "average" group which sustain America's thousands of golf courses, the slight loss of distance will be compensated by the improved lie of the new ball that will make it easier to get hold of with the club head. To the average golfer the bells of New Year's morning should not toll dirges for the departure of the old year and ball, but should sing paeans of joy for the coming of the new year and a new ball that promises to reduce the scores of the 107-shooters to at least 105 or 104.

OIL POLICY SUSTAINED.

President Hoover's oil conservation policy has been upheld by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals. In reversing the judgment of the lower tribunal, the court holds that the President is acting in the public interest and that there is no justification for setting aside his orders. The decision is an important victory for those forces working for conservation of the Nation's oil supply.

The Court of Appeals regarded the President's policy from a much broader viewpoint than that of the District Supreme Court. The lower tribunal held that Secretary Wilbur had exceeded his authority in issuing orders to withhold all Government oil lands from further exploitation. Justice Robb, who wrote the majority opinion for the Court of Appeals, says that "the President was in a position to know when the public interest required particular portions of the people's land to be withdrawn from entry or location; his action inflicted no wrong upon any private citizen, and, being subject to disaffirmance by Congress, could occasion no harm to the public at large." This sound reasoning is based on decisions of the Supreme Court in similar cases.

Until President Hoover announced his conservation policy vast areas of oil land owned by the Government were open to exploitation, in spite of the fact that the administration was urging private interests to conserve their oil. Overproduction was encouraging waste and reckless development. The President wisely decided that the first contribution the Government ought to make was to withdraw its own lands from further entry, and reserve them for future use. This policy met with general commendation, except in a few States where the oil interests wanted to tap every new reservoir regardless of market conditions.

Reverberations of the controversy probably will be heard in Congress, and the case may be carried to the Supreme Court. The decisions that have already been rendered clearly show, however, that the demand for reopening of the Government oil lands to lease and development at this time is unjustified. The advocates of uneconomical production have been defeated. Even if the Supreme Court should decide that the present law does not invest in the Chief Executive power to suspend development, Congress would no doubt change the statute so that the Government's oil lands may be preserved.

INCREASED POSTAGE RATES?

In his annual report Postmaster General Brown speaks particularly of the postal deficit, and recommends an increase in the first-class mail rate in the interest of balancing the budget. The gross operating deficit for the year ending June 30 last was $98,000,000. This may be compared with a gross operating deficit of $85,000,000 for the year preceding. Deducting certain extraordinary expenditures contributing to the deficiency of postal revenues, such as free services under the franking privilege and differentials in second-class rates favoring religious organizations, &c., and making allowances for obligations accrued but not paid at the end of the fiscal year, the amount by which revenues fell short of expenditures for strictly postal purposes, or the true postal deficit, amounted to $58,775,000 for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1930, as compared with $56,865,000 for the preceding year, an increase of almost $2,000,000. "This mounting deficit," says the Postmaster General, "should be a matter of concern to every citizen."

Mr. Brown contends "that the Postoffice Department should conduct its strictly postal operations without financial loss; that its rates of charge to the public should be so adjusted as to provide an income sufficient in the aggregate to pay the cost of all its strictly postal service." It is no more logical to expect the Government to transport and deliver private mail for less than cost, he says, than it would be to ask a telegraph or telephone company to furnish communication service at less than cost. In recommending that the rate scale be revised, the Postmaster General admits that it is extremely difficult to determine which specific rates should be increased.

With respect to all its services except the carrying of letter mail, the postal service meets keen competition from railroads, steamship lines, express companies, banks, &c. A horizontal increase of postal rates and fees, says the Postmaster General, would unquestionably drive much of the present business to privately owned agencies. Hence, the recommendation is made that the rate of first-class mail be increased from 2 cents to 2½ cents per ounce or fraction thereof. The department estimates that this increase would produce additional revenue amounting to $55,000,000 annually, practically balancing the budget. Nominal revision of other fees would be depended upon to produce additional revenues of about $8,000,000 yearly.

There will be a great deal of opposition to increasing the rate for first-class mail, based largely upon the belief that the first-class service is not only paying its way but earning an annual profit, and also upon the contention that it is not good policy to establish a rate schedule under which the first-class service would bear the burden of supporting the other services. There is no evidence that Congress or the public is worried over the comparatively small postal deficit.

THE WORLD COURT

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The letter addressed to the President by 100 proponents of the world court is an uncandid document.

It tells the President that the United States is "amply protected in the protocols" which it asks him to submit to the Senate, and that prompt ratification "will be of great influence in building up good will and confidence among all nations." The signers of this letter knew that these protocols, overriding the Senate, do not divest the court of power to render, against the objection of the United States, advisory opinions binding nobody, touching questions in which the United States claims an interest. On the day when the United States, within its rights, must flout some advisory opinion, rendered against its objection, by a court of which we have improvidently made ourselves a member, are we likely thereby to grow good will and confidence abroad, or are we more likely to reap an increased harvest of perennial misunderstanding and hostility abroad, not to speak of dissension at home?

And who shall protect us from our protectors? The protocol of adherence itself raises new danger. If we enter the court by that door, we go straight toward a situation which no man, least of all the eminent proponents of the court, can say is within the court or outside, and every nation can see us inside or out to suit its purpose. Is there no danger in that? On January 5 Newton D. Baker told his audience in New York that under the terms of the protocol of adherence, in a deadlock over advisory opinions, the United States "is regarded or deemed as withdrawing from the court." Out, whether we want to be or not. On the same day Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, told his hearers in Philadelphia that in such case "we may then withdraw." Not out, unless we want to be, and take ourselves out. The protocol itself says that in the same case "the exercise of power of withdrawal * * * will follow naturally," whatever that does mean.

The letter further tells the President that these protocols "conform to the policies of your predecessors," from President McKinley down. The signers of this letter knew that the only world court conformable to the policy of any President, President Wilson excepted, was that described by none other than Mr. Root. (Parenthetically, it is not necessary to assume that Mr. Root acknowledges the paternity of all that is fathered upon his name which he has not publicly disowned. The Root formula, so called, is what it had become by the time Nicholas Politis was through with it—who announced that the Senate's fifth reservation would never do because it "encroaches upon the very precise machinery already provided by the League of Nations with regard to the operation of the world court, and the league can not be expected to change that machinery.") In his instructions to our delegates to The Hague in 1907, which were commended to President Coolidge by Mr. Hughes in 1923, Mr. Root "emphasized the importance," says Mr. Hughes, of a "tribunal in conformity with accepted judicial standards." What Mr. Root thus emphasized the importance of was, more particularly and in his own language, "a permanent tribunal composed of judges who are judicial officers and nothing else * * * who will devote their entire time to the trial and decision of international causes by judicial methods and under a sense of judicial responsibility." The italics are the writer's.

The court into which these protocols would introduce us does not devote its entire time, or even most of its time, to the decision of causes, but to the writing of advisory opinions which decide nothing. How often have we been told that the advisory opinions of the court have been more important than its judgments? Consider a court, upon request of the league, furnishing it as its attorney with opinions which later it may have to pass upon as judge! It is Gilbertian.

American proponents of the world court, of all ranks, have not been conspicuous for candor. The national committee for the world court, whose executive officer transmits this letter to the President, signalized the day of its birth by proclaiming that "the reservations made by the Senate have been accepted by the signatory nations." The American peace award and a leading metropolitan journal together gave the widest publicity in their power to the statement that "the new protocol accepts the five reservations which the Senate attached to the resolution providing for your adherence to the court (the fifth relating to advisory opinions along with the rest) exactly as they were formulated by the Senate," and to the further statement that "so long as the United States is a member of the court, no advisory opinion can be given over our objection." The casual reader fares poorly at the hands of the Secretary of State, who makes bold to say that "the objections which caused the Senate's reservations have been met."

Mr. Hughes returns from his seat upon the court to paint for the Association of the Bar of the City of New York a picture of the court at its minor work of rendering judgments, not concealing his own zest in that work. He painted no picture of the court at its major work of writing advisory opinions nor betrayed any relish for its performance, alluding to advisory opinions only to say that he had already dealt with them in his address before the American Society of International Law, where, in turn, it will be remembered, it was only to remark that, having no binding effect, it is their moral weight "that may be deemed important," and that they "are a time-honored practice in some of our older States," not stopping to say whether it is a time-honored practice in those States to render advisory opinions against the objection of those claiming an interest in the questions they touch.

Mr. Hughes has little to confide to his fellow citizens of his private sentiments respecting advisory opinions. Unless impressions formed in his classroom more than 40 years ago, confirmed by attentive observation of his subsequent career and by his present reticence, are strangely at fault, Mr. Hughes spits upon advisory opinions regarded as a function of courts of justice.

And Well We Know It!

Medals Are the Reward of Those Who Stand Where the Spotlight Shines.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

FOOTBALL serves better than any other American institution to illustrate the unfairness of history and the stupid injuctice of hero worshipers.

Frenzied partisans shout themselves hoarse in praise of the youth who carries the ball. Newspaper headlines glorify him. Columns of type drip adjectives to embellish the story of his agility, his fleetness, his wit, his stamina.

Is it so difficult to carry a ball? Isn't it, in fact, a simple business if the field is clear of obstructions?

True, there are obstructions; but other players remove these from the path of the ball-carrier. They open a way through which he moves free of interference, as police clear the street for a parade. When his path is swept clean, the ball-carrier moves forward. Where the path is blocked, there he stops. If the path leads him into an open field, one or more men run beside him to insure his safety and bring down the last guards who block his way to the goal.

Not one step could he advance without the ten who sacrifice themselves to build his glory. Alone he would be as helpless as the old lady who waits for an officer to pilot her across the street.

Yet he is the hero of the day. The cheers and the headlines are all for him. Magnificent youth! He carried a little ball across a few yards of open turf!

It is the immemorial method of making heroes.

Never yet has there been a battle of any consequence in which men were not slain needlessly because of the blunders and limitations of their commander.

A general plans, but chance and the courage of individual soldiers determine the result. A battle gets out-of-hand. There are endless surprises. Men are thrown against positions that can not be won by frontal attack. The general experiments, making new plans as the original ones fail. In the smoke and dust and roaring confusion of battle, men become lost from their divisions. Groups of men battle here and there, without instruction. The general doesn't know what is happening. Captains and corporals lead advances or retreats of which the general has no knowledge. Privates, bloody and berserk, win the battle with clubbed guns.

The general gets the glory. Nothing is said of the men he wasted—of his plans gone awry—of victory achieved despite his blunders. He is the hero because he carried the ball.

Followers make a great leader.

A President is great because he happens to be in office while others make the land prosperous.

But the people see only the ball-carrier. They never cheer for his interference, for that would require thinking and cheers are prompted only by emotion.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE LONG LAST LAP.

The distance runner jogged along
At fixed and steady pace.
He stayed, unnoticed by the throng,
In sixth or seventh place.

One faltered when the mile was done,
Too swift a pace he'd made.
The cheers which are too quickly won
As suddenly may fade.

A brilliant rival passed him by
At half the struggle's length.
To match him there 'twas vain to try.
Instead he saved his strength.

Fifth place, to fourth place, then to third
He moved at even gait.
Though cries for greater speed he heard,
He calmly chose to wait.

But when the last long lap began,
With mighty speed and power
He passed his rivals to a man—
The hero of the hour.

Some burn their strength for early cheers;
Some make a brilliant start,
But when that last long lap appears,
As failures they depart.

Some quickly squander all they gain,
Some think their strength will hold,
And some forget that grief and pain
Must follow when they're old.

Not now is victory written down,
Not now is glory won.
Who would make sure of earths' renown
Life's long last lap must run.

PRO AND CON

Various Aspects of Political Issues Discussed by the Press.

Don't Worry, They Know It.

(Indianapolis Star.)

Most of the country's leading wets act as if intending to let the drys know they have been in a battle.

The Bloc System.

Syracuse Post-Standard.

A few fifty-fifty elections like the recent one may give Congress a start toward the "bloc" system which troubles the proceedings of some European parliaments. For the country it is far better at all times to have one party or another have a clear majority and mandate. That is the way of effectiveness.

Registration of Lobbyists.

(Philadelphia Public Ledger.)

Chairman Caraway of the Senate lobby investigating committee says he will shortly present its final report and will then ask for action on his bill for the registraton of lobbyists. This measure, which has been before Congress for several sessions, is designed to place a check on the activities of these lobbyists who are taking money under the false pretense of being able to influence legislation. Since so many individuals and associations seem to want to be fooled, no law can entirely do away with these pests who infest Washington. But at least there would be some official record of what they are doing and of the sources contributing to their support.

Add Definitions.

(Boston Globe.)

A lame duck at present might be defined as a Republican congressman who has tripped over a Democrat.

Get Together, Boys!

Detroit Free Press.

A little of that spirit of amity and mutual concession displayed by leading Democrats and Republicans would make leading prohibitionists and moderationists equally appear to better advantage.

Cooperation? Nothing Doing!

Philadelphia Ledger.

Paradoxically, the indications for war have been increasing ever since the seven Democratic leaders issued their celebrated pledge of peace. The reaction among members of their own party showed a widespread disposition to repudiate these self-constituted spokesmen. It discloses a deep-seated determination to reap the fruits of victory at the earliest possible moment. It now appears that it might have been better if those Democrats had not attempted to create a spirit of cooperation and good will where in the political nature of things they could not exist. The net effect of their well-meant declaration seems to have been to stimulate the desire for partisan advantage and to stir up the professional objectors and obstructors within their party.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Canada Closes Big Breweries for Violation of Law—A Tip to the Crime Commission.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In an obscure corner of today's San Francisco Examiner appeared the following article:

"Windsor, Ont., Nov. 24.—Two of the largest breweries in Ontario were closed this afternoon by an order of the government following convictions of their owners for selling beer to persons who did not have permits. Those closed were the Walkerville brewery at Walkerville, which is said to be the largest in Canada, and the Hofer brewery at LaSalle."

This article occupied a scant two-inch single column space. By right it should cover the whole front page of every leading newspaper in the United States, for it is the answer, and the only answer, to our wave of crime of every character in this country. Try to imagine the United States, practicing government control, closing up Anheuser-Busch, of St. Louis, or Pabst, of Milwaukee, for like offense! (Please don't smile.)

Mr. Hoover's crime commission, now that it is functioning, may perhaps make a close study of law enforcement in Canada. It might do some good if they would do so, not only as to liquor violations, but how they handle hit-runners, drunks, murderers, bank-robbers, or what have you. Then they might return to the United States and ascertain what is wrong with our courts, not our laws.

Out here in California our Mr. Burbank removed the spines from cacti to make them more edible. It looks like somebody (perhaps the racketeer), has been going around the United States removing the spines from some of our jurists to make them more gullible—maybe hypocritical is a better word.

Time to Quit Harping on Adversity—Whatever Creates Work Will Help Prosperity.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I read with much interest the editorial "Getting Busy" that appeared November 26. I think the paragraph which refers to the suggestion made by the Mayor of Philadelphia hits the nail squarely on the head. The paragraph to which I refer is as follows:

"The Mayor of Philadelphia does not help matters by suggesting that everybody refrain from giving Christmas presents and devote holiday money to buying food for individuals. * * * Americans are linked together by chains of demand and supply. The effective method of helping the unfortunate is to give them work. They want employment, not free soup. If Christmas presents are bought this year as usual, tens of thousands of workers will receive benefits, and additional tens of thousands will obtain at least temporary employment. They will attend to their own food supply if they are employed, and the satisfaction of their wants will give work to additional tens of thousands."

It is evident that it is work and work alone that will bring conditions back to normalcy. Business is already beginning to pick up, which is a favorable indication of better times. In Gloversville and Johnstown, glove factories are working night shifts in order to fill orders. The woolen and cotton mills in New Hampshire have taken on a full force with prospects of steady work until the first of May at least. The output of electrical energy for the first nine months of this year throughout the country was 3 per cent higher than the corresponding nine months of 1929. Hotels have ordered a million and a half in new equipment and these are only a few indications to the general trend of normalcy. It is up to the public to make things better by doing something for themselves and not to keep harping about the hard times.

C. C. PARSONS.

Referendum on Prohibition Would Merely Make Greater Confusion, Says Mr. Williams.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: What I would like to know is how a prohibition referendum would make the political situation any easier for politicians and voters. What good would a referendum victory do for the wets or for the drys anyhow? What good would even a landslide do? It would only make the mix-up more obfuscating in fact, and the political pot would boil and bubble harder yet. What I mean is that when it was narrowed down to a real live vote for President millions of voters would forget the referendum child's play in favor of questions which they might consider more important than that of booze.

If the referendum is in any way apt to make politics less of a free-for-all, why not apply it to the tariff question? Why not to Government ownership? Why not have the millennium by straightening out the kinks in all our big and little issues with the referendum?

PARKER WILLIAMS.

Another Veteran Appeals to Congress to Redeem Certificates in This Time of Need.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It has been rumored that a few "dictators" of great finance who never shouldered a gun—never suffered or ever wanted for the luxuries of life—are voicing their disapproval of granting the World War veterans' request for immediate payment of their certificates.

The immediate and fair exchange of goods is the only remedy for the present depression.

We are holding the (time) certificates with honor, but the exchange is left with the honor of the Government, and now is the time—the needed time. Which is more important—the voice of the millions representing honorably discharged soldiers and their posterity, or the voices of a few high-powered dictators? Let Congress lay aside politics and decide.

While the argument hinders immediate action those who have secured small loans with their certificates are paying a dear price at 6 per cent.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Society Sees Congress Begin Winter Session

New Senators' Wives Are Conspicuous in Galleries.

POLITICALLY-MINDED, society absorbed its first lesson of the congressional season yesterday at the opening of the Senate and House in the Seventy-first Congress. Everywhere in the corridors, half an hour before the Vice President in the Senate and Speaker Longworth in the House banged their gavels, smart women, even more smartly gowned, buzzed about for a few moments' conversation before entering the "family galleries."

The Senate or the House—that was the question.

Whether to rush to the gallery of the august upper house to watch the reaction of several new "senatorial" women—Mrs. Smoot, Mrs. La Follette, Mrs. Williamson—to the floor proceedings in which their husbands now will take part, or to hurry to the House, there to note Mrs. Longworth's glances toward Mrs. Garner, or vice versa—what to do?

For Mrs. Longworth is back, after lingering rather long in Cincinnati. Looking very chic in a brown cloth suit and a matching hat which might be described as interesting—with a flat bow of grosgrain on its high crown—the Speaker's wife was there, without Paulina, but with Mrs. James F. Curtis, in black.

Over in the Senate gallery Mrs. Gann was in her seat, looking lovely in a black costume, her black hat edged with a tiny nose veil, which added the last touch of smartness. Mrs. William De Witt Mitchell was there, in black, her coat one of the new models with chinchilla collar and cuffs.

Mrs. Williamson, wife of the new senator from Kentucky, entered the gallery quite early; Mrs. Smoot and Mrs. LaFollette, brides of the Senate, came, too, the former in a seal coat with mink and Mrs. LaFollette in brown. Mrs. Morrow, also a welcome new lady to the Senate group, was not there and probably will not reach Washington until today or tomorrow. Also absent was Mrs. James J. Davis, wife of the senator-elect from Pennsylvania.

A swift glance over the crowded Senate seats revealed also Mrs. John G. Blaine, Mrs. Henrik Shipstead, Mrs. Thomas D. Schall, Mrs. John B. Kendrick, Mrs. Porter H. Dale, Mrs. Frederick H. Gillett, Mrs. David A. Reed, Mrs. Thomas Gore, Mrs. Tasker L. Oddie, Mrs. William J. Harris, who had with her, her niece, Miss Julia Wheeler Buck, and Mrs. Alben W. Barkley in a costume of green cloth, and Mrs. Fred DuBois, wife of the late senator from Idaho.

On the House side, buzzing with activity and everybody greeting everybody else, a tiny girl held the focus of attention at least of a great many visitors. She was Ruth Elizabeth McCormick, small daughter of Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, representative from Illinois, who seemed to get a thrill out of the exciting hour, later joining her mother for luncheon.

Also in the "family gallery" were noted Mrs. Carl G. Bachmann, wife of the representative from West Virginia, costumed in cocoa brown with beige accessories; Mrs. Homer Hoch, of Kansas; Mrs. Jeff Busby, of Mississippi; Mrs. J. Charles Linthicum, of Maryland; Miss Mary Cross, daughter of Representative Cross, of Texas; Miss Helen Poole, also of Texas, the two girls among the few members of the younger set there yesterday.

It is a race this week between the official group and the debutante set. With the President and Mrs. Hoover entertaining at dinner tonight for the Cabinet group and receiving on Thursday night at the first reception of the year, when the Diplomatic Corps will be the guests of honor; with the Cabinet ladies "at homes" tomorrow and the Congressional Club flinging wide its doors on Friday, there seems a crowded week ahead, and there are the debutantes claiming their share of time, too.

A few senatorial daughters and young people of the House were "running" about yesterday, but, like the members of the Diplomatic Corps, they were conspicuously absent. The Minister of Denmark, Mr. Constantin Brun, arriving early, upheld for awhile the attendance of the foreign envoys in the gallery set aside for them.

Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur, wife of the Secretary of the Interior, will be at home tomorrow afternoon in her apartment at the Mayflower and will also receive again on Wednesday, December 10.

The Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Ernest Lee Jahncke were at home yesterday at the Mayflower to officers of the United States Navy on duty in Washington. Mrs Jahncke was assisted at the tea table by Mrs. William V. Pratt, wife of Admiral Pratt, U. S. N., chief of naval operations; Mrs. Ben H Fuller, wife of Maj. Gen. Fuller, commandant of the Mark L. Eristol, Mrs. Frank B. United States Marine Corps; Mrs. Upham, Mrs. David F. Sellers, Mrs. Ridley McLean, Mrs William D. Leahy and Mrs. George H Rock.

The Minister of Jugoslavia, Dr. Leonide Pitamic, entertained at a reception yesterday afternoon at the legation. The occasion marked the anniversary of the unification of Jugoslavia and the only guests were the members of the Jugoslav colony in Washington.

Mrs. Gertrude E. McKnew, who is visiting her sister, Mrs. John Edward Hope, of Montgomery, Ala., spent a few days in Birmingham with her niece, Miss Susan Randolph, and attended the Alabama-Georgia football game on Thanksgiving Day.

Distinguished patronage during several years past has made a notable social event of the Christmas sale of work produced by the patients of Walter Reed General Hospital. Last year Mrs. Hoover lent distinction to the gathering that inspected the silverwork, basketry, pottery, weaving, jewelry, wood carvings, leather and metal work and other objects of art and utility made by former service men. The annual sale will be held today, from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m., in the basement of the main building, Walter Reed General Hospital.

Miss Claire Smith To Wed Mr. Samuel Swift.

An engagement of interest to Washington is that of Miss Claire Mantle Smith, of New York, to Mr. Samuel Swift, also of New York. Miss Smith is the daughter of Mrs. Thomas E. Smith and the late Mr. Smith, one-time member of Congress, and has many friends in Washington, made during her father's terms here and also during her visits to Justice and Mrs. Peyton Gordon in recent years.

Mrs. Drought will arrive in Washington early in December and will stay at the Mayflower.

As a representative of the City of San Antonio, Mrs. Drought will present these invitations to the dedication of the near two century old Spanish Governor's Palace, recently restored by the city of San Antonio, to President and Mrs. Hoover and the Spanish Ambassador and Senora de Padilla. She will have invitations sent through the State Department to King Alfonso and Queen Victoria of Spain and to President and Mrs. Rubio of Mexico, requesting each government to send representatives to the dedication.

this Christmas

If you totalled up all the amounts you spend on odds and ends at Christmas-time giving presents to the various members of the family, you will find that you ordinarily spend more than enough to make a down payment on a General Electric FULL RANGE Radio. Why not combine the family present into one great big splendid gift this Christmas?

A General Electric Radio will give to each member of your family more genuine enjoyment and pleasure, not only at Christmas-time but throughout the year, than they could possibly get from the ordinary Christmas present. Just think of the thrill they will get when the FULL RANGE Sensitivity of the General Electric Radio brings them in stations and programs that they have been unable to get before. How glad they will be to find that overlapping between stations has been banished by FULL RANGE Selectivity and don't forget that each program will take on added beauty as a result of the life-like tone fidelity with extra richness and greater musical quality of FULL RANGE Tone.

To help you decide this question, go to your local G-E Radio Dealer. Ask him to give you a complete demonstration of FULL RANGE Radio, then examine the cabinets and discuss the whole matter with him. You will be surprised for how little you can give this wonderful gift.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"SAGITTARIUS."

IF December 2 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:30 a. m. to 9 a. m. and from 4 p. m. to 6 p. m. The danger periods are from noon to 1 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to midnight.

The personal, intimate part of your life will be adversely affected by planetary influences on this date. It is, however, a propitious time for journeys and new business ventures. Do not take health risks!

Children born on this December 2 will have aggressive natures and considerable "push" to them. They will learn very easily, and could, if they desired, be leaders in their school work. They will be able to do both manual and brain work well.

You are an ambitious person, but you are an impatient one, and you are seldom willing to wait for your successes. You are not a loving, tedious worker, every move pondered to its end, but an erratic and a hurried one. It is only when you are sure of your path that you can safely quicken your pace, and you do not always heed this principle. Where drastic action and unrestrained efforts are required you are an efficient being. You jump at your enemies, never creep up on them.

If you be a man, you are a typical dollar-chaser and fame-hunter. Your gods are material ones. If you be a woman, you are not an effeminate type. You have a man's sense of sportsmanship and a man's head for business. Tea parties, gossip chats and light fiction bore you. You are interested with affairs of the world, politics, economics, history and biographies. From preference, you choose the friendship of those of the opposite sex. Both men and women born on a December 2 have a keen sense of justice, and, although always playing a hard game, it is a fair and straight one.

Sexually you are not romantic, although you have a love of adventure. Your moral reputation will always be an untainted one, and you will make a steady husband or a faithful wife, as the case may be.

Successful people born December 2:

Richard Montgomery—Soldier.

Paul Shearer Althouse—Operatic tenor.

Mary Mortimer—Educator.

Franklin L. Pope—Electrician.

Erastus Wells—Merchant and promoter.

John Breckenridge—Kentucky statesman.

Dare Interprets the Mode

This charming frock of black chiffon with tiny gray dots in "petit pois" formation has a bertha effect. The wide three-quarter sleeves, bertha and skirt are banded in plain black chiffon. (Courtesy of Philippe et Gaston, Paris.)

New York, Dec. 1.

THE august makers of motor cars have finally realized that outer beauty as well as inner perfection make a good car twice as appealing to the eyes of the average customer. Accordingly the makers of one of America's most beautiful and expensive cars have settled right down to business this year, and are offering their models in beautiful colors, colors really planned and thought out, not just painted on to be different.

A chalcedony blue with beige trimming a dull brown body, are two-exact shade of copper vitriol trimming a dull brown body, are two-color combinations to be seen. Another is the exact color of the African love bird, a bright apple green with a startling red stripe, while still another is patterned after the brown and scarlet of the cedar waxwing, a bird with an interesting reputation—that of going on sprees with the assistance of sour cherries and grapes in the place of bootleg gin.

And then there is the emerald green car, the exact color of copper ore, with its gray trimming, and another in two-toned gray resembling a striated piece of agate.

No mere fashionable blending of colors this! From the bowels of the earth to the treetops, nature offered her own color schemes to the shrewd eyes of this automobile firm, with almost indescribably beautiful results. And lovely ladies are once more justified!

• • • • •

A Radiator cover! O-o-o-h, how perfectly marvelous to have something to cover up that old eyesore! 'N' when you consider that it's made of crystal beads that are so deservedly popular this season, I'll bet you just rush that stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post. I have told you how to make ever so many other lovely crystal things in this same leaflet, too. Hurry—we haven't so many of them left, and there isn't so much time left before Christmas, and I just know you'll want to make up millions of crystal gifts!

• • • • •

A typical Philippe et Gaston contradiction to the story about Paris models being extreme—is one of the reasons why I have sketched their black chiffon model today. On the black chiffon are light gray velvet "petits pois," and the effect of the cape is one of a bertha collar which one can see at a glance is not removable.

And then, not to be monotonous, bands of plain black chiffon decorate the edges of the collar, graceful sleeves, and hem of the dress.

• • • • •

The tiny muff is fashionable for these nippy days! And very gay little affairs they are, giving their brave little laugh to snow and sleet. Always they match something, maybe the coat in fabric, maybe the hat in fur, or, yes, felt, and even go so far as to match the trimming on a smart shoe.

Nor does Miladi have to give another thought to her pocketbook when the modern muff has either a purse arrangement or a vanity case built right into it as it were.

• • • • •

Speaking about the velvet bonnets worn with velvet dresses and fur jacquettes that I mentioned to you yesterday, they are often of two different colors of velvet, the lighter shade matching the dress, and the darker shade the fur jaquette.

• • • • •

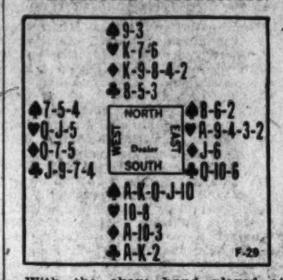
WORK ON BRIDGE

A NEGLECTED OPPORTUNITY.



With the above hand played at contract bridge, South would bid three Spades and North, on the strength of his two Kings, would bid four; normal support is not needed to help a three-bid.

At auction South would bid one Spade and doubtless would obtain the contract at that declaration. If North should feel obliged to bid two Diamonds in order to deny Souths Spades South would bid two Spades.

When the hand was played West's opening lead was from his only four-card suit—Clubs. South won East's Queen with the King and led three rounds of trumps. He then led three rounds of Diamonds, West winning the third, and it mattered not whether West continued the Clubs or led the Queen of Hearts, as South would be obliged in either case to lose one Club and two Hearts and consequently would fail to go game, having previously lost one Diamond.

THE CORRECT PLAY.

South could have avoided his catastrophe. After taking out all the adverse trumps he should have led a small Diamond from his own hand and, when West played small, have played the Eight from Dummy. East would have won this with the Jack and then would have returned a Club which South would have won and, obtaining two Hearts discards on dummys established Diamonds, would have made five-odd, losing only one Club. If East had led the Ace and another Heart up to dummy's King the result would have been the same.

GOOD NEWS, BRIDGERS.

We are pleased to announce we can now renew the offer of Milton C. Work's great contract and auction booklet entitled the "Playing Problems." Bridgers who received copies from previous offers are most enthusiastic over it.

"Playing Problems" presents eighteen hands, the complete auction and contract bidding for each hand, with reasons for each bid, the answers to every question and the reason for each answer in complete detail.

"Playing Problems," which will be of much greater value to the auction and contract player than many high-priced textbooks, is not for sale. It has been prepared exclusively for readers of The Washington Post by special arrangement with Mr. Work. One copy will be mailed to you upon request if you send self-addressed, stamped return envelope, together with six cents to defray part of the cost of printing and handling this 48-page booklet. Requests not complying with these conditions will be ignored. Address Milton C. Work, care The Washington Post.

Indoor and Outdoor Gardens

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

INCLOSED please find a bit of creeping weed which is rapidly ruining my grass plot. Please tell me how to eradicate it.

MRS. W. D. B.

The branch you inclosed was a weed known as Wandering Jew. You can purchase a commercial "weed eradicator" or you can pour some gasoline over the roots. If you use the latter, remember that it kills grass as well as weeds. See that it touches only the weed and not the grass. When the weed is dead uproot it and sow grass seed.

Please tell me when to transplant an amaryllis that has just finished blooming. Each year the number of blooms decrease and, as it is quite old, I feel sure it must be potbound. Also, tell me what to do for mildew on rosebushes. It is very late, do you suppose they should be given some attention now or would you advise me to wait until spring? Do you know the name of the vine a sprig of which I am inclosing? MRS. G. W. B.

You may transplant your amaryllis at this time. Before doing so, however, send a stamped envelope requesting me to send to you a circular we have prepared for readers on the care of this plant. Better spray your roses with Bordeaux mixture at this time and again before growth starts in the early spring. I am sorry, but it is impossible to identify the specimen you inclosed.

Please tell me if it is possible to grow Easter lilies in water as you do narcissus? My home is in Jacksonvilla, Fla. If this is possible in the South, when shall I start the bulbs?

MRS. D. Y. W.

Easter lilies do as well in the South as they do in the North, but they can not be grown successfully in water.

Please tell me where I can purchase seed of the inclosed flower.

MRS. N. E. S.

I am sorry, but it is impossible to publish names and addresses in this column. If you care to write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I shall be glad to tell you the names of several firms listing lantana seed. You can find it listed in any catalogue.

Please tell me what to do with house plants that have been in a box all summer. Also, the name and necessary care of the plants of which I am inclosing a leaf. MRS. E. T.

It all depends on the variety of plants you have, whether it is practical to take them into the house for the winter. Summer annuals that have been blooming in the open all summer are of no further use and should be discarded. Palms and other foliage plants can be posted in good soil and brought indoors. Your coleus, of which you inclosed a leaf, if cut back and potted in sandy soil, may continue to live in the house if kept in a sunny place. Your particular variety of coleus will live in water. Merely cut off the terminal shoots and place them in water. The container should be of glass in order to give the sun an opportunity to reach the roots.

Recently I purchased a rubber plant in a 4-inch pot. It is a small plant with only six leaves. Do you advise transplanting it at once? Also, please tell me something of the care of this plant. MRS. L. V.

Florists usually sell plants in pots large enough for at least eight months, so I would not recommend transplanting until spring. Keep it in a warm, sunny place, where there is plenty of fresh air at all times. Water the plant every day and wash the leaves once each week with cold, soapy water.

(Copyright, 1930.)

All readers' questions on growing and care of indoor and outdoor flowers and floral decorations for social functions will be answered by Miss Kift, directly in this column if addressed in care of The Washington Post, or directly to readers if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is supplied.

Prices realized on Swift & Co. sales of carcass beef in Washington, D. C., for week ending Saturday, November 29, 1930, on shipments sold out ranged from 12.00 cents to 20.00 cents per pound and averaged 15.95 cents per pound.—Adv.

Guiding Your Child

By MRS. AGNES LYNE.

Gifted Child a Problem.

Children who are blessed with an extraordinarily good intellectual endowment have their own particular difficulties, especially during their early years.

Because the superior child is advanced in his mental processes the play interests of children of his own age bore him by their crudeness and lack of mental excitement. For this reason he often has difficulty in making friends and in finding wholesome play outlets.

He has his troubles with grown-ups, too. He is criticized because he acts his age.

A greater degree of self-control and maturity of judgment than that of which he is capable is expected of him.

These are qualities which demand more than mental acumen and which can only be acquired through living and through the slow inner growth of that complicated thing known as character.

Usually it is the parent who makes the mistake of expecting too high a level of behavior. Teachers are less likely to do so, since dealing with many children has taught them that all children of a given age tend to act more or less alike under similar circumstances. When a bright 6-year-old responds on a six-year level they feel that his behavior is quite what should be expected.

Sometimes a very bright child is rated as a behavior problem simply because he is so very bright.

His intelligence is always making him want to do things which for years will be out of the question merely because he is little and weak and lacking in a background of experience.

This discrepancy between what he knows and wants and what he is able to do is painful to him, causing him to live under constant strain, with resultant emotional storms when things become too much for him.

Jean's Santa Claus

By JULIE ANNE MOORE

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

JEAN MELBA, a small-town girl with big-city ideas, from Kelsey, Conn. She craves adventure and, a little girl at heart, wants Santa Claus to visit her this Christmas. Her small-town Romeo.

PHILLIP BALDWIN, hears the wish and promises to appear on Christmas with a marriage license. Spurning the line of least resistance by marrying him immediately, Jean decides to tackle New York and find a job there. Jean plans to live with

MOLLIE WILDER, a sophisticated friend, but upon arriving in the city learns that Mollie has married and left town. The situation is saved by

SANDY CLAUSE, a handsome, polished and enigmatical young man who not only protects her from a stranger's advances, but since she has lost her traveling bag, arranges for her to spend the night at the apartment of

MARCIA WHITE, whose quasi-hospitality does not blind Jean to the fact that Marcia's apartment is no haven of safety. Sandy leaves, but Jean's fears are indorsed by the sudden appearance of two sinister men,

SLIM DIGGERS and

FARGESON, the latter of whom is seen to violently embrace Marcia. Jean flees the apartment and, while leaving, observes Sandy returning. The next day he gets her a job with the I. P. P. Jean learns that Fargeson was murdered the night before in Marcia's apartment, and Sandy tells her he did not return, although she is sure she saw him. The I. P. P. is the Institute of Practical Philanthropy, which Sandy manages. It aims to fulfill the wish of an eccentric but benevolent millionaire to encourage motherhood. Ideals among little girls by giving them Christmas dolls, to be known as miniature babies. Jean learns that Mollie's marriage did not last long; her husband deserted her, so the two girls live together. In the meantime Sandy goes to Boston on business. Lionel Gilman, his assistant, makes love to Jean, and during the course of her new work she discovers Hillie

ELLEN, the daughter of Fargeson, the man who was murdered.

One night when Mollie is out late, and Jean is trying to sleep, she feels something soft and warm brushing against her cheek.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

Jean tried to scream, but something filled her throat and all but choked her. She wanted to leap out of bed and run to the door, but the shock had left her hopelessly weak and shaking. She could do nothing but lie there and stare wide-eyed into the darkness.

Some one was standing by the bed. She knew it now as certainly as though she had seen with her own eyes. And presently she was able to distinguish between her own breathing and that of the unknown waiting there in the blackness—waiting. * * * waiting * * * for * * * what * * *?

And then, when she felt that she would die of sheer fright, she heard a soft whisper close to her ear * * * soft and eager:

"Mollie * * *"

The familiar name, inexplicable in itself, was to Jean like a breath of fresh air to one suffocating. Whatever else it might mean under the circumstances, it told her that whoever stood invisible beside her had not expected to find her there. It was not Diggers, nor Marcia's detective, nor Marcia herself * * * but some one looking for Mollie.

Slowly her strength returned, and when the voice whispered again, "Mollie * * * Mollie, dear, * * *" she suddenly rolled to the opposite side of the bed, got to her feet and demanded, nervously, "Who are you * * * ?"

There was a sharp, "Oh * * *!" Not a whisper this time, but a man's voice, abrupt and startled. "I * * * I'm sorry * * *"

Still badly frightened, Jean sank to the floor, and rested her head against the bed.

She heard the door open, then close, quietly. That was all. It was enough.

The truth had come to Jean in a rush. * * * Mollie's husband * * * ! Obviously he had learned where she lived and had come to her.

Weakly, Jean got back into bed, conscious only of a deep sense of gratitude. If it had been Diggers * * *

CHAPTER XIV.

Nineteen working days to Christmas * * * and every day a year. * * * Had a terrible fright last night. * * * Can't put it in writing, but in five minutes I must have lost ten pounds. * * * I can't stand much more of this suspense. * * * It is driving me crazy. * * * Why didn't I marry Phil? * * * And yet I shouldn't have married him if I didn't love him. * * * I thought I did. * * * I don't know even now that I didn't. * * * But what about Lionel? * * * Phil's kisses were not like Lionel's. * * * Lionel doesn't ask. * * * He takes, and I can't stop him. * * * Worse, I wouldn't if I could. * * * I was awake when Mollie came home last night, but I pretended I was asleep. * * * I didn't know whether to tell her about what had happened to me or not. * * * I started to tell her this morning, but didn't have the courage. * * * What would she have done had she been here? I'm going to the office today, Marcia or no Marcia. * * * I can't work here. * * * And, besides, it isn't good for me to stay in all day. * * * I grow morbid, and afraid. * * * Why doesn't Sandy hurry back * * * It doesn't seem fair to get me into all this mess and then go off and leave me alone * * * * * * * * *

Lionel was plainly surprised when Jean walked into the office at 9 o'clock and announced that she would be there all day.

"But Sandy thought you shouldn't," he protested.

"I know," Jean agreed. "But if I'm to see this thing through, I can't sit in a dinky room miles away and know what's going on. Let Marcia come and make all the fuss she wants. I'm here and I mean to stay here during working hours until the job's done."

Lionel shrugged helplessly, and helped her off with her coat. "There's a letter marked personal on your desk," he told her. "Handwriting's familiar."

She saw the Boston postmark and knew at once that it was from Sandy. Eagerly she opened it and read:

"My dearest Jean: I am sure that by this time you have the Miniature Baby Plan well in hand and that before I return the babies will be going out to their little prospective mothers. What a splendid thing you are doing, and how well you are doing it! Getting out of New York for a few days gives me new perspective of many things. It seems nothing less than a miracle that I found you that night on Broadway. We had combed our organization for some one not alone competent to plan and direct the work but who could grasp the spirit of the idea. And then, as if guided by some unseen intelligence, you came. I shall never cease to be grateful to you for what you are doing, and I suspect that the culmination of your efforts will be your own greatest reward.

"For having involved you in the distressing affair at Marcia's I can never forgive myself. And you have been so magnificently sporting about it. I notice that the papers are giving less prominence to the investigation daily. Even the Courier, so intent upon forcing the hand of the district attorney and the police commissioner for political reasons a few days ago, seems to be losing hope. Very soon it will pass from their columns altogether, I hope, and we shall have peace.

"One thing I must tell you, Jean, even at the risk of having this letter fall into the wrong hands. Do you remember when you told me that you had seen me go back to the apartment the night F—— was murdered? I told you that I did not go back to the apartment. But that was evasion and unfair to you. You did see me, Jean. I passed through the lobby, as you told me, and went up the stairs. But I did not go back to the apartment. The day will come when I can explain all this to you. For the present you must have faith in me, and know that only reasons of the greatest importance force me to this secrecy. You saw me and you knew that you saw me; I could not let you go on any longer knowing that I had lied to you and thinking heaven knows what about me in consequence.

"The daddy of the Miniature Baby Plan, whom I am visiting, is highly elated with my report of your work and promises to come to New York to express his gratitude to you in person very soon, perhaps the first of next week. I have told him a great deal about you and he is anxious to see for himself.

"You may not understand this, Jean, but I have missed you more than I can tell you. The peculiar circumstances of our meeting and the further amazing circumstances that have held us together in our conspiracy of silence in the one direction and of service in the other make me feel that I have known you always, that I have always relied upon you, and turned to you in difficulty, and * * * But I'm getting in rather deep.

It will be almost impossible for me to leave here for another few days, but the moment I feel free to leave I expect to return to New York by air and not stop until I've found you and talked with you.

"Good-by and good luck until * * * Affectionately, your "Sandy Clause."

The last two paragraphs Jean reread once, twice, three times; and then with meticulous care she tore the letter into minute pieces and proceeded to distribute the remains in the several wastebaskets of the office.

So she had seen Sandy go back that night. * * * And yet, admitting what he had previously denied, he still insisted that he did not return to the apartment. Then where did he go? * * *

Despite its element of mystery, Jean had finished the letter in a glow of happiness. It gave her new courage, new strength, a greater sense of security. She was more eager than ever now to see the Miniature Baby Plan through to a successful end. Let the unknown philanthropist who had conceived and financed the plan come, if he chose. Sandy was pleased with what she had done, so why shouldn't he be as well?

But though she kept repeating to herself the more impersonal portions of the letter, it was not because of them that her heart sang so joyously. * * * "I have missed you more than I could tell you * * * make me feel that I have known you always * * * not stopped until I have found you and talked with you." * * * These were the excerpts that would not be put from her mind.

"He's like a brother," she thought, contentedly; "and it's perfectly clear in his letter that he looks upon me as a sister. * * * If he would only hurry back." * * *

The hall door opened and a middle-aged man, immaculately attired, entered. Jean glanced up, saw that Lionel was not at his desk, and offered her services to the visitor. She took it for granted that he wanted Sandy.

But he asked familiarly: "Is Lionel in?"

"He was here at his desk a moment ago," Jean told him. "He must have gone into one of the back offices. If you'll have a seat, I'll go call him."

"Thank you." He gave her a grateful smile and settled himself in a chair. Then, as she was walking away: "Pardon me, but * * * are you Lionel's wife?"

Jean's color rose noticeably. "Why * * * no," she stammered, embarrassed by his question. "I'm sorry. * * * No, no. * * * I mean I'm * * * not." Abruptly she turned and walked out of the room, burning under the soft chuckle from behind her. Who was he? Why had he asked such an outrageous question?

She had come to the little hallway that separated the general office from the stock room, when through the half-open door she saw Lionel standing in the shadow of a large cabinet, and, in his arms, Miss Trelling, Sandy's secretary.

With a stifled gasp, she stepped back quickly until they were no longer visible. Then, after a moment, she coughed, kicked her foot against the electric water cooler, and proceeded toward the stock room once more.

Miss Trelling, her face crimson, was pretending to arrange a pile of forms on a table by the cabinet, and Lionel was saying coolly: "And after that, Miss Trelling, will you take a look at the duplicating machine? The girls say it isn't feeding properly."

He turned to Jean in surprise. "Oh, hello. * * * Were you looking for me, Jean?"

Jean smiled sweetly. "A gentleman to see you," she announced formally. "I told him you would be out immediately; but he might wait if * * * you're busy."

Still smiling, she turned and went back to her desk.

Sweaters Are Featured By Amusing Patterns

Paris, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Sweaters, to be really new, must have amusing patterns crocheted or knitted into their main body.

Patterns take the form of outlines of collars, of yokes and of drop shoulders. Belts are knitted where outside belts would naturally go. Pockets are pictured in the pattern where they do not actually exist.

Black sweaters with an overmixture of some paler color like turquoise, rose or jade are among the newest.

Box Pleating Leads All Other Varieties

Paris, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Box pleating has outstripped pleating of any other variety in the current mode. Sport, tailored and afternoon dresses are box pleated by preference.

Some pleating is very narrow, held in place by multiple rows of machine stitching. Whole blouses and even dresses for afternoon wear are occasionally fashioned of finely pleated georgette.

Rainy Days Need Smart Touch.

New York, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Even rainy days have their fashions now and the woman who wants the "last word" in wet-weather togs chooses hers of white rubberized silk, closing with a zipper fastening up the front, so that she is locked in from the rain. A brimmed brown felt hat and leather heeled brown shoes complete a "brown and white" ensemble that is smart this fall.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Happy Though Married.

DEAR FRANCES McDONALD: All these crying wives make me tired. I gave up luxuries to marry the man I loved. Even went to work to help get started. Things make no difference if you find love. I know. I had everything that a spoiled child could want. There had always been money in the family. There had always been country places and trips abroad and private schools. Even when that money was lost in the stock market there remained enough to provide fur coats and other luxuries.

Well? I have been married for two years. Before marriage I had found a job and one that paid well. I kept it until my husband and I moved away from the city in which we had been living. I wanted him to leave that city because he did not like his work and because we both felt that he would have a better opportunity in another city. It meant one salary instead of two. But I had every intention of finding a job for myself to help out. Remember that we did not have a honeymoon and that he has not had a vacation in two years.

His present job pays less than the one he left, but there is a better opportunity for him here and he is better satisfied. My plans have been laid aside for a while, as there is to be a baby. We can save only a tiny sum out of his salary and all we can do is hope that the expenses will not be more than our small savings can take care of.

I do all my own work. No more evening gowns costing more than $100. We go to the movies once a week. I have not paid more than $25 for a dress since we were married. There is no more golf. No more saddle horses. No more monthly trips to New York.

I read in your column recently of a girl, Martha, who "wished she was dead" and wanted to leave her husband and go home and a lot of other rot all hysterical unwomanly and utterly unsporting talk. And why? Because times are dull and she can't have all the things she would like. She is through with marriage and all because her husband refuses to tear down the future which he is steadily building by selling out his investments.

Martha says, "I have thought of speaking to the owner of the business and asking him to buy out my husband's stock." That would be an insult and an outrage. A wife has absolutely no business meddling in such a matter. If she had the brains of a 10-year-old child she would see that this would be "cutting off her nose to spite her face," only it would be worse, as she would be cutting off her nose to spite her husband.

I'm sorry, but I have absolutely no sympathy for this Martha. Perhaps, if you should print this, it would do her good to see how small and mean she appears to other wives (I am sure that most wives who are trying to help their husband in their careers will agree with my views).

If she only realized that she is fortunate to have a husband who is using so much common sense and who is evidently so highly thought of by his employer, there would be some hope for her case, but until this realization can be drilled into her, she sounds quite hopeless. My sympathy is with her husband. Poor man! I hope he will succeed, despite the millstone around his neck! A WIFE.

Perhaps the wives who have written ought to know how ashamed Martha feels for her ill-nature, and how she thanks those who wrote to warn her that she would some day regret it if she failed her husband now. She declares she did not really believe "all the talk about hard times" until other wives wrote of keeping house on one-third and one-fifth of normal incomes. Then Martha began to take her husband's assurances as truth and not mere alibis. Most of the wives who leave their husbands do so under just such circumstances and spend the rest of their days regretting the unjust and unwise step.

YOUR NAME

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFERRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Norris" is found recorded in the earliest English documents. It may be traced back to two quite different sources. In most cases it is a variation of "Norreys." "Norreys" is of French and, ultimately, of Teutonic origin and means "the man from the North." In a few cases it appears to mean "the Norwegian." Another source of "Norris" is the old French "norrice," which means "the nurse." In such cases it was obviously the occupation of a woman which gave rise to the family name. The personal name, nickname or occupational name of a woman was often transferred to a family. This was especially true when she was supporting a family because of the death of the husband, or because the husband was not so well known or was not so good a provider as she was. A certain Thomas de Noreis is mentioned in the Hundred Rolls, and a Walter le Noreis is mentioned in an English register of the year 1813. "Norris" is frequently found in Ireland because families of this name settled there about the time of the Anglo-Norman invasion.

The family name "Nurse" (also spelled "Nourse") is merely a more modern form of either "Noreys" or "Norris," and therefore may mean "the man from the North," "the Norwegian," "the nurse" or "the foster-mother." A certain Thomas Nurse is mentioned in a fourteenth century list of English names.

The family name "Albright" is an Anglicized form of the German "Albrecht." "Albrecht" is a modern form of the original Germanic "Athalberaht." "Athalberaht" was an old personal name meaning "Nobly bright."

The personal name "Felix" is of Latin origin and means "happy."

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

NERVOUS HEART.

AURICULAR fibrillation is one of the nervous diseases of the heart—one of a group that were lumped together and not much known individually until the newer instruments for examining the heart became available. The use of these elaborate instruments has taught us much about this group of disorders. It has taught us that some are not as bad as we thought they were; their bark is worse than their bite. They frighten unnecessarily. Others are very important.

The nerve ganglia which act like electric jars to keep the heart muscle contracting and relaxing with regularity and precision are located within the heart wall up toward the base. The nerves which come to the heart from outside it supply impulses which put a brake on things.

Each set of nerves and each kind of nerve action has its work to do in keeping the heart muscle steadily on the job, adjusting its effort to the work to be done, adjusting the different parts of the heart to the other parts, and to other parts of the body.

The waves of impulses which shoot out from the nerve center or nodes in the heart can be compared to flashes of lightning or the flashes of light which we sometimes see in an Edison light when something has gone wrong and the current is not steady. These flashes of nerve force flow swiftly across the muscle of the auricle, the upper muscle, and then across the ventricle, the lower one. If the heart is beating normally the wave of muscle contraction can be seen to pass from the auricle to the ventricle. Normally, these nerve impulses shoot out about 70 times a minute at clock-like intervals.

There is a group of diseases in which this mechanism does not work in a clock-like fashion. Auricular fibrillation is one of these. In this condition, the auricle muscle fibers contract with great rapidity and irregularity. Meanwhile, the ventricle, the other muscle, is trying to beat regularly but is succeeding poorly. For the machine to work right these two must check, one right after the other. In consequence, the job of keeping the circulation normal is poorly done.

Auricular fibrillation is one form of nervous heart. It is a disorder of the heart nerves. Behind it sometimes lies a disease of the muscular or heart arteries, but not always. Just why the running gear of this clock gets out of rhythm is sometimes discoverable and sometimes not. Medicines to steady the heart are of great service in treatment.

In this disorder life may terminate suddenly, but that is not the rule. The rule is that people with auricular fibrillation live for years. As soon as they become accustomed to the heart irregularity they are reasonably comfortable. Life may be terminated eventually by reason of extension of the irregularity to the ventricle beat or by reason of some trouble elsewhere in the body.

MAY HAVE TO CONTINUE.

S. V. R. writes: My mother, past 80, thin and very active, has diabetes. She developed a great thirst. Some one told us that was a symptom of diabetes and examination showed that was her trouble. She had 3½ per cent sugar. Her weight dropped from 118 to 102 pounds. She is now on a carefully balanced diet and she takes insulin. She now weighs 115 pounds and feels well. Will she have to take insulin for the remainder of her life?

Hollywood Screen Life

By HUBBARD KEAVY.

Hollywood.—This unusual coincidence again proves that all the drama in Hollywood is not invented in story conferences:

MARILYN MARSH

Players were being selected for a film and among those tentatively chosen was Ferdinand Schumann-Heink, son of the opera singer. Actors were needed who were equally conversant with the English and German languages.

Schumann-Heink served in the American merchant marine and the United States field artillery during the war, but several years' residence in Germany have given him a command of that nation's tongue.

After learning that the story ("The Seas Beneath") was about submarine warfare, Schumann-Heink asked about his role.

As the actor read the manuscript he discovered that the part he was picked for is an almost exact counterpart of the fatal one his brother actually experienced during the war.

When Schumann-Heink's brother, August, enlisted in the German navy he was assigned to submarine duty, and was on the U-53, which came to this country in 1916, the actor relates.

Three months before the Armistice, August was aboard a new type of cruising submarine on a trial trip off the Belgian coast. Surprised by two American destroyers, the submarine was sunk and all in it were drowned.

Coincidence.

The climax of the film story is the sinking of a German sub by two American boats.

"Call it fate or coincidence, or whatever you will," Schumann-Heink told me, "but it is strange that I, of all actors in Hollywood, should be selected to duplicate my brother's career. The only difference is that I am not killed in the picture."

Assured that the choice had been made only because of his fitness for the role and with no knowledge of his family's history, Schumann-Heink accepted.

Newcomer.

Marilyn Marsh is a 17-year-old newcomer.

She was a student in the junior class of a Hollywood high school when given a small part. She is a gray-eyed blonde with that certain something, usually called "it," that indicates screen personality.

A "Medal of Honor" for the ONE you love best

A gift idea that's new this Christmas

How shrewdly they keep us from knowing—these wives and mothers of ours. They never show their disappointment when they unwrap some curious knick-knack on Christmas morning. Instead, they hide their tears and tell us it's just what they wanted.

But it's time to end this "error of judgment" and give them a real Christmas thrill for a change.

It's such an easy thing to do. The price of a few Christmas trinkets will put a Frigidaire in your home. And that's a gift that any wife or mother will be proud to show the neighbors.

And don't forget—the "Medal of Honor" Frigidaire is a real de luxe creation. Here is a cabinet of lustrous Porcelain-on-steel, inside and out. Here is the famous "Cold Control" for high-speed freezing of desserts. Here is the new Hydrator that keeps vegetables crisp and garden-fresh for days. Here is the patented Quickube Ice Tray that releases one or a dozen ice cubes at the touch of your fingers.

In short, it's the aristocrat of Christmas gifts—to be conferred on one who has more than earned this token of your esteem. Yet prices are lower than they've ever been before. And we offer such liberal Christmas terms that no one has the slightest excuse for holding back!

Why not drop into our Display Rooms today and let us help you set the stage for a Christmas thrill she'll never forget.

The "Medal of Honor" Frigidaire

Here is the beautiful sterling silver medallion or "Medal of Honor" that goes on the cabinet of all gift Frigidaires, at no extra charge. It is truly a medal of honor conferred on one who has more than earned this token of your esteem. And this medallion may be engraved with the name of the fortunate one who gets the Frigidaire, or with both her name and yours.

If you prefer, you can present the medallion alone (in a handsome velvet case) to your wife or mother on Christmas morning and let her select her own Frigidaire at her leisure, later on.

SERVICE TOMORROW FOR MOTHER JONES

Last Resting Place Will Be Beside Miners Killed in Virden Riot.

BODY WILL LIE IN STATE

Funeral arrangements for Mary "Mother" Jones, 100-year-old labor leader who died Sunday night, were announced yesterday by Mrs. Walter Burgess in whose home on Riggs road, near Silver Spring, Md., the stanch champion of workers' rights succumbed. The American Federation of Labor authorized Mrs. Burgess to make plans which ultimately will return the body to a last resting place beside three miners who were killed in the Virden, Ill., riots of 1898.

Requiem high mass will be said at St. Gabriel's Church, Illinois avenue and Webster street, at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, the Rev. William J. Sweeney officiating. From the church, the body will be removed to Thomas S. Sergeon's funeral parlor, remaining there until 8 o'clock that night when the remains will be placed in a special car of a train bound for Mount Olive, Ill., place of interment.

Those who will accompany the body Westward are Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Burgess, Edward Knockles, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor, who made the transportation arrangements; John Walker, of Chicago, president of the United Mine Workers of Illinois; William Howlin, representing William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Miss Emmeline Pitt, U. S. Commissioner of Labor in Pittsburgh. John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, will join the group in Chicago.

The body of "Mother" Jones will arrive at Mount Olive Friday, after a short stop at Virden, where tribute from her "boys" probably will be paid at the station.

Interment is not expected to take place before Monday, as the body will lie in state at Mount Olive for a period, and length of which has not yet been determined.

(Associated Press.)

Mary or "Mother" Jones, as she was known to union labor men and women all over the country, was for more than 60 years one of the most forceful and militant personalities with which capital and labor had to deal.

Wherever strikes and labor troubles were fiercest, there was "Mother" Jones in her little black bonnet and with her biting, eloquent tongue. She had the power to make them follow her, even sometimes against the dictates of higher-ups in the labor world.

She started out in the '70s championing the cause of the laborer, to secure for him better working and living conditions. Nothing stopped her or turned her back, whether it was militia or governors. Her activities were most spectacular in the mines of Colorado, the coal fields of West Virginia and the cotton mills of the South.

Saw Much Hardship.

Mother Jones saw plenty of hardship and trouble in her early years and the conflicts of the American working man appealed to her sympathies and her love of daring. She was born in Cork, Ireland, May 1, 1830. Her father, Richard Harris, an Irish agitator, came to America and obtained a job with a railroad construction crew in Toronto. His family soon joined him.

Mary's first experiences in the working world, which started soon after she finished common school, alternated between sewing and teaching. Her first teaching position was in a convent at Monroe, Mich. Then she opened a dressmaking shop in Chicago. "I preferred dressmaking to bossing little children," she said.

But she went back to teaching for a time in Memphis, Tenn., and in 1861 married a young iron-molder whom she met there. Just as she was enjoying domestic life with her husband and four children, the yellow fever epidemic in 1867 swept them all away.

Jobless Sent Her to Fight.

Trouble pursued her to Chicago where she went then to start another dressmaking shop. The great Chicago fire of 1871 made ashes of the silks and ribbons which the rebellious young Irish girl had been fashioning into gowns for Chicago's wealthy women.

It was the sght of hungry, jobless men that winter, tramping the freezing lake front which she could see through her window, which sent Mary Jones headlong into the labor movement. She decided to take an active part in aiding working people to better the conditions under which they lived and toiled.

Her first participation in a strike was in the 70's when employes of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad quit work. From then on her days were one stormy succession of dramatic events, additional supply is to be carried.

Jailed and Threatened.

She was jailed, threatened, deported from States and went through all manner of hardships. Whenever the message came, "The boys want you to help!" there went Mother Jones, sometimes carrying her belongings in a little black shawl. Asked once where her home was, she said, "Wherever there is a fight against oppression."

Mother Jones celebrated her 100th birthday at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Burgess, near Silver Spring, Md., with a big party. Telegrams from labor organizations came from all over the country, including one of congratulation from her old "enemy," John D. Rockefeller, jr.

Her great ambition was to live through her 100th birthday. On that day she was carried out into the sunshine under the apple trees while camera men, reporters and friends gathered around her. The only thing she balked at was having a big bunch of sweet peas pinned to her black silk dress. She thought it looked silly, but finally left the flowers there in honor of the festivity of the occasion.

Hotel Lawn Fight Probe Is Started

New Angles Are Sought by Attorney; Three Under Bond.

An investigation into the fight early Sunday morning on the Shoreham Hotel lawn was launched yesterday in Police Court by Assistant United States Attorney Michael F. Keough, who is seeking to reveal "undisclosed angles." Trial of the three persons under bond in connection with the alleged disorder is scheduled for December 9.

They are: Vernon G. Taylor, 27 years old, of Buchanan street northwest near Sixteenth street; John H. Davidson, of Sixteenth street northwest near Piney Branch road, and Lillian Davidson. Taylor is charged with disorderly conduct, while the Davidsons are charged with assault on a policeman.

Taylor, a former foreman of the District grand jury, was seriously injured by a nightstick wielded by a policeman, it was said. Taylor and the Davidsons were arrested following a melee on the hotel lawn, to which Policeman R. L. Hammann and W. H. Garner, of the Fourteenth Precinct, were called.

Auditor Given 4 Years On Embezzling Charge

Justice Peyton Gordon, in District Supreme Court yesterday, sentenced Edgar Jacobs, former auditor of the Paramount Publix Corporation, to serve four years in the penitentiary for embezzlement of funds from his late employers.

Officials of the corporation said Jacobs was responsible for a shortage of $70,000, but two indictments accused him of lesser thefts. Jacobs pleaded guilty to both indictments and made restitution of $8,000 and an automobile, according to the report of Probation Officer Steele. It was said that Jacobs, who is married and has two children, used the money in stock speculations. He worked for the company nine years. His home is at 3501 Rittenhouse street northwest.

MAUDE ADAMS QUIET ON RETURN TO STAGE

BACK FROM TRIP ABROAD

New York, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Maude Adams, whose public never has forgotten her although she has been in retirement a dozen years, returned from England on the liner Adriatic today, as elusive as ever.

She was traveling under a name by which few would be likely to recognize her but which, as a matter of fact, is her own—"Miss M. A. Kiskadden."

And while she had a friendly smile for reporters, she would talk to none of them save through a third person.

When Herbert L. Satterlee, former Assistant Secretary of the Navy and brother-in-law of J. Pierpont Morgan, asked her on behalf of the press if it was true that she is to return to the stage she referred them to the office of the late A. L. Erlanger.

Not to Play in "Peter Pan."

Asked if she might come back as "Peter Pan" she replied emphatically: "Absolutely not."

Because her retirement has been so complete and because as a reigning star she lived so secluded a life, Miss Adams has kept her hold on a public that ordinarily so soon forgets a favorite actress.

In the days when Maude Adams was America's first actress few ever saw her outside the theater. Admirers were not welcomed in her dressing room, she never dined in public, never gave interviews, hardly anybody ever knew what she looked like out of make-up. She became an almost legendary figure.

Usually Sits in Balcony.

Since her retirement she had gone about New York, seldom recognized. When she goes to the theater she usually sits in the balcony. She never goes backstage.

As "Miss Kiskadden" she traveled to England aboard the Adriatic on the liner's last trip over. No one recognized her. Coming back somebody saw the name "Kiskadden" on the passenger list and remembered that it was the family name of Maude Adams.

It has been announced that she will return to the theater shortly in a play by John Colton, coauthor of "Rain."

Knights of Columbus Scholarships Praised

Praise for the Knights of Columbus scholarships at Catholic University was given last night by Arthur J. Harriman, a present holder of one of the fellowships, in an address before the Washington General Assembly, Fourth Degree, of the Knights of Columbus, in the Hotel Mayflower.

Mr. Harriman's address followed a business meeting when plans for the exemplification of the fourth degree on Washington's Birthday were presented by J. Eugene Gallery, the faithful master. John Paul Jones offered a program of songs, accompanied on the piano by Frank William Young, announcer for WMAL.

STATUS OF DOMINION FOR BURMA PLANNED

Only One Protest Heard as Program Is Advanced at Indian Session.

RANK IS HELD ANOMALY

London, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Another British dominion is in the chrysalis stage, as an outgrowth of agreement of the Indian round-table conference today, on the principle of the separation of Burma from India.

The picturesque U Ba Pe, one of the Burmese delegates to the conference, presented Burma's case before round-table members, in full assembly at St. James Palace. With the exception of a warning from an Indian delegate, the general support of the conference was given to Burma's demand for political self-determination such as India herself is seeking.

This warning came from Cy Chintamini, prominent Indian Liberal, who said the Burmese might be playing into the hands of British commercial interests, which were thoroughly established in India.

Status Held Anomaly.

U Ba Pe described Burma's status, as a major province in Great Britain's Indian empire, as an anomaly contrary to the wishes both of Indians and Burmese, but in accord with British imperial policy. Burma's hope is for dominion status, under the British crown.

"We have nothing in common with the Indian people," said U Ba Pe. "We are more Mongolian than Aryan. We have customs and manners quite different and our women are as free as any women in this country, if not more so. We are known by law as Indians and we do not like to be called Indians, not because we are anti-Indian, but because we do not want the Burmese race to disappear from the earth."

U Ba Pe said that Burma had "no such thing as communal religious or caste questions, all communities living very cordially and amicably together."

Committees Study Plans.

Among the problems which will be put before a special committee, appointed by Prime Minister MacDonald to study the method of Burma's separation, will be protection of the interests of the Indian minority in Burma and an equitable settlement of Burma's present responsibility in Indian national finances.

The prime minister set up three other subcommittees for dealing with various subjects involved in the detailed work in connection with the framing of an Indian federation.

The separation of Burma from India was one of the recommendations of the Simon report.

Buddhists Lead.

Burma is a province of 262,732 square miles, with a population of about thirteen and a quarter millions. Rangoon is its capital and Mandalay its only other large city. The Buddhists are far in the ascendancy among the religions, with the Hindus and Mohammedans about equal in number.

The East India Co. had agents in Burma more than 300 years ago, and since 1796 there has been a resident manager for the company at Rangoon. Two of its provinces fell to Great Britain in 1826, and 40 years later all the provinces were amalgamated under a chief commissioner.

Since 1923 it has been a governor's province under the Indian act of 1919. One of the two members of the governor's executive council is a Burman. In 1923 there also was created a council of chiefs, a sort of ruling body for the northern and southern Shan states, which also form a part of British India. The entire legislative council of Burma consists of 103 members, of whom 80 are elected. The present governor is Sir Charles Alexander Innes, who was appointed in 1927.

Indian Editor, Publisher Jailed Over News Item

Bombay, India, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—The editor and the publisher of the Bombay Chronicle, one of the most important Nationalist newspapers in India, today were sentenced to five months' imprisonment because they printed a news item about the Bombay Congress Committee, previously declared an unlawful body.

The Indian Nationalist press condemned the sentences today as a "flagrant invasion" of the freedom of the press, while the British authorities and editors characterized the publication of the item as a "deliberate effort" to aid the operations of an illegal body.

Fire Sweeps Historic Church in New York

New York, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Fire partly destroyed historic St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Church, at City Hall Place and Duane street, this afternoon. The blaze started high in the spire of the old edifice, which in earlier days was called "the Printers' Church" because its after midnight masses were attended by many typographers from newspaper plants along Park Row. The origin of the fire was not ascertained.

Damage to the building, erected before 1842, and once the parish church of Cardinal Hayes, had not been estimated tonight.

Ad Club Luncheon Postponed.

With NELSON B. BELL

NOT to be omitted from the chaos that has attended the hit-and-miss openings of the new bills in our divers and sundry downtown, first-run temples of the titillating tintypes these latter days, Mr. Meakin, managing director of the Fox, now steps to the open window and shouts to the world at large that his next change of bill will occur tomorrow instead of Friday. Confusion worse confounded! You said it.

However, the facts in the case seem to be these: the Fox is too large a theater to contemplate a fortnight's run of an ordinary picture with that complete equanimity with which it might be approached by a house with considerably less than 3,500 seats. And "The Dancers" is assuredly an ordinary picture. "Lightnin'," the Fox picturization of the stage play made famous by the late Frank Bacon, on the other hand, is too fine a film in the view of the powers that be, to be accorded anything so meager as a mere seven-day run—especially since Will Rogers, the country's unofficial congressman-at-large, is the star, and Congress has just convened.

So Will Rogers, supported by Louise Dresser, Helen Cohan, J. W. Kerrigan and numerous others of note, in "Lightnin'," will begin his engagement on F street Wednesday, two days ahead of schedule, thus affording what is expected to be a swell entertainment practically a ten-day run instead of the usual week.

And another thing. Since stage shows can not be routed and popped in and out of theaters with quite the same facility as a can of celluloid, the Fanchon and Marco "Rose Garden" idea will continue through Thursday, as originally announced, a new unit coming in on Friday. This will be Fanchon and Marco's "Romance," with Gastleton and Mack, Myrtle Gordon, Flo and Ollie Walters, Robert Cloy, Mary Price and the Three Brick Tops and the Mack Bissett Dancers.

Just as was stated when this juggling of opening dates first began, it will be only a question of time until they have backed themselves all the way through the week in reverse and get once more around to Sunday.

While the Earle has not found it either necessary or expedient to change its entire program in the middle of the week, the management has been compelled to make a quick and unexpected substitution of one act.

On Sunday night Fred Keating's principal assistant—without whose services his demonstration of the baffling arts and artifices of legerdemain can not go on—was taken suddenly and seriously ill. So seriously, as a matter of fact, that the remainder of the engagement had to be canceled. In place of Keating and the Great Alexander, Healy and Cross now appear, having been rushed into the breach in time for the first performance yesterday, when they scored their usual popular hit.

Healy and Cross, in case you have forgotten, are generally recognized as the legitimate successors of Gus Van and the late Joe Schenck as singers and pianologue artists. They are a standard big-time act of long and favorable standing, who in no way impair the excellence of one of the best vaudeville bills the Earle has offered. Indeed, as far as my personal taste is concerned, they improve it.

Although there is, of course, a marked similarity in the character of the tomfoolery that takes place on the face of a skyscraper in Harold Lloyd's new comedy, "Feet First," at the Columbia, to that incorporated in his earlier "Safety Last," the two sequences are not by any means identical, except in their effect upon the nerves.

In "Safety Last," as Harold crawled higher and higher up the sheer front of the building, each floor that he passed confronted him with a danger a little more acute than the one before it. The higher he went the more perilous his position became. In his present stimulus to hysteria he flops about the front of the building with a seemingly total disregard of life and limb, but with no such methodical and cumulatively dangerous progress as in the earlier picture.

It is my private suspicion that both were backed by the heart specialists.

There is a good deal of the same sort of stuff, incidentally, in the pent-house sequence of "See America Thirst," currently being shown at the Rialto. "Slim" Summerville and Harry Langdon unleash a couple of the village gunmen's 16-inch coast defense rifles—cleverly concealed (?) on the roof of an apartment house—and wave about in the air on them some 40 stories or so above a crowded downtown street!

And will it make you uneasy and full of duck bumps!

Admiration note:

It is reliably reported that Winnie Lightner has named her son, who is now 2 years old, Richard Barthelmess Holtrey. And, according to the yarn, although they work on the same lot, she has never met Barthelmess.

And they say it is a fact that the purchasing agent of a big producing firm, smiling as he walked along Broadway, was stopped by a friend.

"Why the broad grin?" he was asked.

"I just discovered that the amount of red ink purchased this month has dropped 10 per cent below last month."

Happy days are here again! Oh, yeah?

Carl Laemmle and all the little Laemmles are said to be much elated by recent receipt of word from Germany that their production of "All Quiet on the Western Front" has been passed by the censors. There was a doubt.

Hard times continue to dog the heels of Sam Rothafel (Roxy), just returned from a several weeks' jaunt over Europe. In a few days he is to have a conference with Harley L. Clarke, his ostensible boss as managing director of the Roxy Theater, New York, to see if he can wriggle out of the two remaining years of his $3,000-per-week contract in order to accept another one with RCA to be managing director of Radio City at $5,000!

It certainly is a long way back to that U. S. S. Bancroft and those Marine corporal's stripes!

So the Rialto, having run a trailer on "Extravagance" as its next attraction, will change its bill on Thursday and present Conrad Nagel and Catherine Dale Owen in "Today."

One more round and I'll begin snatching at the brass ring!

Now that they've found out how to break up one of those gusty oratorical typhoons on the outside of the Capitol, maybe the same methods would work on the inside, wouldn't that be too bad, thank heaven!

HINDENBURG MAKES ECONOMY PLAN LAW

Uses Extraordinary Powers in Promulgating Bruening Fiscal Reform.

NOW UP TO REICHSTAG

Berlin, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—With a stroke of his pen, President Von Hindenburg tonight declared the Bruening financial reform program part of the law of the Reich.

In signing the degree promulgating the new laws, which Chancellor Bruening and his cabinet had worked on for months to straighten out Germany's involved finances, the president resorted to the extraordinary powers of article 48 of the constitution. This establishes a semidictatorship and can be invoked legally only "when public peace and safety are in danger."

The program recently received the approval of the Reichsrat, or federal council, but the chance of its being passed by the Reichstag—the principal legislative body—appeared so faint that the chancellor appealed to Von Hindenburg to use his constitutional right to go over the Reichstag's head.

Chancellor Feels Confident.

There is still another act to this financial drama. When the Reichstag convenes Wednesday it will be confronted with the accomplished fact of the promulgation of the financial program. Under the constitution, the legislative body has a right to revoke this, but the chancellor is confident the legislators who were unwilling to vote for such unpopular reform will be equally unwilling to assume the responsibility for upsetting this far-reaching program. What would happen in case of rejection only the chancellor can say.

The Fascists, avowed enemies of parliamentary government, will be in an unusual position Wednesday. They must accept the situation as it is or insist on the sacred right of a parliamentary system—that of revoking a presidential decree.

The decree signed by Von Hindenburg embraces three groups of laws:

1. Minor alterations of the emergency decrees of last July, when Article 48 was invoked.

2. Twenty-six laws through which the government's financial and economic reform proper will be effected.

3. Measures for the relief of agriculture.

Cuts Expenditures Hard.

The essential parts of the Bruening program are the ruthless slashing of public expenditures, sweeping reduction in public salaries, beginning with a 20 per cent cut in that of Von Hindenburg; halting of government contributions to various doles and blocking of the upward march of taxes.

General amnesty for tax charges is contained in the section aimed especially at citizens who have been hiding their wealth in Switzerland and other foreign countries for fear of what might happen to it in Germany. Figuratively, it says to them, "Come home and all will be forgiven."

Will Describe Platoon System.

Features of the platoon system of organization for elementary schools will be described by Miss Alice Barrows, of the United States Office of Education, at a meeting of the District of Columbia Public School Association tomorrow night at the Franklin School.

U. S. MACHINE BAN CITED AS TREASON

Russian Engineers Declare Inferior Equipment Used to Cut Production.

SEE AMERICA LEADING

Moscow, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—One of the eight Russian engineers on trial for high treason, tonight expressed the belief that Soviet Russia would not get ahead of the United States in technical production for many years.

The defendant, 67-year-old Alexander Fedotov, had been asked by Prosecutor Krilenko whether he thought the plans of the Soviet to outstrip America would succeed.

"I am guilty, of course," replied the aged engineer, "but I must admit I don't believe the Soviets will get ahead of America for many years."

American Machines Superior.

Another witness said that American textile machines had been discarded by the conspirators for English machines of an inferior type. This witness, Alexi Kirpotenko, a textile expert and a confederate of Fedotov in the work of sabotage, had been called to confirm some of the defendant's statements.

He did this, and then told of discarding the American machines which had been undergoing tests in Russia. He said he considered this an act of sabotage, because the American machines were better adapted to Russian conditions.

Kirpotenko is also a prisoner on a charge of counter-revolutionary activity.

Fedotov caused some amazement in the courtroom by saying the conspiring engineers had sabotaged the famous Dzerjinsky textile plant at Ivanovo, which is one of the show places where most foreigners are taken.

Ran Costs Up.

He said the engineers prepared plans for the building which ran the cost far higher than the government really should have spent.

"But," he added, "it's a good plant, although entirely too good."

The engineers in their cross-examination testified that much of their sabotage involved drawing up irregular plans, making of false estimates and otherwise confusing underofficials, by starting arguments on ways and means, which resulted in great delays in various construction projects.

It was not known just how well these plans succeeded, but two or three failures were listed by the engineers.

Hoover's Son to Stay In South Until Well

Pasadena, Calif., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Mrs. Herbert Hoover, jr., will leave Wednesday to visit her husband, ill at Asheville, N. C., but she is not going to bring him to their home here until he gets well.

Reports last night she would return here with him for the Christmas holidays were in error. She will be accompanied East by their three children, Peggy Ann, Joan and Peter. They will go to the White House, probably to remain there over the holidays with President and Mrs. Hoover. Mrs. Hoover, jr., will decide there when she will go to Asheville.

U. S. BUREAUS TO AID COMMUNITY CHEST

EMPLOYES GET BENEFIT

For the first time in history Federal workers next month will be directly solicited for charity funds in Government offices here, in view of action by President Hoover in waiving the old rule against department canvassing during the 1931 Community Chest campaign.

In a letter to heads of all Federal bureaus and departments made public yesterday, the President asked these officials to cooperate with authorities of the Community Chest in their efforts to organize workers within the departments in support of the approaching drive for funds.

"I have been greatly impressed with the fact that Federal employes in the City of Washington are beneficiaries, directly and indirectly, of the many benevolent institutions in the District financed under the District Community Chest," the President said.

President Varies Rule.

"I wish, therefore, to vary the rule which has been maintained over so many years against the inside organization of Federal employes in support of charitable drives."

The President's action was in response to a letter from John Poole, president of the Community Chest, pointing out the increased needs of chest agencies resulting in part from the acute unemployment situation.

"Unemployment has placed upon Community Chest agencies the heaviest burden they have ever borne," he said, "and all indications are that unemployment and its aftermath of broken credit, shattered homes, lost morale, sickness and delinquency, will still further increase that burden in the months to come."

In his letter to department heads Mr. Hoover inclosed a plan for the organization of Government workers in the various bureaus in line with a tentative proposal by Mr. Poole.

The plan calls for appointment by the President of a chairman in each of the executive departments, who would be responsible for supervising organization details and soliciting subscriptions from higher Government executives. The chief clerk of each department would serve as vice chairman, charged with the duty of organizing the personnel for thoroughgoing solicitation of all employes in his department. There would be also a so-called keyman in each office. He would name assistants to help him during the campaign.

Step Pleases Poole.

Mr. Poole expressed gratification at the step taken by President Hoover. He said:

"We have long felt that Government employes who have continuous employment here, who have suffered no wage reductions, who face no prospect of unemployment, who have the assurance of security of livelihood while all about is uncertainty and who live here and share in community benefits, want to do their part in caring for their less fortunate brothers."

Andrew G. Landrus, auditor of the chest, made public figures showing that 1930 Community Chest collections amount to 88 per cent of the total pledged for the year and are 2 per cent better than 1929 collections at this time last year. Of $1,604,461.67 pledged for 1930, the chest had collected at the end of November $1,334,900.90 after deductions and cancellations, Mr. Landrus said.

Edison Receives Medal Presented Him by Pope

West Orange, N. J., Dec. 1 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The gold medal sent by Pope Pius XI to Thomas A. Edison in recognition of his world contributions, through his inventions, was given to Edison in his laboratory today by Nelson C. Durand, a vice president of Thomas A. Edison Industries.

The medal arrived at the inventor's plant on Saturday. Edison announced he would dispatch an acknowledgment to the Pope at once. Mr. Durand said. The gift of the medal follows the delivery to the Pope on October 26 of a golden ivory Ediphone set bearing the papal coat of arms. The set was made at the laboratory under Edison's supervision.

Tom Mix in Natchez On Wrong Day for Suit

Natchez, Miss., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Tom Mix, former moving picture actor and circus performer, came to Natchez today through a misunderstanding to defend himself in a suit for $250,000, alleging a breach of contract. Trial of the suit, brought by Miller Bros., 101 Ranch Wild West Show, was originally set for today. It was postponed sometime ago, however, and Mix came here unaware that a date for the hearing had not been determined.

Traders on Stock Exchange Kick Stray Football About

Unemployed Pigskin Leads to Horseplay on Floor During Quiet Trading Day; Total of Sales Near Low for Year.

New York, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—A pigskin which had joined the ranks of the unemployed with the closing of the football season bluntered onto the floor of the Stock Exchange today to gladden the hearts of traders who had once been quarter backs.

It appeared toward the close of a session in which trading had dwindled close to the vanishing point, leaving most members of the exchange with at least a gloomy feeling of joblessness. The ball was quickly sent whizzing around the trading posts, as younger members tried a few fancy drop-kicks, jeopardizing the ears of such traders as were still earnestly endeavoring to extract a commission or a meager profit out of the speculative apathy. Shouts of "block that kick" drowned out the buzz of trading.

The day's transactions came to a total of only 1,107,607 shares, the smallest for a full day since August 1, and with that exception, since June, 1928. As for the trend of prices, traders had little to complain of. Stocks worked quietly higher, and the bull cause is always the popular cause.

Allied Chemical gained $5.75, Norfolk & Western, Missouri Pacific, and Union Pacific, $3 to $4; but most net gains were limited to $1 or $1.50.

Pickings were slim, and newer members, ruefully comparing prices paid for their memberships up to $500,000, with current prices of half that, were glad of a reminder of happier days.

Many graduates from the gridiron to the trading floor have received wallops in the bankroll more painful than the hard knocks received in line plunges.

Stock trading has at times assumed the aspects of actual physical contest. When an excited crowd is milling about a specialist in a very active issue, it is often difficult to get near enough to make a transaction. One well-known trader once got to the center of the crowd by crawling on his hands and knees through the legs of the throng.

Even in busy markets, however, the trading appears to the observer in the visitors gallery as a routine, quiet, and anything but exciting process. Metaphors about bulls and bears bring to mind pictures having little relation to the actual scene. Rarely does horseplay which might be noticed from the gallery, such as today's football kicking, enliven the proceedings.

Ground Glass Case Jury Completed

Trial of Mrs. O'Laughlin in Death of Stepdaughter Gets Under Way.

Denver, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—A jury was obtained late today to try Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin on a charge of slaying her 10-year-old stepdaughter Leona. Mrs. O'Loughlin actively assisted her attorneys in the selection of the jury, expressing her opinions as to the desirability of various veniremen.

The body of the girl was found October 17 in Berkeley Lake. Ground glass was discovered in the girl's viscera and there was a deep gash on her head.

Leo O'Laughlin, a city detective, and the defendant's husband, occupied a seat in the front row of the courtroom today, just outside the railing in the spectators' section. He was in a hospital suffering from effects of ground glass when his daughter's body was found. O'Loughlin's brother, Frank, a roomer at the detective's home, also is charged with murder in connection with the child's death.

Livestock Entries Judged at Exhibit

Mutton Seen in Sheep's Clothing; Ham Shown Under Skin.

Chicago, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Mutton in sheep's clothing, and hams under the skin, strutted before judges of the Thirty-first International Livestock Exposition today and brought championships to Canadians and Americans, college boys and practical farmers.

It was the first big session for the animals raised for meat, and all day long they clumped out of their stalls, and into the judging rings, where the show's first good weather had drawn a crowd of major proportions.

The university-bred entries from Purdue picked off blue ribbons with regularity, winning championships for their Poland China barrow and pen of barrows, for their Berkshire barrow, their Shropshire wether and their cross-bred wether of the medium wool type.

Animals Freed as Fire Destroys Circus Barn

Peru, Ind., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Swept by a high wind, fire late today destroyed a large barn in the winter quarters of the John Robinson Circus here. The loss was estimated by circus officials at $140,000.

No one was injured, and the circus herd of horses and a number of trained dogs, quartered in the structure, were removed safely.

LINDSEY GIVES TALK IN SPITE OF BISHOP

New York Churchmen, However, Keep Him Waiting Two and Half Hours.

SEVERAL QUIT MEETING

New York, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Judge Ben B. Lindsey presented his views on marriage today to the New York Churchmen's Association, despite the objection of the Right Rev. William T. Manning, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of New York. Bishop Manning did not attend.

The famed founder of Denver's juvenile court waited an hour while 70 members of the association, made up of Episcopal clergymen, ate luncheon. He waited another hour while they debated the advisability of hearing him, and an additional 30 minutes while they prepared a statement for the press to make clear their belief in the sanctity of marriage.

In the official statement the clergymen said they were "governed by the conviction that it is both the right and the duty of the clergy to hear speakers on matters vitally affecting the welfare of the people to whom they are called upon to minister."

The Right Rev. Charles E. Gilbert, suffragan Bishop of New York and president of the association, retired before the vote to hear Judge Lindsey was taken. A few others departed, too, but explained they had other engagements.

Although a rising vote committed the members of the association to strict silence to the press, several said the position taken in debate by clergymen desiring to hear the exponent of companionate marriage was that Bishop Manning had no more voice in the association than any other individual member.

Judge Lindsey was invited last April to make the address.

Bishop Manning urged cancellation of the invitation as soon as he received announcement of it last week, and the speakers' committee agreed to submit the matter to the membership. In the event of a minority vote for the address, the minority was to adjourn to a separate room to hear it.

While Judge Lindsey waited, he told newspapermen what he planned to say, outlining four reforms advocated by him. They were the legalization of companionate marriage; divorce of discordant couples by a commission composed of two physicians and a lawyer instead of a court; a system of education in schools and colleges on the art of love, and alimony and support after divorce with reference to economic status rather than by arbitrary laws.

He insisted he believed in the sanctity of marriage.

"And in children, too," he said, "I have a lovely little girl and I am hoping for another addition to the family in the spring.

"I am not an advocate of free love. When I say legalize companionate marriage, I mean legalize what now is practiced, namely marriage without begetting."

Calcutta Policeman Killed.

Calcutta, Bengal, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Inspector Mukherji, of the Calcutta police, was shot and killed today by two youths, who alighted from a mail train at Ghandpur Station, in East Bengal. The inspector general of Bengal police, who was on the train, fired at the assailants, but both escaped.

Annual District Report Is Given

Bride Urges That Saturday Half-Holidays Be Made Yearly Custom.

The routine annual report of the District Commissioners for the fiscal year ending June 30, last, was transmitted to Congress yesterday. It contains various recommendations by the department heads, all of which have been previously aired.

In the report of W. W. Bride, Corporation Counsel, there is a recommendation for the adoption of legislation making the Saturday half holiday an annual custom. Mr. Bride also urges the transfer of numerous duties from the Commissioners to the secretary of the board, a liberalization of laws relating to illegitimate children, and the adoption of an insurance code.

Dr. William C. Fowler, health officer, asked for more adequate medical and dental examinations for pupils of the District schools, while the library trustees urged the extension of branch library facilities.

Rail Traffic Diverted As Seine Floods Paris

Paris, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—The flooding Seine oozed into the tunnels under the Invalides Railway Station this afternoon, inundating the tracks and suspending all service. Traffic was diverted to other stations.

The river was higher than at any time since 1924 and there was a probability that an even greater menace was approaching. Nearby suburbs were flooded. The rain had stopped for the first time in several days. It was expected that the flood would reach its peak early tomorrow morning.

ROCKNE'S BATTERED PLAYERS LEAVE FOR COAST

Westbrook Pegler Says

LEON SEE, one of the many stockholders in Primo Carnera, tells of the time only a couple of years ago when Primo was discovered engaged in common toil, carrying water to the elephants and vice versa, with a leaky-tent circus, at a wage of about 60 cents a day. Mr. See states that Primo was about to be discharged from the circus at the time, as a succulent yearling elephant was missing from the herd and the proprietor had noticed something suspiciously like elephant feathers entangled in Primo's whiskers. Primo had always been hungry on his 60 cents a day, and the proprietor's suspicions were pardonable under the circumstances, although they subsequently proved to be quite unjust, as Mr. See discovered the elephant playfully hiding in one of Primo's shoes, and a chemical analysis showed that the suspicious plumage in Primo's whiskers was nothing but mule's feathers.

"Mules are insignificant," said Mr. See. "It is true that Primo sometimes was so overcome by hunger on his 60 cents a day that he could not resist the impulse to bite one, with a bit of salt, just as one bites the oyster. One does not formally slaughter the oyster, but eats it alive, and ot one of Primo's great degree of size the mule is just an oyster. But what is a mule. A mule is a nothing. The world is full of mules, but Primo was one of simple appetites and he would not bite the elephant. Now, perhaps, that he is rich, he might indulge in an occasional elephant. Why not? A man lives but once and money is for pleasure?

Commission Consistently Inconsistent.

Since leaving the circus Primo has become the only approximate successor to Jack Dempsey as a box-office power in the prize-fighting industry, and so he remains notwithstanding the rather pathetic efforts of the New York Prize Fight Commission to exclude him from the trade in reprisal for the unethical conduct of some of his American managers during his American tour. The prize fight commissioners are inconsistent in this, but then they are consistent only when they are inconsistent, so the worst and best that can be said of them is that they are running true to their own form. They have not only barred Primo from the State of New York but have tried to take in the entire world or that part of it which is sufficiently civilized to enjoy prize fights, but other prize fighters under the same management are permitted to do business as usual. It is not to be supposed that Primo was so dumb as to have been ignorant of the unethical practices performed on his behalf, but neither is it to be supposed that he was sufficiently smart to originate those devices himself. His offense probably was one of acquiescence, whereas those American managers were persons of quite sinister character and very cunning. Yet Primo is forbidden to perform in New York, and other athletes who might wish to perform with him elsewhere, and promoters who might wish to present him to their customers are forbidden to do so under pain of suspension in New York.

Garden to Be Punished Theoretically.

Such are the ramifications of this sentence that Paulino Uzcudun, who danced a fandango with him Sunday afternoon in Barcelona, must now be declared inoperative in New Yor, and the Garden Corporation will be punished if Primo should be engaged to do an act in Miami during the winter. That is theoretically the Garden Corporation will be punished. Actually, the Garden Corporation is recognized as a civic asset

John Collins New Pilot of Red Sox

Former Outfielder to Succeed Wagner at Boston Helm.

Managed Des Moines Last Year; Played With White Sox.

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—John F. "Shano" Collins, former White Sox and Red Sox outfielder star, today returned to the American League as the 1931 manager of the luckless Boston Club.

In announcing his appointment, Owner Bob Quinn, who has tried out three other pilots since he assumed control of the club, said:

"Collins has made a wonderful record as a minor league manager, and I see no reason why he should not do well with the Red Sox."

Collins succeeds Charles "Heinie" Wagner, who was made manager last season when Bill Carrigan retired. Lee Fohl was manager in 1923, when Collins was last identified with the club.

Broke Into Game As Pitcher.

The new pilot, born in Boston 45 years ago, broke into professional baseball in the now disbanded New England League as a pitcher a quarter of a centuary ago. An injured arm forced him to become an infielder, and he played first and second base until 1910, when he went from the Springfield Club, of the Eastern League, to the Chicago White Sox.

He then became an outfielder, and during his Chicago career, which lasted eleven years, he played on two championship teams, in 1917 and 1919. He was one of the players absolved of all blame in the world series scandal that caused the retirement of several White Sox stars from organized baseball.

Traded With Siebold For Hooper in 1921.

Collins and "Nemo" Leibold came to the Red Sox in 1921 in a trade for Harry Hooper. The former remained here as an outfielder until 1925, when he became manager of the Pittsfield Eastern League Club. The next two seasons were spent piloting the Des Moines Club in the Western League, and he returned to Pittsfield, now his home city, for the seasons of 1928 and 1929. He started last season as manager of the Nashua Club in the New England League and, when that twilight circuit was disbanded, returned to Des Moines, jumping that club from last to third place.

Italian Team Leads In 6-Day Bike Race

New York, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—At the end of the seventeenth hour of the six-day bicycle grind at Madison Square Garden, the Italian team of Georgetti and Brocardo was out in front, leading the pack by one lap.

The pace setters had covered 329 miles and 9 laps in their journey around the oval. One lap back trailed another Italian combination of Belloni and Richell, which another lap behind followed the teams of Denef and Charlier, Linarland and Binda and Spencer and Debaets.

TIGERS SIGN YOUTH.

Blanton Dick, a 20-year-old Phoenix, (Ariz.) youth, has been purchased by the Detroit Tigers. He probably will be sent to the Raleigh, (N. C.) Club in the Piedmont League.

Notre Dame Again On Carnegie's List

Pittsburgh, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Carnegie Tech's 1931 football schedule includes a game with Notre Dame at Pittsburgh on October 31. Western Reserve and Thiel has been dropped temporarily from the card.

Second Grid Death On Monmouth Team

Monmouth, Ill., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Football caused two deaths within the ranks of Monmouth's eleven this fall.

Bob Sharpe, center on the team, died several weeks ago of blood poisoning, which was caused by a tight football shoe. Sunday Stanley McConnell, star Monmouth full back, died from a broken neck suffered in the Thanksgiving Day game against Knox.

8 GRID GAMES LISTED FOR EAGLES

American U. Expands Football Activities for 1931.

EXPANSION of American University's football activity to include eight games for 1931 was revealed yesterday in the announcement of the Eagle schedule by Coach Walter Young. Never before have the Eagles played more than seven football games and this number was attempted this season for the first time.

Only two local appearances will be made by the 1931 American eleven, according to the schedule. These are scheduled for October 17, when the Eagles will entertain High Point College of North Carolina, and November 14, when they will visit Catholic University at Brookland Stadium.

Eagles to Open Season On October 3.

The American season will open on October 3 when the Eagles will meet Lynchburg College at Lynchburg, Va. On the following Saturday, October 10, they will play Hampden-Sidney at Hampden-Sidney. After the High Point engagement, they will take to the road again for games with Shenandoah, at Dayton, Va., on October 24, Shepherd College, at Shepherdstown, W. Va., on October 31, and Johns Hopkins, at Baltimore on November 7.

Randolph-Macon will be the final opponent on November 21 at Ashland, Va.

Lynchburg, Hampden-Sidney, Johns Hopkins and Randolph-Macon are new foes for the Eagles. Gallaudet, Atlantic University and St. John's of Annapolis—all met this season—have temporarily been dropped.

Mississippi Elevens Will Play for Charity

Jackson, Miss., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—A postseason football game between teams made up of all-star players of colleges in Mississippi is planned here either December 13 or December 20 for the benefit of the unemployed.

Ed Walker, head coach at the University of Mississippi has agreed to organize a team there to play a squad composed of stars from Mississippi A. and M., Mississippi College and Millsaps stars, coached by Edwin (Goat) Hale, coach at Millsaps.

FERRELL WANTS PAY BOOST.

Wes Ferrell held out for $20,000 last spring to pitch for the Cleveland Indians and compromised with a bonus, if he won 25 games. He won the 25 and now it is said in Cleveland that he wants $30,000 for next year. He figures his pitching is worth that much to the Indians.

W. Maryland Strong on Defense

Terrapin Opponent Has Yielded Only 2 Touchdowns.

Byrdmen Must Show Best Attack to Win Saturday.

AN INDICATION of the severity of the test facing the Maryland University Eleven in the game Saturday in Baltimore Stadium is given in the records, which show its opponent, Western Maryland, has yielded only two touchdowns in nine games this season.

Without a doubt, Maryland, in the opinion of close observers, must uncork its utmost in attack if it hopes to close its season with a much-desired victory over Dick Harlow's undefeated Green Terrors.

Though Western Maryland's opposition on the whole has not matched Maryland's this fall, it is true that the Terrors have not often been extended to win. They allowed Loyola, of Baltimore, one touchdown in a game they won easily and yielded another six-pointer to Albright, which pressed them hard. Albright alone of nine teams, not excepting Georgetown, which bowed, 10 to 0, threatened to defeat Western Maryland.

Line and Secondary Of Terrors Strong.

Both in the front line and the secondary, Western Maryland is well fortified defensively. It boasts big men, fast men and brainy men, with a large store of experience.

Maryland, conceding superiority in the line, where such outstanding players as Paul Bates, end, and the giant tackle, Pincura, perform, is expected to take to the air to gain the decision.

The famous Chalmers-to-Berger combination no doubt will carry a great part of the Terrapin offensive burden. When all other weapons fail and when all other players are stopped cold, Chalmers and Berger, it seems, can advice the ball for Maryland through the air.

Paddock Serves Notice Of Intention to Wed

Los Angeles, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Charles Paddock, formerly the world's greatest sprinter, and his fiancee, Mrs. Neva Prisk Malaby, today filed notice of intention to wed.

Charles H. Prisk, Pasadena newspaper publisher, announced the engagement of his daughter several weeks ago. The wedding will take place in Pasadena December 11.

Paddock gave his occupatoin as a "journalist" and said he was 30. Mrs. Malaby gave her age as 26. She was divorced four years ago.

Reception Is Given George Earnshaw

George Earnshaw, who played an important part in pitching the world's champion Philadelphia Athletics to victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in this year's world series, was the guest of honor at a reception given for him last night at the Commonwealth Club, Montclair, N. J. Many friends and admirers of Earnshaw attended.

IN adapting the ukelele, shown yesterday, to their native conditions, the Mangyans were necessarily hard put to find strings. What could be more logical than to use the hairs from the human head?

The people are most musical and sing to the accompaniment of their home-made ukeleles and flutes. They are said to be able to reproduce clearly a melody after hearing it but once.

Needle fish are found in all seas and some have even been known to ascend rivers. They are excellent eating. Their bodies are bright green and silvery in color and some of their bones are green. Those elongated jaws seen in yesterday's drawing are set with sharp teeth.

The black bird shown yesterday not only sings the song of its native state but is able to warble bird arias. The little fellow was discovered when quite young in the paws of a predatory cat, rescued and nursed back to health. The bird is nameless, being with all its accomplishments, unable to "tell" its owner of its early life and parentage.

Frequently yew trees and boxwood have been trimmed and trained in imitation of some object or even person, but for an oak, shown yesterday, to grow in the likeness of Abe Lincoln and in the Southern State of Georgia, is, to say the least, unusual. Nature, evidently, did not ever hear of the Civil War. JOHN HIX.

More about today's pictures will be told tomorrow. Any reader wanting further proof of anything depicted here should address John Hix, care of this paper, and enclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope for reply.

Five Coaches, 38 Gridmen On Trip

Loyal Fans Cheer as Battling South Bend Troup Entrains.

Rockne Is Hopeful; Depends on Luck, He Says.

By PAUL MICKELSON.

CHICAGO, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Battered and weary, yet filled with that fighting spirit that has carried onward to victory in eighteen straight football wars, Notre Dame's Rough Riders today began their westward Odyssey for their epic struggle with the dashing Trojans of Southern California.

Cheered by several hundred loyal fans who braved a bleak December afternoon to shout encouraging farewells, Knute Rockne loaded his great crew of riders on their special train at 3:30 p. m. and headed for the Land of Roses and Sunshine, where the Notre Dame victory bubble, swelled by two years of triumph, will be pricked or further inflated next Saturday afternoon.

Thirty-eight players, the full coaching staff of five men, newspapermen, and five coaches filled with fans of all shapes, sizes and ages, started the westward journey, which will end at 5 p. m. Friday, when the special train steams into Los Angeles. One stop will punctuate the journey, and that will be at Tucson, Ariz., where workouts will be held on the University of Arizona field—one Wednesday afternoon, one Thursday morning, and one Thursday afternoon.

Rockne Reveals No Dread of Game.

If Coach Rockne dreaded the invasion of the House of Troy, he failed to reveal it as he stepped aboard the train today. He was happy over the result of Saturday's game with the Army, and his only worry seemed to be that some of his players or party would miss the train. He even changed his bear story to one of hopefulness as the train chugged out of the station.

"Well, I think they have a better team than we have right now," he said. "My boys are pretty well battered up as a result of the last three games with Drake, Northwestern and the Army, but we'll be feeling better by the time we get into Los Angeles. The warm air of Arizona and the long ride doubtlessly will stir up the boys.

"We'll need some luck to win this one, but maybe we'll get it," he shouted as a farewell.

There was no doubt but what Rockne expected another victory.

Conley and Mullins Nurse Injuries.

All of the players, with the exception of Larry "Moon" Mullins and Capt. Tom Conley, an end of no mean ability, were in fair condition. Both suffered bruises from the Army engagement, but both of them insisted they would be back on the firing line Saturday. They undoubtedly will be.

Seven ends, six tackles, seven guards, three centers, four quarter backs, eight half backs and three full backs made up the personnel of the Notre Dame squad. They were Vik, O'Brien, Mahoney, Kosky, Host, Conley and Baille, ends; McNamara, McManmon, Kurth, Hoffman, Donaghue and Culver, tackles; Greeney, Harris, Kassis, Kersjes, Metzger, Pierce and Terlaak, guards; Yarr, Rogers and Butler, centers; Carideo, Cronin, Jaskwhich and Murphy, quarter backs; Brill, Kaplan, Koken, Leahy, Lukats, O'Connor, Schwartz and Sheeketski, half backs; Mullins, Hanley and Howard, full backs.

Among the fans aboard the train was J. E. Brill, father of Marty Brill, one of Notre Dame's prize half backs. The elder Brill said nothing about giving his son another $1,000 a touchdown bonus like he did in the Pennsylvania game, but admitted that the lure of seeing his son play his final college football game was too much for him.

Trojans Spend 2 Hours Against Rockne's Plays

Los Angeles, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Defensive assignments were given the University of Southern California gridsters in practice today for their game with Notre Dame here Saturday.

Two hours were spent in dummy scrimmage against a reserve team using the Coach Knute Rockne plays as seen by Trojan scouts this season. More of this is expected again tomorrow when Audrey Devine returns from the Army game with final information in regard to the Ramblers.

The return of Erny Pinckert expert blocker at half, served as an incentive to the men of Troy, although Coach Howard Jones spent a busy afternoon in an effort to strengthen left end.

Southern California, while still holding hope Ralph Wilcox would be able to start after three weeks on the injured list, feels uneasy about the left flank. Tay Brown may be brought from tackle to cover the assignment along with Howard Joplin, should Wilcox not recover from concussion of the brain.

Ray Sparling is definitely out with a bad knee and Tony Jurich, who broke an ankle early in the season, will not be able to play.

The quartet of players slightly injured against Washington were back in the fold again this afternoon.

Colgate Declines Game For Charity on Coast

Hamilton, N. Y., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Colgate's athletic council today declined an invitation from St. Mary's College, of Oakland, for a football game at San Francisco on either December 13 or 20, suggested as a benefit for the San Francisco Children's Hospital.

William A. Reid, graduate manager, in replying to the St. Mary athletic officials, pointed out that Colgate already had agreed to play a post-season contest with New York University at the Yankee Stadium next Saturday for the unemployment fund. This, he explained, had made it necessary for the student body to shorten its Christmas holiday, and further cuts of classroom time were impossible.

DRAFT ISSUE DELAYED BY MINORS

Solution Possible at Joint Session Called Today.

By HERBERT W. BARKER.

MONTREAL, Quebec, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—The bugaboo of major-minor relations, the draft, overshadowed all other questions as minor league club owners and managers gathered here today for the annual sessions of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

Two Class AA, nondraft circuits, the Pacific Coast and International Leagues, devoted most of their time to a discussion of the demand of the majors that they and three other nondraft leagues submit to the draft. Unless they do, the majors have threatened to discontinue all business relations with them.

Action Postponed Until Conference Today.

Neither the International nor the Pacific Coast Leagues came to any decision as to whether or not they would accept the draft, which gives the majors the right to purchase a player from a minor league club by paying a set price. Instead, both organizations decided to postpone any action until after a joint conference tomorrow when the American Association, the third Class AA league, joins forces with the other two in an attempt to formulate some plan of action acceptable to all.

The other nondraft leagues, the Class A Western and the Class B Indiana-Illinois-Iowa Leagues, are expected to follow the three bigger circuits.

The whole question arose when the majors demanded that the draft principle be made universal, applying to all minor leagues.

The five nondraft leagues immediately objected, preferring to continue selling their players for what they would bring rather than have them made available to the majors at a fixed rate.

As far as the three AA leagues are concerned, a modified draft agreement with the majors already is in effect. Under its terms, the majors may claim at a draft price any player in the International, Pacific Coast and American circuits if he previously has been in the majors.

New Offer to Big Leagues Possible Today.

Efforts at Cleveland recently to reach a compromise failed, but it was understood at that time that the five nondraft leagues were ready to agree to the draft if a higher draft price were made. It was after the failure of that conference that the majors threatened to discontinue dealing with the leagues in question.

Just what tomorrow's conference may bring remains to be seen, but it

WADE LAUDS DEFENSE OF COUGARS

Compares New Year Rival to Washington U. Team of 1925.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Wallace Wade, University of Alabama football coach, came here today, after scouting Washington State in its game with Villanova at Philadelphia Saturday, with the opinion his team will meet "one of the greatest defensive elevens" he has ever seen in the Rose Bowl classic at Pasadena, Calif., New Year's Day.

The Washington State Team, Wade believes, is similar to the Washington University eleven that Alabama defeated, 20 to 19, on its first trip to the West Coast in 1925.

"I have never seen two elevens more alike than the Washington University Team we played in Rose Bowl and the Washington State Team," the Alabama mentor said. "Washington State has one of the greatest defensive teams I have ever seen.

Cougars' Back Field and Ends Bigger.

"Elmer Schwartz, the big full back, is another George Wilson. He reminds me of Wilson in running with the ball and backing up the line. Edwards and Ahlskog are great tackles, Edwards being a little bigger than Freddie Sington and just as fast. The Cougars have two big ends and a bigger back field than Alabama.

"From what I could judge, Washington State and Alabama are pretty evenly matched in weight. The Cougars will outweigh Alabama in the back field and we may have a few pounds to spare in the line.

"Hein, Washington State's great center, is one of the best pivot men I have ever seen against forward passes. He intercepted three passes Saturday. There may be a better center in the country than Hein, but I have my doubts."

Wade expressed the conviction the Cougars should have scored "six or seven touchdowns over Villanova."

NOTRE DAME DEFEAT IS PREDICTED

Hollingberg, Cougar Coach, Picks Trojans to Win.

"IF I were a betting man, I'd put my moned on Southern California." Those words, concerning Saturday's game between Notre Dame and Howard Jones' Trojans, in which the former's national championship hopes will either be realized or smashed, would not mean much coming from an ordinary football observer.

But the author was the coach of the team that scored the only defeat suffered this year by Southern California—Orin E. "Babe" Hollingbery, head coach of Washington State, Pacific Coast Conference champion.

Hollingbery and Cougers In Washington.

Hollingbery, visiting the Capital yesterday with his team after a victorious invasion of Philadelphia, where the Cougars trounced Villanova last Saturday, sounded a discordant note in a chorus of experting on the outcome of the Los Angeles classic.

Washington State's chieftain, knowing through experience Southern California's ability, likes its chances and states definitely his reasons.

"Physical and mental condition are going to factor greatly in this game, and I believe Southern California will be better fortified in both respects," he said.

"Notre Dame has just gone through three hard games in a row and has taken quite a pounding. In my opinion, Rockne's team not only will not be able to go on the field in prime physical condition, but they won't be able to reach the peak mentally. They've been 'pointing' for too many games already and they're bound to show the strain.

"On the other hand, Southern California will have had more than a week's rest atnd will be fresh both in mind and body. It is their objective game and none other recently has worried them.

Believes Irish Will Meet Match in Every Way.

"Aside from these matters, there is playing ability to consider, and I think Notre Dame will find its match in every way. Of course, they use different styles of football, Notre Dame depending largely on deception and Southern California on power. But as far as speed, strength and brains are concerned, Southern California is every bit as good as the Irish.

"The Southern California line is going to prove a lot of trouble to Notre Dame, more so than did Army's, and I expect that Duffield, Pinckert and the rest in the Trojan back field will do veyr well behind that line.

"But the important afctors are

Archery Coach Deals First Defeat to Tech Grid Team

Players Routed by Miss Naylor for Encroaching on Practice Field; Principal Effects Compromise at Cost of Hat.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

TECH HIGH SCHOOL champion football team was beaten yesterday. And beaten decisively.

The rout was accomplished by Miss Evelyn Naylor and a dozen young girl archery enthusiasts. Tech appeared strong at the start, but quickly wilted when the real battle started. The hitherto unstoppable Maroon and Gray huskies never approached closer to scoring than midfield and toward the end of the afternoon appeared completely demoralized.

The score of the rout amounted to about 23 bull's-eyes to no touchdowns.

This is a play by play account of the battle:

Coach "Hap" Hardell sent his boys out on the Tech field in preparation for Tech's final game of the year against Gonzaga and remained in the gymnasium to make final preparations for the staging of the contest. Within a few minutes the first of Tech's huskies who gained the practice field returned with word that Tech's girl's archery team had sovereignty over the field and had no intention of having themselves evicted.

Hardell Himself Reaches Field.

Hardell himself strode on the stretch of turf on which he developed a team heretofore thought invicible. Miss Naylor, with admirable pointed-nes stold him to remove his ruffians. Hardell parried that a football game was going to be played on Friday and it had long been the custom of Tech and one or two other high schools to practice before grid engagements. Miss Naylor was adamant and threatened and produced—the intervention of "higher" authorities.

Mr. Frank C. Daniels, principal of the Tech School, appeared in the role of arbitrator. Mr. Daniels recommended that Hardell dismiss his charges for the day. Hardell demurred, pointing out that Tech had to practice and that there were adjoining stretches of real estate well-suited for the pursuit of archery. To add to the situation one of Tech's mighty punters lifted a pigskin high into the air and it descended with great force on the top of Mr. Daniels' gray fedora.

Principal Arranges Compromise.

Mr. Daniels arranged an even compromise, whereby Miss Nailor and her girls were to keep 50 yards of the football field, with the other 50 yards given over to three complete Tech teams. It was believed at the time that Hardell achieved his 50 yards only because he remarked that if he and his team were evicted some one else could take charge of the Tech football players in the Friday game.

Miss Naylor's stanch bow and arrow disciples held their line with great skill and grace. After a while Tech, rapidly tiring, quit the field and sought the palliativity of a shower.

THE JUDGE EARNS VERDICT AT JEFFERSON PARK

HeadDecision Results in Sprint

Noble Sir Is Second, With Petabit Taking Third Money.

JEFFERSON PARK RACE TRACK, La., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—The races here today were run over a slow track. The fields in one or two of the races were reduced as a result of the change in track conditions, but the contests were spirited and interesting. There was no feature on the card, chief interest being centered in the running of the St. James Purse, a 6-furlong sprint.

The Judge, second choice and ridden by C. Landolt, was the winner by a small margin over Admiral C. T. Grayson's Noble Sir, with Petabit third. Greenwald, favorite, finished fourth.

The Judge Well-ridden By Landolt.

The Judge got away fast and, showing good speed under Landolt's good handling, raced Petabit into defeat. In the final furlong, Leyland, on Noble Sir, brought his charge up with a rush on the outside and just failed to get up. The Judge lasted it out to win by a head. Noble Sir beat Petabit two lengths for the place. The winner paid $5.20 for a $2 ticket and the time for the six furlongs was 1:15 2-5.

The favorite players got away in their stride, putting over Mrs. E. C. Gross' West Virginia, which was made a 3 to 2 choice, in the opening event. Little Coventry was second and Flagg Porter third.

West Virginia jumped away to the lead and, making all his pace, won by two lengths in 1:15 1-5.

The form players suffered a severe setback in the second event, however, when Poly, prohibitive choice, failed to finish in the first three. He finally pulled up in fourth place. The winner turned up in My Hobby with Jar second and Sincerely third.

Poly and My Hobby alternated in the lead to the stretch, where Poly tired. My Hobby then drew away slightly, but had to be driven hard to win by half a length from Jar. The winner paid $10.

Uncle Matt Makes Good in Third.

Uncle Matt, making his first start since the recent Latonia meeting, made good today by winning the 6-furlong sprint, third on the card. He was ridden by J. D. Mooney, and it required the gelding's best effort to win under the poor handling accorded him. Simon Kenton was second and Roycrofter third. Blandris was left.

Roycrofter and Uncle Matt quickly drew away from the field. Mooney elected to take the best going and brought Uncle Matt to the middle of the track. He lost several lengths at the stretch turn by this move, but held on gamely to win by a head from the fast-closing Simon Kenton, who beat Roycrofter four lengths for the place.

Grecian Beauty, with E. James up, won the fifth race and paid her backers $6. Kadiak odds-on favorite, finished second and Madcap Marvin third.

James got Grecian Beauty away on her toes and made every pole a winning one. In the stretch, Kadiak challenged but the mare held on gamely to win by a neck. Kadiak beat Madcap Marvin five lengths for the place.

In the race for the $500 in prizes offered by the association for the boy riding the most winners, Jockey E. James now leads with 74 points as a result of his piloting Grecian Beauty to victory.

Herendeen, Choice, Cops in Sixth.

Herendeen, favorite, scored a victory in the mile and furlong race, sixth on the card. Broker landed second money and John T. D., third. Herendeen trailed the field for 6 furlongs then moved up fast on the outside, taking command in the stretch and drawing out to win by a length. Broker beat John T. D., a head for the place. The winner paid $5.40.

The form players wound up the day by landing a ham in the final event. He won by half a length in a drive over King Kelly with Carlino third. Ham paid $3.60.

Lewis Wins Twice At Pocket-Billiards

William Lewis, Pennsylvania champion, who is meeting all comers in pocket billiard matches at the White Palace parlors each afternoon and evening of this week, won two matches yesterday. Having a high run of 54, he beat Joe Faresse yesterday afternoon, 100 to 20, while he was in even better form last night, defeating Danny Miller, 100 to 40, and uncorking a cluster of 65.

Lewis meets Lou Pagent at 2:30 this afternoon and Joe Kelley tonight at 8:15.

Kensington Guard Five Wins Easily

Kensington National Guard Basket Ball Team ran wild last night in the opening tilt of the Montgomery County Basket Ball League, turning back the Takoma courtmen, 38 to 7. The game was played on the winners' court.

Fargo, of the winners, looked good on the offensive, but the performances of Ryan and Everett, guardmen for the Kensingtons, was the bright spot of the night. Jones, of Takoma, was the only man on his team able to nick the airtight defense of Ryan and Everett. He scored all of his team's points.

—Jefferson Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

THERE has been much improvement in the New Orleans racing programs since the consignments of horses from Bowie have arrived, many of which are in the various races today. The track has become heavy after starting off the season fast. The feature today is the Desthleham Purse, which is at 6 furlongs for 4-year-olds and upward and has the smallest field on the card, six horses being engaged.

ESSIE is the most consistent of the field and has a chance, but BOCARATONE should make it a close contest. He is better suited at a longer route, but has won sprint races. His Maryland campaign attests his ability to turn in a speed contest. He won a stake and paid long odds over good handicap horses. HIGH SCORE should hold the others safe. ESSIE is lightly weighted and probably will lead this field home.

FIRST RACE—The first race is for 3-year-old maidens and upward at 6 furlongs. ROYAL CAUSE does not call for much, but he surely has a chance to leave the maiden class in this field. He has run among better horses and in the East was backed to win over horses like Johnny Campbell, Prince Troy and others of this class at Empire City in early November. SCHLAF WOHL showed some good races in the South last spring and later on the Western tracks. He should be among the contenders. ANGER is a bad post actor but may get close.

SECOND RACE—Two-year-olds make up the field of the second race. GALLOPETTE looks like a standout in this number, which is at 6 furlongs. She ran her last race at Empire City the first week in November, beating a field of fifteen including in its numbers Charlie, Friar Bacon, Carnival, Cho San and others, and she meets no such horses in this race. She will have PRINCE CLOI, a recent winner at this track, to beat. VALEDICTORY has some class and may be in the money. Very good horses make up the large field, on an average as good as started in claiming races in the East.

THIRD RACE—HADES should win right back in the third race at a mile and 70 yards. His recent victory was a good performance among horses the equal of this field. NAZDAR ran well all season and carries only 99 and is chosen as the contender. GEORGE WEBER should improve over his last effort, when he was well backed, but finished out of the money.

FIFTH RACE—GRAND DAD is selected to win the fifth event at a mile and a sixteenth, in a well-balanced field. HARPOON and BETTY BROWNING are rated the contenders although it is an open race. HAYES' CHOICE did not run his race last out and may improve. HARPOON was a useful plater last winter and if at his best would be dangerous.

SIXTH RACE—THE ORLEANIAN has always run well on the Jefferson Park track and seems well placed in the sixth race.. He will meet strong opposition from MISS MARYLAND, which also will be suited by the distance of a mile and a sixteenth and the slow track. PAUL REVERE should not be overlooked, for he turns in a good race now and then and, if at top form, would be the favorite. THE ORLEANIAN has only 107 pounds and should be able to come from behind and win. TORCHER will be up with the leaders for awhile.

SEVENTH RACE—DELMONICO, which has won one race at this meeting, should repeat in the seventh. He will be ridden again by Jockey E. James, who seems to be the sensation at this track so far. VOLTMETER will be a contender and ZAHN has a good chance to get in the money. This race is a mile and 70 yards. SANTA SOPHIA, which won Saturday, may be the surprise if there is any upset in the race.

DUKE, N. C. U. IN BATTLE SATURDAY

Carolina "Big Five" Championship at Stake.

Special to The Washington Post.

DURHAM, N. C., Dec. 1.—In the modern era of football at Duke University, the Blue Devils have not defeated the Carolina Tarheels, whom they will meet Saturday at Chapel Hill for the North Carolina Big Five championship.

Back in the 90's when the Devils brought football to the South by meeting Virginia at Charlottesville, and then won the Southern championship, they whipped the Tarheels. Then came the long period of no football at Duke, and since 1922, when the two teams met after many years, the Devils have yet to take the top score.

There have been close games. In 1923, the year after the first meeting, Carolina won 14-6. In 1924 the Devils put up a great defensive battle and held the Tarheels to two field goals. Howard Jones was then the Duke coach. Jimmy DeHart's first year at Duke found the Devils on the small end of a 6-0 score, after the teams had battled without scoring for three periods. In 1926 the Devils led at the half, 7-0, to see the Tarheels make a great comeback and win, 14-7.

The members of the Duke team have said very little since the Washington and Lee game. A vacation over the week-end was given them by Coach DeHart with practice slated to get under way Monday. The Devils seem to be in the same frame of mind that carried them to the greatest season any Duke team has ever known. One loss, one tie and eight wins, six of them by the shutout route, is the proud record of the Duke team.

Results of Duke-Carolina games:

1922—Carolina, 20; Duke, 0.
1923—Carolina, 14; Duke, 6.
1924—Carolina, 6; Duke, 0.
1925—Carolina, 41; Duke, 0.
1927—Carolina, 16; Duke, 0.
1928—Carolina, 14; Duke, 7.
1926—Carolina, 6; Duke, 0.
1929—Carolina, 48; Duke, 7.

Farrell to Make Series of Talkies

Johnny Farrell, 1928 national open golf champion and winter professional at St. Augustine links, will leave tomorrow morning for two weeks in Florida, during which time he will make a series of golf sound movies.

Chicago U. Courtmen Seeking Regular Center

The University of Chicago Basket Ball Team will face its seventeen-game schedule with two lettermen and several other members of last season's squad again in the line-up, but Coach Nelson Norgren is confronted with the problem of finding an efficient man to play center. Harold Boesel, who played the position last season, being lost to the team.

Aside from the difficulty of finding a competent center the Maroon squad appears to be a good one. The lettermen who will return are Capt. Marshall Fish and Harry Ashley, guards. Another player who is expected to prove a valuable asset is Sidney Yates, a fast forward, who was out of most of last season's games because of a broken wrist. Another likely candidate for a forward berth is Paul Stephenson.

Capt. Fish was the outstanding player last season and played in every position when injuries and ineligibilities played havoc with the Maroon squad. He proved extremely effective wherever he was put and is looked upon as a mainstay this season.

Other players are Keith Parsons and Arthur Cahill, both possibilities for center. Among the candidates for forward berths are Bernard Wien, of the football squad, Rexinger and Anderson.

22 Court Candidates Seek Michigan Posts

Twenty-two men form the Michigan basket ball squad, which has been brought to full strength with the close of the football season. Only four of this number have had a year of college experience. The group is the most inexperienced and smallest in stature of any at the Wolverine school in years. The opening game is against Western State Teachers College on Saturday.

Among those who have had experience are Capt. Joe Downing, who, because of his injured knee, is still an uncertain quantity; Henry Weiss, diminutive forward; Norman Daniels and Roy Hudson. The latter two, football men, also are forwards. In the group drilling under Coach George Veenker are nine forwards, eight guards and five centers.

Only six of the squad are 6 feet tall or more. Gerard Ricketts, a substitute on the first squad and member of the B team a year ago, is the tallest of the group. He is 6 feet 2 inches. Practice sessions are being held on Monday and Thursday nights and in the afternoon on other days.

The schedule for the team has been completed by filling an open date on February 16 with Michigan State Normal College. The game will be played at Ann Arbor.

was believed possible the three AA circuits might make a new offer for the majors to consider at their joint meeting in New York this month.

Both the Pacific Coast and International Leagues were understood to be split today on the draft question. The International's session, in particular, was a heated one, marked by hot debate, and with membership understood to be evenly divided on the question, four to four. Baltimore, Montreal, Newark and Buffalo were reported solidly against the draft.

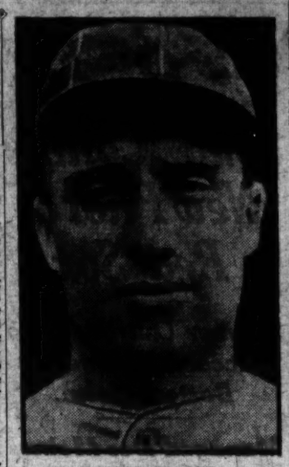
Berger Shook Early Slump To Be a Star for Braves

Hit 38 Homers in First Year in Big Leagues.



WALTER BERGER.

PLAYING his first year in the majors last season, Walter Berger, outfielder for the Boston Braves, made a notable record. While he wound up the season with the just fairly respectable batting average of .310, yet his general value to the Braves was much more than these figures would indicate.

Berger batted as high as .350 during the first three months of play when the Braves were struggling for a place in the sun of the first division. And also during that vital period of the Braves' 1930 fortunes the young batsman from the Coast was right up along with Wilson, Klein and Babe Ruth in the struggle for the major league home-run crown.

Slumps For While But Finishes Fast.

He slumped, however, in his long-range hitting in midsummer, but came in determined fashion during the last weeks of play.

Berger hit 38 home runs, ranking third in his league and fifth in the major leagues. Hack Wilson, the new home-run king; Klein, Ruth and Gehrig alone led the rookie in this vital factor of the game. He came within two of Klein and within three of Gehrig, and led such home-run hitters as Hartnett, Simmons and Foxx and Goslin.

Berger had no short fences to shoot at on his home field. He also made 27 two-baggers and 14 triples and batted in 119 runs and scored 98 runs himself. This record might, without exaggeration, be styled a standout for a first-year man.

Another thing about Berger that enhanced his value to McKechnie and the ball club of the good Judge Fuchs was the fact that he took part in 151 games and played a corking fine defensive game in the field.

Berger was born in San Francisco in 1905 and went to high school there, where he played on his school nine, playing at third base and shortstop. He was only 18 when he was first signed by Frisco and assigned to the outfield.

Seals Release Berger After Injury in Game.

He got hurt shortly after his great chance came. He swung on a curve ball which he missed and the swing carried him forward to pull a vertebrae in his back out of place. The crippled boy was released and sent home.

He recovered after a few months and began to play with a Frisco semi-pro team. Again he was signed by Frisco, this time in 1927, and after a three weeks' trial was released. He never did know why he was let out so suddenly, as he hit the longest home run of his career a few days before his dismissal. "That ball is a-goin' to land in Frisco Bay," yelled a fan as the ball passed out of the park still on the rise.

Finally the tall outfielder got a job with an independent team in Butte, Mont. And then later he was signed by Pocatello in the Idaho League.

"Again I got off to a bad start with a real league club," said Berger. "The first few weeks I hit around .200. Simply could not get going. The manager looked at me with a cold and fishy eye and it was only a question of how long he was going to put up with that sickly batting average of mine. But I began to pick up in my hitting and when the season closed I was leading the league. I do not believe I will ever be as proud and flappy again over any hitting record, not even if I should lead the National League, as I was over that batting championship in that little old Idaho League."

Stars With Los Angeles In 1928 and 1929.

Los Angeles promptly signed the batting champ of the Idaho League and he played for that club in 1928 and 1929. He came to the Boston Braves in the winter of 1929-30 as one of the ramifications of the famous deal that sent Hornsby to the Cubs.

Berger is in many ways the ideal type of a ball player. In spite of his 6 feet 2 inches in height, he is of such trim and perfect build that he carries his towering 200 pounds of weight as though it were only 6 feet and weighed only 180. He is pretty fast for a big man and makes many fine running catches in the outfield. But it is at the bat that this young man's poential qualities loom the largest in the baseball expert's eye. He has such power in his shoulders and such strength in his wrists and arms that his short, easy swings drive the ball out of the park when he connects squarely.

Berger is a right-hand hitter and he hits mainly to left field, so he must shoot always for the fences farthest away from the plate to get home runs.

Another and important big league asset possessed by Berger is his disposition. He is cool, keen and determined. He has what they call the big league complex and he takes excellent care of himself. It is the most natural thing in the world to predict a great future for this young slugger.

WEST VIRGINIA, away fast, and showing a decided liking for the slow going, took an early lead and won nicely in hand. LITTLE COVENTRY, showing good speed, was kept close up and ran good race. FLAGG PORTER, away poorly, went up very fast on outside and finished fast. THISTLE VIC ran a good race from a poor beginning.

MY HOBBY, away well, raced POLY into defeat in the first five furlongs, but had to be ridden hard to win. JAR broke very slow on the outside, worked his way up, was kept out in the middle of the track, closed fast and was nearing the winner down, SINCERELY saved ground all the way and made a game effort. POLY lacked his usual early foot, was never able to get very far in the lead, and tired badly. FOXY SETH had no mishaps.

UNCLE MATT was much the best, but was ridden with poor judgment. He got away well, but his rider kept him in the middle of the track. He lost several lengths at the stretch turn and just lasted to win. SIMON KENTON was outrun to the stretch, where he came to the inside and, finishing fast, was nearing the winner down. ROYCROFTER displayed good early speed, but weakened badly in the stretch. AGAPANTHUS finished fast. EXTREME had speed for three furlongs, but then stopped. BLANDRIS was left.

GOETTGE TO REFEREE MOHAWK AND-APACHE GAME

Rivals Agree On Details For Game

McClure, Metzler Are Other Officials to Work Sunday.

Rival Clubs Exchange Eligibility Lists; Peace Reigns.

FRANK GOETTGE, the antionally known star of the Quantico Marines a few years back, will referee the annual sandlot classic, involving the battle of the Apaches, District champions, and the Mohawks, leading contenders, at Griffith Stadium next Sunday. The other two officials will be C. R. McClure, former Rex A. C. player, and C. A. Metzler, former Central High coach, who played at Springfield College.

These men were named at the annual pre-game meeting of the representatives of the rival elevens held in the sports department of The Post last night.

Unlike previous years, when a wrangle last several days preceded every clash of the Mohawks and Apaches, last night's meeting was milder than mild. Manager Patsy Donovan and President Rob Roy Mackey, of the Mohawks, were lined up against Manager Seymour Hall and Coach Jerry Carroll, of the Apaches.

Evidence of Peace At Meeting.

Evidence that the hatchet has been buried between the management of the two clubs was revealed in the first business at hand—that of checking the eligibility lists. The Mohawks actually called the attention of the Apaches to the name of one of their star players that had been left off the list.

The agreement as to eligibility of players made before the start of the season ruled and only those who who have participated in at least two games can compete next Sunday. The lists were exchanged and given the O. K. with virtually no debate.

The rosters of both teams are divided between sandlot and college talent as usual. The Mohawks named 22 players and the Apaches 27.

There are few players on either list playing their first Apache-Mohawk game, but there has been a number of shifts among the players of the rivals. Boots Brown, Moose Mosko, Paul Briggs, Bill Lyteli, Joe Sweeney, and Snall DeLabre, all 1929 Apaches, are now with the Mohawks. Beanie Brown, Jim Birthright, China Boyd and Ray DuFour, with the Mohawks last season, are now in Apache uniforms. Many of these shifted players are said to have grievances against their former club and will be out Sunday to even matters.

Abbey Unable to Play.

At least two names appear on the eligibility lists of players who will be unable to perform Sunday. Coach Eddie Abbey of the Mohawks, who suffered a broken leg recently, and Huck Hilleary, who has been lost to the Apaches since the first home game, when he injured his knee, will be watching the game from the benches.

Both teams will start their final preparations for the clash in drills tonight.

The eligibility lists follow:

APACHES.

Centers—Bits Clifford, Roy Boyd.

Guards—Barney Nolan, Turk Tobin, Jim Montague, Beanie Brown, Skip Farran, Jerry Carroll (coach).

Tackles—John Montague, Harry Russell, Tubby Waters, Rib Ribnitzski.

Ends—Beone Rice, Reds Cunningham, Tom Farrell, Timmons, Joe Miller, DuFour, Joe Zimowski.

Backs—Eddie Dugan, Ty Rauber, John Hudák, Marvin Meyrs, Jim Birthright, Don McCann, China Boyd, Huck Hilleary.

MOHAWKS.

Centers—Phil Delaney, Bow-Wow Myers, Jim Munro.

Guards—Artie Browning, Dutch Schwartzman, Paul Briggs, Artie Wondrack.

Tackles—Moose Mosko, Herman Lombard, Bill Lytell.

Ends—Boots Brown, Eddie Eddinger, Eaton Chalkley, Buck O'Brien.

Backs—Fee Colliere, Joe Sweeney, Snail DeLabre, John Howard, Eddie Abbey (coach), Admiral Dewey, Holley Gass, Wright Swope.

Whitney's String At Fair Grounds

New Orleans, Dec. 1.—Selection of Ernie White, of Louisville, Ky., to succeed George Doll as general manager of the pari-mutuel department at the Fair Grounds, New Orleans, has been announced by the Louisiana Jockey Club.

White was the only person considered for the position after the death of George H. Doll. For several years he has been in charge of the mutuel department at both Churchill Downs and Latonia.

Horses continue to arrive at the Fair Grounds every day, and it will not be long before every stall at the course is occupied by thoroughbreds of prominence. The largest string to arrive recently was that of Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, who has taken over the horses belonging to the estate of his father, the late Harry Payne Whitney.

Mose Goldblatt remains in charge of the Whitney horses, which have been nominated for all of the important stake events to be decided at the Fair Grounds during the racing season of 1931. Probably the best horse in the Whitney establishment is Tantivy, regarded as the champion of sprinters.

It is announced by Goldblatt that Kenneth Russell, star rider here the past season, will again do most of the stable riding. Russell performed in brilliant style in Kentucky the past season.

Bierman Former Minnesota Star

Coach Bernie W. Bierman, who has given Tulane two seasons of football without a defeat in Dixie, is a University of Minnesota alumnus.

Bierman played his football at Minnesota in 1913, 1914 and 1915. In 1915 Walter Eckersall named Bierman as all-America full back. He also made the all-Westerns and all-Conference selections of his day.

Since entering the field of coaching, Bierman has served as head coach at the University of Montana, Mississippi A. & M. College and Tulane.

Dodd, Tennessee Mainstay, Haunting Hopes of Florida

Clever Ball Carrier Is Chief Threat for Game Saturday.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Back in December, 1928, a substitute sophomore quarter back, Bobby Dodd, outsmarted a fast, high-scoring Florida eleven and led Tennessee to a 13-12 victory in the closing game at Knoxville.

Next Saturday at Jacksonville, this same Dodd, now rated as one of the greatest field generals and back field aces in the country, again stands between Florida and a triumph over the Volunteers.

Both teams have been beaten and no championship claims are at stake now as was the case in 1928, when Florida had gone through a hard campaign unconquered and untied, but many Florida supporters look for Florida to even the count at Jacksonville.

Tennessee Beaten Only Once.

Although without the services of its two veteran ends, Hug and Brand, its great half back, McEver, and with several other regulars out with injuries, Tennessee—with this man Dodd outguessing his opponents—has come through the year with only one defeat and with victories over its arch rivals, Vanderbilt and Kentucky.

Saturday probably will find the Volunteers at their peak. Reports from Knoxville are that Hug and Brandt will probably start at the flanks, while other regulars recovered from injuries here will be available again.

With Hug and Brandt on the ends and Hackman in the back field, Tennessee's passing attack is expected to be much more formidable.

Florida Now at Top Stride.

Florida, which struck its stride on Thanksgiving in downing Georgia Tech, 55 to 7, also will be at top form. The new back field combination, which Coach Charles Bachman used against the Yellow Jackets, clicked perfectly and the Alligator offensive is working smoother than at any time this year.

Today found Georgia and Georgia Tech continuing preparations for their twenty-sixth meeting in Atlanta Saturday, while Duke worked hard in hopes of scoring its first win over North Carolina since gridiron relations between the schools were resumed in 1922.

Sixteen Episcopal High Gridmen Voted Letters

Episcopalians End Season With Clean Slate; St. Mary's Lyceum Five Opens Season Here Tonight; Iroquois Gridmen Drill.

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Dec. 1.—Sixteen members of the Episcopal High School championship football team were today awarded their monograms for service on the gridiron.

The advisory board of the maroon and white institution at its session today gave the varsity "E" to the following: Centers, Montgomery and M. Carey; guards, Stocker, Zimmer and W. Mapp; tackles, Robinson and R. Train; ends, Hooff, G. Swift and Hancock; quarter backs, S. Goooch and P. Williams; half backs, Pat Brawley and "Acy" McDonald; full backs, Capt. Mitchell and Buddy Mizell.

Clean Slate for Episcopalians.

The Episcopal eleven played nine games and won each encounter. It defeated Technical High School, Washington champions, Gilman County School Team, of Baltimore, and won its big game of the season from Woodberry Forest Academy, 12 to 7. The new Woodbury Forest Academy Athletic Field was dedicated at the time this contest was played.

"Bick" Cardwell, former star quarter back of the University of Virginia, coached the team. He was assisted by Gus Kaminer, late of the University of Virginia, and Bob Lawson, from Hampden-Sidney. The team was rated as the best developed at the Seminary Hill institution in the past eight years.

The St. Mary's Lyceum Club Basket Ball Team will trek to Washington Tuesday night for a game with the Army War College five. The "Saints" are performing in the unlimited class. Tommy Lucas, late of the Whitestones, is captain. Joe Hamilton and Eddie Gorman, two former Celtics stars, are playing with the team.

Nightly Grid Drills For Iriquois.

On Friday night, the "Saints" will open their season in Alexandria. Manager Bob Vogt is attempting to book the Washington-Lee High School Team as the attraction.

Manager Tony Ruocco of the Iroquois has called an important football practice for each night this week to have his club ready for the championship game with the Engine Co. No. 5 clan on Sunday. This game will mark the second tussle between the two clubs. The last fray ended in a scoreless tie.

The "Little Indians" have signed two new players, "Dug" Hewitt, late of the Fire Department Preps, and "Bull" Ale, who performed with the Virginia A. C.

The Virginia Juniors, 125-pound champions of northern Virginia, Sunday will tie up with the Aztec A. C. of Washington. This club was runner-up in the Sport Mart League. The game will be played on the Shipyard Field.

Manager Charlie Corbett, of the St. Mary's Celtics, hopes to book a game with the championship Irvington Club, of Baltimore, in the Monumental City, next Sunday. It is reported in Alexandria that the Celtics will probably oppose the winner of the Apache-Mohawk tussle on December 14.

Active basket ball training for the Alexandria High School courtmen will begin today. Sixty candidates have reported to Coaches Given and Wilson. The "Twins" won district honors last season and advanced into the semifinals in the State competition.

Secret Plays for Alabama Game Stolen From Hotel of Cougars

NEW YORK, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Where, the Washington State College Football Team wanted to know today, are the papers?

A suitcase containing diagrams of the plays which Washington State intended to use in its game against Alabama at the Pasadena Tournament of Roses January 1 was stolen from William Tonkin, the team's quarter back, at a New York hotel Saturday night.

If the loot had been something trivial like radium or diamonds the athletes wouldn't have minded so much. They were only a little concerned over the theft of a gold watch and $35 from Melvin Hein, their center, or with Morris Wersen's loss of $35.

But those football plays—the diagrams were originals and there are no copies. The suitcase with its precious freight was filched during a party the players held to celebrate their victory over Villanova at Philadelphia Saturday.

Today the police picked up Jacob Kirby, Brooklyn youth, who admitted he'd crashed the party but who said he didn't have the diagrams. The suitcase, he averred, was stolen by another intruder whose name he didn't know. Kirby's sentence was suspended.

The Washington State Team was in Washington—the Capital—today to meet President Hoover, but its joy was allayed by the loss of the secret documents.

Cumberland Hunter Kills 10-Prong Buck

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 1.—George Curtis, Avirett avenue, while hunting on Green Ridge, this county, today bagged a ten-prong buck that weighed 250 pounds.

In the Somerset territory, in Pennsylvania, just north of here, 226 does were reported killed during the special three-day season in which more than 1,500 participated. Sixteen illegal kills were reported, fourteen of these being bucks, some of which had racks of from four to six prongs. Arrests were made in all but three cases.

WHITE HOUSE DOG IS IN SHOW

Yuken, Former Pet of President, Amon Entries.

"YUKON, an Eskimo husky, once the property of President Hoover, is among the many unusual breeds of dogs entered in the all breed dog show to be held at the Washington Auditorium Friday and Saturday of this week.

Yukon was presented to the President by Maj. R. A. Kelser, but was returned to the donor because the White House kennels could not successfully house the dog. He will be entered in the show by Miss Evelyn Rae Kelser, daughter of the donor.

Plenty of Competition For Youkon.

Yukon will not have things his own way in competition in his particular field for among other huskies entered is Caughmawaga, the Eskimo belonging to Mr. Wrisley Brown, of this city. Mr. Brown's entry's grandsire is hte champion lead dog of Canada.

Nearly 50 prominent out of town exhibitors and fanciers have entered dogs in the show, according to an announcement last night by Joseph O'Hare, president of the National Capital Kennel Club, the organization under whose auspices the meet will be held. Practically all the States in the Eastern section of the country will be represented at the show.

Local interest centers around Finkel's Mary Ann, lightweight 2-year-old Boston bull, whose great grandsire, Hagerty's King, was one of the greatest Boston bulls ever produced in this country. Finkel's Mary Ann, is owned by Joseph O'Hare. The local pup needs but 2 points to make her a champion as she has amassed 14 points in the shows she has been entered in this year.

Penn State Courtmen To Report Tomorrow

Special to The Washington Post.

State College, Pa., Dec. 1.—First call for candidates for the Penn State freshman basket ball squad has been issued by Larry Conover, coach of the team, with one-third of the men to report on Wednesday. The large number of prospective candidates made it necessary to divide the squad into three groups, according to Conover. No cuts in the squad will be made until after the Christmas recess.

Sally Loop May Add 2 New Clubs in 1931

Revision of the rookie rule, charging for the admission of women, approval of night baseball, changing the division of gate receipts and consideration of expansion to an eight-club circuit were the salient features of the annual directors meeting of the South Atlantic Association held recently.

Under the new rookie rule each team must have in its line-up two players who have not had previous professional experience. Class men of other years are permitted, as usual, except that players who have been out of class A or higher for five years will be classed as B players. It was voted to charge 25 cents for women, instead of admitting them free, and it was decided to permit the home club to retain all receipts of regular games.

Possibilities of an eight-club league loomed with applications from Spartanburg, Florence and Charleston in South Carolina, Wilmington in North Carolina, and Jacksonville in Florida

RED GRANGES WIN.

The Red Grange 115-pound eleven defeated the Jim Thorpe Team yesterday, 32-0. Himmelfarb made two touchdowns, with runs of 35 and 92 yards. Brent, Lambert and Gormley also starred. For games with the winners, call Adams 4026.

Middies Turn To Practice For Penn

Team in Good Shape for Last Test Before Army Game.

Injuries Are Feared; Byng, Torgenson Named Ends.

Special to The Washington Post.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Dec. 1.—Naval Academy varsity gridders after resting practically all of last week except playing 25 minutes against George Washington, in which time they tallied three touchdowns, today settled down to practice for the annual game with the University of Pennsylvania to be contested Saturday in Philadelphia.

The team in its best physical shape since the first game of the season, is also enjoying its best psychological frame of mnd. The Tars will take things comparatively easy for Penn this week, banking on superb physical condition to carry them through. At the same time, Head Coach Bill Ingram is anxious to lessen the chances of injury in view of the Army game a week later.

Tschirgi to Alternate With Gannon.

This will be the line-up that Ingram will try to smooth up for the final games of the season. All positions seem definitely filled except that Tschirgi will likely alternate with Gannon and the flanks are more or less indefinite.

Navy, exhibiting a general new style of attack the past two games, has shown improvement. With a more decided shift and a greater number of reverses, more deception has been worked into the system. The team's defense has been fairly good all year, except the ends, which are the problems to the staff of mentors. However, with Elliott and Steffanides both slightly injured, and Smith not measuring up to standard since he was stricken ill early in the season, it appears that Byng and Torgenson will have to carry the burden. Elliott was the only gridder not on the field today.

SALES SINK HEAVILY AS STOCKS MOVE UP

1,107,507 Shares Are Sold During Lightest Full-Day Session Since Aug. 1.

MANY RAILS ADVANCE

New York, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—A becalmed stock market finally caught enough breeze today to close with general net advances, but the story of the session was best told by the sales total—only 1,107,507 shares, the smallest volume for a full day since August 1.

Advances of about a point in the industrials were improved on by many rails and a few utilities, which made their best showing in the afternoon after a mediocre performance in the morning. Some carrier issues rose 3 to 4 points. Several were up 2, having the company of a handful of utilities and numerous merchandising stocks.

The improvement seemed to come from short covering that was based on anticipation of the President's message to Congress tomorrow. Nevertheless, whatever sail the bear faction took in as a precautionary measure was reefed with little haste, and the principal feature of the day was the market's dullness. So quiet did the preceedings become that floor traders indulged in a bit of horseplay during the final hour, a not infrequent occurrence in somnolent times.

Business News Scant.

Business news of the day was scant. Custom smelters who had cut copper to 10½ cents put the price back to 11, where it is still a cent below the producers' figure. Two members of the Kennecott family declared regular quarterly dividends, and a regular disbursement also was authorized by American Car & Foundry, all of which decisions were reassuring.

On the other side of the account stood a few more bank closings. One in Connecticut represented the closest approach of the epidemic to Wall street, which so far his ignored such troubles.

Wheat and corn fluctuated narrowly. Both closed with minor fractional gains, wheat in sympathy with a decreased visible supply and unfavorable weather, and corn on a decrease in contract stocks and small Illinois cash offerings. Cotton was down about $1 a bale at the bottom, but reduced its losses to 50 to 65 cents.

Bonds were steadier, especially in the high-grade descriptions, with the volume little more than nominal. Call money held firm at 2 per cent because of the December 1 requirements.

Best Gains Made in Last Hour.

Except for some heaviness in the early trading, stocks edged higher without interruption. By early afternoon a fair-sized assortment had recorded gains of a point or two, but the best part of the slow rally was withheld until the last hour. Allied Chemical was particularly strong, closing nearly 6 points higher. Union Pacific climbed half a dozen points, holding about half of the rise. Norfolk & Western, Atlantic Coast Line, the Missouri Pacifics gained 3 to 4 net, while Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, Missouri, Kansas & Texas, New Haven, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway and New York Central were up 1 to 2.

United States Steel, selling ex-dividend, touched 145⅝ and closed at 144¾ for a gain of ¾. General Electric, Electric Auto-Lite, National Biscuit, International Harvester, May Department Stores, R. H. Macy, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Du Pont, American Can, Case and Westinghouse gained 1 to 2 net, and American Telephone, Consolidated Gas and North American a couple of points.

A heavy tone persisted in foreign exchanges. Sterling Cables sagged to $4.85½, another new low and a notch nearer the gold point, partly in reflection of the British labor difficulties. The Canadian dollar slipped back to par for the first time in several months, but the move was seasonal, incident to the closing of St. Lawrence River navigation.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—In the face of the fact that wheat deliveries on December contracts reached a huge total of about 15,000,000 bushels today, prices held steady. The chief reason was that as expected the bulk of the mountain of wheat apparently found its way into the strong hands of Government-sponsored agencies, and the market, therefore, kept an even keel, fluctuations of values being mostly fractional and showing no decided trend. Meanwhile, corn advanced owing to wintry weather and smallness of receipts.

Closing quotations on wheat were irregular, ranging from 1c off to ¾c up, as compared with Saturday's finish. Corn closed ¼c to ¾c net higher; oats unchanged to ½c advance, and provisions varying from 15c set back to a rise of 5c.

By far the heaviest share of the 15,000,000 bushels of wheat delivered today on December contracts as the first installment of ownership transfers for the current month was at Kansas City, where the deliveries totaled 9,267,000 bushels. In Chicago, the greatest interest as to December grain deliveries centered not so much on wheat as on corn. To the surprise of many traders, not a single bushel of corn was tendered here to fill December contracts and this circumstance was generally taken as evidence that nobody in Chicago was willing to let go of corn until compelled to, or at least was given some special incentive.

Throughout the day, augmented buying support for corn was apparent. Industrial demand for corn was especially active, and receipts here were readily absorbed, although shipping call proved to be rather disappointing. Primary arrivals of corn continued to show a decreased movement from rural sources, the total arrivals being but 768,000 bushels against 842,000 bushels a week ago, and 1,878,000 bushels at this time last year. Corn receipts in Chicago were 140 cars, compared with 383 cars on the corresponding day of 1929. Oats followed the upward trend of the corn market.

To some extent, wheat values sympathized at times with downturns of quotations at Liverpool and Buenos Aires owing to favorable weather for the Argentine wheat harvest. On the other hand, the amount of wheat on ocean passage showed 3,824,000 bushels, falling off compared with last week, and the United States wheat visible supply decreased 2,446,000 bushels.

In the provision market, lard showed firmness despite downturns of hog values.

ACTIVE TREASURY LIST MARKS BONDS

4s, 4¼s, and 3¾s Lose While 3⅜s and 3½s Are Able to Rise.

DOMESTICS UP SLIGHTLY

New York, Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Active trading in United States Governments, which have been at the highest average level since April 1926, was the feature of a dull and irregular session of the bond market today. A mild reaction appeared at the close.

One block of $1,000 Treasury 4s appeared on the tape in the final hour at a concession of 1-32 from the opening price and the issue closed ¼ net lower. Treasury 4¼s yielded ¼ of a point also and Treasury 3¾s, in which the turnover was $600,000, declined 3-32. Treasury 3⅜s, of 1943-47, reached a new 1930 maximum, and Liberty 3½s a duplicated its high of the year.

During the past two months, in which domestic and foreign bonds have declined, United States Governments, particularly liberty bonds, have been buoyed by a strong demand from banks and there was a tendency in some quarters to ascribe today's selling to the same sources, possibly in anticipation of new Government financing December 15.

Rails' Decline Resumed.

The movement in the corporate domestic list was a mixture of small gains and losses. Railroad bonds of all classes resumed their decline, but was less marked than during the closing days of last week. The steadier tone seemed due solely to the drying up of liquidation.

The average for 30 domestic bonds was 1-10th of a point higher, the first advance in more than a week.

Standard European governments were stable. Both German 7s and 5½s were accumulated a small fraction above Saturday's final prices. French governments were steady. Italian 7s eased ⅜, but two municipals of that country—Milan City 6½s and Rome City 6½s—rallied a point. They were depressed last week by selling influenced by bank failures.

South Americans Dull.

South Americans displayed no strong tendency either way, and were dull. Argentine 6s sagged ½ and Sao Paulo State 8s moved slightly higher in active trading. The Cuban situation was reflected in a reaction of 1 to 2 points in Cuban governments. Both the 5s and 5½s reached new year's minimum.

American Telephone 5½s, Columbia Gas & Electric 5s, Detroit Edison 6s, Duquesne Light 4½s, Havana Electric 5½s, Kansas City Power & Light 5s, Pacific Gas & Electric 5s were among the utility issues that registered small advances. Bonds of International Telephone and its subsidiary, Postal Telegraph, were soft.

Stock privilege issues were generally steady to firm.

DEFICIT IS REPORTED BY RAPID TRANSIT CO.

Ten Months' Decline in Net Income of Firm Placed at $22,363.69.

$987 LOSS IN OCTOBER

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

A deficit in net income of $987.44 is revealed by the October statement of operations filed with the Public Utilities Commission yesterday by the the Washington Rapid Transit Co. This was a decrease from the amount of the company's deficit in Ocotber, 1929, $2,511.78. There is an increase in the deficit for the ten months of the present year over the corresponding period last year, that for the former period being $22,363.69, as compared with $7,079.60.

Local banks carrying Christmas savings accounts this year will swell these to the extent of approximately $115,000 in interest, it was announced, yesterday in connection with the opening of the 1931 Christmas Savings Club campaign and the beginning of distribution of $7,500,000 savings amassed in the movement this year.

Eliot H. Thomson, Washington Loan & Trust Co., chairman of the advertising committee of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, who has been energetic in promoting the thrift and Christmas savings ideas, estimated that 55 per cent of the savings would be expended for Christmas purchases, 22 per cent for meeting fixed obligations, and 28 per cent would go into permanent savings accounts or investments.

Banks in Christmas Drive.

Washington banks which are members of the Bankers Association and again in the Christmas Savings Club drive are American Security & Trust Co., Anacostia Bank, Bank of Brightwood, Bank of Commerce & Savings, Chevy Chase Bank, Columbia National, Commercial National, Department mental Bank, District National, East Washington Savings Bank, Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co., Lincoln National, Franklin National, McEachlen Banking Corporation, Mount Vernon Savings, Munsey Trust Co., National Bank of Washington, National Savings & Trust Co., North Capitol Savings Bank, Park Savings Bank, Potomac Savings Bank, Riggs National, Second National, Security Savings & Commercial, Union Trust, Washington Loan & Trust, Washington Mechanics' Bank and Washington Savings Bank.

Dr. Benjamin M. Anderson, jr., well-known economist, will discuss "The Financial Situation at the Year End," on the Halsey, Stuart & Co. radio program tomorrow night. He is the economist of the Chase National Bank of New York, the largest bank in the world. Dr. Anderson has attracted widespread attention through his writings and addresses on financial and industrial subjects.

Effective yesterday, M. J. Meehan & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, placed at the disposal of their customers increased statistical facilities designed to answer effectively all questions regarding individual securities or trends in any industry. The expanded service, established in anticipation of the usual year-end demand from customers involving adjustments in investment lists for tax purposes, will be continued as a permanent feature of the Meehan organization.

Evidence that the practice of returned capital distribution, in conjunction with a semiannual reinvestment program, as originated by North American Trust Shares, has found and is finding increasing popularity with the investor is contanied in a recent report of this trust, the largest of the fixed type, which shows that its sales have already passed the $125,000,000 mark.

"Pop" Fleming Honored.

Many local bankers and newspapermen attended the reception of I. A. "Pop" Fleming, veteran financial writer, at his home, 2700 Connecticut avenue, Sunday, on the occasion of his eightieth birthday the preceding day. He received many flowers.

The Washington Loan & Trust Co. has issued in pamphlet form the recent article in Trust Companies Magazine on "Responding to Public Demand for Safe Investment Guidance," written by Norman E. Towson, assistant treasurer of that company.

Bowlers from Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, were defeated by 41 pins in their recent contest with the team of Baltimore Chapter. A return match for this city is being arranged.

Directors of the Bank of Bowie, Bowie, Md., at their recent regular monthly meeting, in view of steadily increasing undivided profits of the bank, declared the usual 3 per cent semiannual dividend on the bank stock, payable to holders of record December 31.

Directors present were Edward E. Perkins, president; Thomas Price Littlepage, vice president; William Luers, cashier; Bernard A. Maenner, and Daniel B. Lloyd.

Rumors Revived Of Steel Merger

Three Pittsburgh Companies Mentioned in Plans of Bethlehem.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Recurrent rumors of possible acquisition of McClintic-Marshall Co. by Bethlehem Steel, which would mark the latter's first direct entrance into the Pittsburgh district, gained impetus today as Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem, conferred here with McClintic-Marshall official. Charles D. Marshall, president of Mclintic-Marshall, would not deny that the negotiations were in progress, and would say only that nothing would be given out officially before tomorrow.

Other structural steel frabricating companies here which have been mentioned in similar reports are Harris Structural Steel and Hay Foundry & Iron.

Officials of Jones & Laughlin, the McKeesport Tinplate Co. and Pittsburgh Steel denied Sunday that they were in any way involved in a report that Bethlehem Steel is preparing to embark on an expansion program which would increase its assets approximately $700,000,000. The nearest plant to Pittsburgh now controlled by Bethlehem is at Johnstown.

THE MAN WHO KNOWS
608 12th St. N.W.

This strange man sees the way and tells it all. Just what your life has been, just what it will be. Tells you when and whom you will marry; whether husband, wife or sweetheart is true or false. Tells as to changes, travel, lost or absent friends, divorce, wills, deeds; whether it is best to sell or hold and the good and the bad. A visit will convince you of his wonderful power.

Something tells you this is the man. You feel the impulse to call. Do not delay.

SMITH FIRM PAPERS STORED BY FARMER

Former Bodyguard of Pitts Testifies 50 Trunks Trucked Away.

MAN TELLS OF BURNING

Testimony that G. Bryan Pitts, a former officer of the F. H. Smith Co., paid approximately $103,000 for his property at Palm Beach, Fla., was produced yesterday by attorneys for the Government from H. G. Giovanetti, a War Department clerk and former stenographer in the Smith Co. offices. According to Giovanetti, C. Elbert Anadale, another defendant in the $5,000,000 conspiracy trial, paid one requisition for construction of a home on the property amounting to more than $14,000.

The witness, under cross-examination by Frank G. Raichle, of defense counsel, stated that he had "listened in" to a telephone conversation between the two defendants on the company's private switchboard. This practice of listening to telephone conversations of the firm's officers was common, he said.

Prior to Mr. Giovanetti's testimony, the courtroom was kept in almost constant laughter by a verbal battle between Raichle and Anthony Senes, who said he was formerly "bodyguard" to Mr. Pitts.

Senes told of several trips made by truck with some 50 trunks, 3 boxes and 2 large suitcases containing alleged records of the company to the farm of James Rucker Porter, of Brooksville, Md. Mr. Porter followed him on the stand and testified that the trunks were stored on his place in May of 1929. The latter witness told of two truckloads of trunks and boxes arriving, the trucks being attended by Senes and a colored man whom he knew as "Joe."

Senes was kept on the witness stand for some time, being under cross-examination by Mr. Raichle during a large part of the morning and in the early afternoon. Asked by the defense counsel if he was discharged by Mr. Pitts for getting the latter's valet intoxicated, Mr. Senes replied:

"That wasn't necessary. He got drunk automatically."

He declared that he was discharged because he "knew too much."

"Are you angry at Mr. Pitts?" Mr. Raichle asked the witness.

"No," replied Senes, "I feel sorry for him." He added that he "didn't love Mr. Pitts" when he was discharged, but that at the present time he bears no animosity toward his former employer.

Another witness who told a colorful story on the stand during the morning was Joseph Howard, former Smith Co. janitor, who related the burning of several books, whose nature he was unable to describe. The prosecution sprung a surprise when it brought out that Howard had had a conference Sunday night with defense attorneys and with Pitts. Howard said, however, that he was only asked questions relating to his testimony and that he was not instructed what to say.

Identification of Records.

Much of the time yesterday was taken up with identification of records which were introduced as evidence by the Government. Among witnesses who identified ledger pages and other records were Harry R. Zeimer, deputy governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis, Minn.; J. D. Husbands, of the Metropolitan Bank of Minneapolis; Irving J. Simons, of the Merchants National Bank of Boston, Mass., and Joseph P. Donovan, of the Boston bank.

Edward Pierce, a former bookkeeper for the Smith company, testified concerning a "suspense account" carried on the company's books, in which items were charged before being applied to specific accounts. Under questioning by Neil Burkinshaw, assistant District attorney for the prosecution, Mr. Pierce mentioned the Insurance Exchange and Hilltop Manor in Washington as two accounts to which items were transferred from the suspense account. Also, he said, some items were transferred to collateral note accounts.

Mr. Pierce was on the witness stand when Justice William Hitz, presiding, adjourned court. He had not been cross-examined.

Told of Florida Trip.

The testimony of Mr. Senes and Howard was by far the outstanding feature of the day. Howard told of a trip he made to Mr. Pitts' home in Palm Beach last January, and described his nervousness when he was told by Pitts that the sheriff was seeking him. In order to bolster his nerves, Howard said, he took several "shots" in the Pitts home. These he identified under examination as drinks of Bacardi rum.

Another witness, James A. Mathews, colored, told of renting his truck to Howard and Senes on at least two occasions. He testified that the truck was used to haul a number of trunks to the farm of Arthur H. Chapman, colored truck driver, of Falls Church, Va.

Chapman, who followed him on the stand, declared that the trunks were delivered to his place in the summer of 1929 and were stored in his cellar. He received $25 per month for this storage space for some three or four months, he said. His farm, he said, is about 3 miles from Falls Church.

A defendant in the trial, besides Pitts and Anadale, is John H. Edwards, jr., former vice president of the Smith company. The three former officers are charged with conspiracy to embezzle some $5,000,000 and to conceal documents. It was to these documents that much of yesterday's testimony related.

The Government is represented by Nugent Dodds, Acting Assistant Attorney General, and Mr. Burkinshaw. Defense counsel are Mr. Raichle, Wilton J. Lambert, Edmund Toland and Rudolph H. Yeatman.

Bandits Visit Oil Plant 42 Times in 8 Months

Special to The Washington Post.

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 1.—When the Hagerstown Tire Co. was broken into for the twelfth time in a year, a few nights ago, the management said this was unprecedented, but Jacob M. Middlekauff, owner of the Hagerstown Independent Oil Co., said today his plant was entered last night for the forty-second time in eight months.

The station was broken into Sunday morning and it was the only time in the 42 that nothing was taken.

Lynchburg Will Probated.

Lynchburg, Va., Dec. 1 (Special).—The will of Mrs. Carrie B. Jones, treasurer of Lynchburg College, who died suddenly last week while visiting her sister, Mrs. Mary Stuart Gooch, at Charlottesville, has been probated in the circuit court here. An estate valued at $30,000 is left to Mrs. Gooch, who is the widow of the late Judge W. S. Gooch. Robert K. Gooch, nephew, qualified as administrator.

Capital Man Weds Ziegfeld Showgirl

James Converse Takes as His Fourth Bride Member of "Smiles" Cast.

The marriage in New York last Friday of James Converse, Washington and New York financier, and Ruth Morgan, Ziegfeld showgirl, was announced yesterday. Miss Morgan came to New York from Hollywood recently to join the cast of Ziegfeld's musical comedy, "Smiles."

Mr. Converse, who is a member of the firm of Bennett, Converse and Schwab, is prominent as a horseman, tennis player and clubman. Two of his three previous marriages—in 1914 to Nadine Melbourne, of New York, and in 1919 to Thelma Morgan, Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt's twin sister—ended in divorce. Mrs. Elizabeth Walter Bradstow, prominent in Washington society and Mr. Converse's third wife, was killed in an automobile accident in Virginia recently.

The bride is a daughter of State's Attorney M. Earle Morgan, of Fairmont, W. Va. She was graduated from Chatham Hall School, in Chatham, W. Va.

MONTGOMERY BOARD TO ORGANIZE TODAY

County Commissioners Will Be Inducted at Rockville Courthouse.

ROW STARTS DAGAME SUI

The Montgomery County commissioners elected November 4 will take office today in the courthouse at Rockville. They will choose a president to succeed Dr. Benjamin C. Perry, who was not a candidate for reelection.

It is expected Lacy Shaw, commissioner from the Fifth District, who was vice president of the retiring board, will be elected chairman. Berry E. Clark, who held the position under the retiring board, doubtless will be reelected clerk.

The members of the board, which, for the first time, consists of seven persons, are: Downey M. Williams, Sherwood Duvall, Clagett C. Hilton, William Frank Ricketts, John B. Diamond, Robert D. Hagner and Shaw.

A $10,000 damage suit, alleging assault, was filed yesterday against Fred J. Hughes, a Sycamore Landing resident, by Gustavus Robert Gray, through Attorneys Albert M. Boulc and John E. Oxley, of Rockville.

It is charged that on November 26, Hughes did "with force and arms make an assault on the plaintiff and beat, wounded and ill-treated him so that his life was despaired of."

Hughes pleaded guilty to assault and battery Saturday and was fined $150. The fight followed an election argument, Hughes is a staunch organization Democrat.

The annual sale of Christmas seals is under way in the county, Miss Estelle Mooré, chairman of the committee in charge, reports. The seals are sold under the auspices of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association, through women's clubs. Dr. William T. Pratt, county health officer, and Edwin W. Broome, superintendent of county schools, are cooperating.

Miss Moore said more funds than usual are needed this year because of the unemployment situation, which leads to undernourishment in children. The seals can be obtained from clubwomen and school children.

Early Start Ordered Upon Cumberland Dam

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Dec. 1.—Work is to start at the site for the new $500,000 dam, to augment the Cumberland water supply, on Wednesday, under action taken by city council today. The dam will adjoin the present dam at Lake Gordon.

It is expected about 100 men will be employed, the wage being set at 40 cents an hour for an eight-hour day, with transportation. Preference will be given residents of Cumberland who have families to support.

Virginians to Organize Group to Promote Trail

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg, Va., Dec. 1.—Plans for organizing the Virginia branch of the Shenandoah trail—a highway promoted by the Ohio Good Roads Association to extend southeastwardly from Toledo to Hampton Roads—were made this afternoon at a meeting of Rockingham and West Virginia businessmen.

The Harrisonburg Chamber of Commerce was instructed to invite the chamber of commerce or officials of Green County, Orange County, Louisa, Hanover, the City of Richmond and Norfolk, Newport News and Williamsburg to effect a permanent organization at a meeting to be held later, either at Gordonsville, Louisa or Richmond.

Engagement Is Announced.

Lynchburg, Va., Dec. 1 (Special).—Mrs. William Richardson Abbot, of Lynchburg, has announced the engagement of her daughter, Miss Catherine Dabney Walker, to Joseph Esrey Johnson, of Whitfield, Pa. The wedding is to be celebrated here this month.

Two Dry Agents Lose Gun, Prisoner, Then Their Case

This is the tale of two Federal prohibition agents who first lost their pistol, then their prisoner, then the evidence, and yesterday their case.

The whole thing started election day, November 4, when Federal Agents James T. Weigal and Murray C. Taylor invaded Montgomery County. They halted John Hopkins, colored, of Sandy Spring, and asked him where they could get some "likker" for a party. Hopkins told them he would show them, they claimed.

The stories of Hopkins and the agents vary on whether or not he returned with a half-gallon jug or not, but both agree that when Weigel seized the Negro he put up a scrap. Weigel lost his pistol in the scuffle and Hopkins is alleged to have held both off at the point of a pistol while he made his escape. In the meantime, a group of other colored men appeared and the chagrined agents found that the evidence also had disappeared, they believe by the hands of a bystander.

Hopkins was convicted on a charge of assault and battery in county police court and sentenced to serve two years in the House of Correction. Through Attorneys Thomas M. Anderson and Walter W. Dawson, the colored man appealed to the circuit court from the sentence.

He explained to a jury in circuit court that he thought the men were hijackers, and this was borne out by the testimony of a colored witness, who said:

"We knowed they wasn't rev'noo agents. They didn't use their blackjacks."

The jury reversed the police court after being out about five minutes and Hopkins was acquitted.

ALEXANDRIA COURT GETS 12 TRUE BILLS

Two Are Sentenced by U. S. Judge for Violation of Motor Theft Act.

ROTARY CLUB PROGRAM

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

A grand jury of the United States court for the Eastern District of Virginia, Judge D. Lawrence Groner presiding, returned twelve true bills yesterday, as follows: Abe Lomax and Robert Sorrell, violation of the national prohibition act; Charles King, of Harlan, Ky., and John Sargent, of Boston, Mass., violation of the national motor theft act; two each against Garnett and Joseph R. Jackson, Negro boys, violating postal regulations, these cases being taken under advisement by Judge Groner; Elmer C. Heilman, use of mails to defraud; Leroy A. C. Thompson, alleged false claim for adjusted service compensation; William Walker, alleged theft of mail matter from United States mail; James A. McMahone, alleged embezzlement of postal funds by a postal employe.

Charles King and John Sergent entered pleas of guilty to violating the national motor vehicle theft act; King was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary at Chillicothe, Ohio, and Sargent given a year and a day in the penitentiary. Abe Lomax and Robert Sorrell, indicted for violating the national prohibition act, were given 60 days each in the city jail. A fine of $50 was imposed on Pete Davis, indicted for violation of the national prohibition act. The jury was then discharged subject to the call of the marshal.

The jury was composed of L. C. Hoge, foreman; J. W. Anderson, W. L. Beale, L. E. Beachley, H. W. Miller, A. Lloyd Cooper, Fred Hynson, R. H. Downs, E. W. Groff, A. F. Woodyard, J. S. Whitmore, H. M. F. Palmer, J. D. Thompson, J. H. Steele, W. T. Ralston, A. Sidney Mankin and W. C. Woodruff.

The cases against Thompson, Walker and McMahone, indicted yesterday, were transferred to Norfolk for trial.

It is expected the twelve cases in which the Government seeks condemnation of land in connection with the construction of the Mount Vernon boulevard will be adjusted by the court today.

The petit jury was sworn in yesterday, and will pass upon several cases today.

The taking of testimony in the suit of a committee of minority stockholders of the Wardman Mortgage & Discount Corporation, seeking the appointment of a receiver for the company, was resumed in the corporation court yesterday, Judge William P. Woolls presiding. Sessions are being held in the police court room, owing to the fact that the corporation court room is being used by the United States District Court.

John Berg, certified public accountant of Washington, who audited the books of the corporation for the plaintiffs, was placed on the stand yesterday by Harry F. Kennedy, attorney for the plaintiffs, and his testimony is expected to consume two days. He testified at length yesterday as to stock subscriptions, stating that his examination of the books indicated that stock had been issued to individuals and charged to the Wardman Construction Co. He could find no evidence, he said, of cash having been received by the mortgage corporation for the stock sales.

Attorney Kennedy attempted to show by Berg's testimony that the Mortgage & Discount Corporation loaned money to the construction company without security, this being, according to Mr. Kennedy, a violation of an agreement between the two corporations.

Woman Is Accused Of Theft From Jail

Turnkey Asserts She Took Four Blankets While Serving Term.

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Dec. 1.—Charged with theft of four blankets from the Augusta County Jail here, Mrs. Ethel Stover was arrested today and placed under $100 bond for appearance in court Wednesday morning. Mrs. Stover recently completed serving 90 days in jail for violation of the prohibition law. Jailer J. D. Perry, taking an inventory of jail equipment several days after the woman left, noted he was four blankets short.

From sources Perry refuses to disclose, he asserts he learned Mrs. Stover secreted the blnakets, one at a time, in the bottom of boxes in which friends and relatives brought food and fresh clothing to her while serving her term. When the boxes were taken away from the jail, it is alleged, the woman placed the blankets under her garments.

Perry today obtained warrant for the woman's arrest and also search warrants. Perry arrested Mrs. Stover after he says he found two of the blankets at her home and two at the home of her sister, Mrs. Nelson Chandler, near Staunton.

McDermott on a charge of breaking and entering the store of Charles Crump, on the Washington-Richmond highway, south of Alexandria. Stolen goods reported in his possession were listed as 73 packages of cigarettis, 20 dozen of eggs, 7 boxes of cigars, several boxes of candy, and gloves, overalls and other articles. THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

AN IDEA FOR DR. EINSTEIN.

"Dr. Albert Einstein fears the public receptions in America so much that he may decide to stay on the boat off-shore and then proceed to Panama."—Dispatch.

DR. ALBERT EINSTEIN,
Berlin, Germany.

Dear Professor: I can appreciate your feelings and I have an idea which may enable you to land and yet get around the indignities to which a famous man has to submit when he visits the United States of Hysteria.

* * * *

You will realize, of course, that there is no chance of America dispensing with a reception in your case. We have a reputation for torturing notable visitors and it must be preserved. Our record is unmarred by a single instance of a great man being allowed to land without the maximum embarrassment.

* * * *

So, you see, there will have to be a reception. It would be particularly difficult to avoid it this winter, because of the unemployment situation. A reception, Professor Einstein, to a man of your importance means work for thousands.

* * * *

In New York alone it would give employment to 3,200 bandsmen, 5,345 grandstand builders and razers, 2,000 radio electricians, 1,800 street cleaners, some 35 radio announcers and assistants and 6,754 supernumerary policemen. The pick-up in the souvenir program, flag, banner, ticker tape, confetti and megaphone industries is estimated at 67 per cent during any major reception. (In the case of channel swimmers the figure is even higher.)

* * * *

I SEE also by the papers that you are disgusted with offers of thousands of dollars from American advertisers to sign statements that you have used disinfectants, tooth pastes, cigarettes, soft drinks, mattresses, &c. You just don't understand, professor. There is really no deception or trickery, according to the American advertising viewpoint in making such indorsements. No reader believes for a second that the notable indorsing these articles ever had one around the house.

* * * *

So my advice is that you sign them all and take the money if only from the sensible viewpoint that it is far better than the money do something for scientific research than that it merely go to buy automobiles, raccoon coats and country homes for professional golfers, girl swimmers, transatlantic fliers and beauty contest winners.

* * * *

Find some picture actor who can "double" for you!

* * * *

Have him come over on the boat, climb aboard the official reception tug, kiss Grover Whalen, and go through all the other ordeals of a landing at New York. You stay on the boat for a day or two and then quietly land in a small boat under the name of Gus Jones or somebody. If anybody asks what you do just say you are a member of one of President Hoover's commissions. This will give you complete anonymity and make you a member of the American rank and file.

* * * *

Wishing you a pleasant trip and hoping the "doube" can stand it, I beg to remain,

Yours very sincerely,
ELMER TWITCHELL.

IT ALL HELPS.

NEW COUNTY HEADS TO ORGANIZE TODAY

Prince Georges Board Will Name President and Clerk.

The Prince Georges County Commissioners chosen in the recent general election will meet for the first time today to organize for the four-year term. Election of a president of the board and of a clerk to the county commissioners probably will be the most important function today.

The new commissioners will be given the oath of office at 1 o'clock by Summerfield D. Hall, clerk of the Circuit Court, who was sworn in yesterday by Judge Joseph C. Mattingly. They are Walter M. Grimes, who is the only holdover from the old board; Ormond W. Phair and Robert E. Brown, Democrats, and Frank Small, jr., and George H. Bowen, Republicans.

William T. Davis, Republican, register of wills, also will be sworn in today. State's Attorney-elect Alan Bowie will not take office until January 1, and Brice Bowie, newly elected treasurer, will not take office until April 1.

W. Curtis Hopkins, Republican, will take over the reins of the sheriff's office from Sheriff Charles S. Early, and his chief deputy, Thomas W. Garrison, also will take office. Constables for the various districts also probably will be appointed today.

Thomas I. Talbott, of Marlboro, has been selected as warden of the county jail and probably will be appointed today, it was announced yesterday by Samuel G. Coale, chairman of the Republican State central committee for Prince Georges County. Mr. Talbott's father was keeper of the courthouse and grounds until he died several months ago.

Charles A. Greenleaf, colored member of the State central committee, has been selected as guard to the jail. The appointment of the two men probably will be made today when Sheriff Hopkins takes office.

Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah A. Townshend, widow of Samuel G. Townshend, who was treasurer of Prince Georges County and a prominent lumberman, will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Methodist Episcopal Church at Cheltenham, Md. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Mrs. Townsend died Sunday at her residence in Cheltenham. She is survived by three sons, Samuel G. Townshend, jr., Howard Townshend and Wilfred Townshend, and three daughters, Mrs. P. F. Tippett, Mrs. Arthur Richardson and Mrs. Beulah Coakley. Her death was quite sudden.

Nearly $200,000 will be added to the buying power of Prince Georges County residents today when the nine banks in the county distribute their Christmas savings funds. Cashiers of the banks which have the funds reported a total of $196,650 to be sent out to about 3,000 members of savings clubs.

While this amount is slightly less than the sum distributed last year, it is believed that the loss is due to the closing of one of the larger banks during the period when the accounts were being started. The Christmas savings fund of the Southern Maryland Trust Co. last year amounted to about $30,000. This year their accounts will be only about $2,000. The Southern Maryland was closed from December, 1929, to March, 1930, which accounts for the dropping off of club members.

The other banks in the county all reported an increase in the amounts saved during the year. This, in view of smaller amounts reported in other sections of the country is taken to mean that Prince Georges has not been so heavily affected by the current depression as other sections.

MAN PLEADS GUILTY IN $800,000 FRAUD

Despite Plea Judge Places Witnesses on Stand to Tell Their Stories.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 1 (A.P.).—Accused by persons in Florida, Alabama, Illinois and Maryland with having defrauded them in stock transactions, Herbert Wheeler, 44, pleaded guilty in Federal district court today to five charges of using the mails to defraud.

Despite the plea, Judge William C. Coleman insisted that the witnesses take the stand and they unfolded stories of fraudulent transactions which William C. Baxter, assistant district attorney, declared would total $800,000.

Wheeler's method, Baxter said, was the formation of $30,000 mining stock buying clubs, comprised of 30 persons who contributed $1,000 each, with Wheeler as the purchasing agent. Several of these clubs were formed in various parts of the country, he said.

Mrs. Hattie Thompson, a widow of Baltimore, testified that Wheeler induced her to invest between $17,000 and $18,000 bequeathed her by her husband, and all had been lost.

Dr. Charles L. Gunn, of Alabama, testified that he had invested $7,900 with Wheeler and that the greater part had been lost. Mrs. Maude E. Brickell, of Brickell Point, near Miami, Fla., said that she gave Wheeler a total of $390,000 at various times, beginning in 1924. She said she had been left an estate of $780,000 by her mother.

Described as the head waiter at the Commodore Hotel, New York City, August E. Chardenet was said to have given Wheeler $16,000.

Wheeler was from Decatur, Ill., and represented himself as a mining engineer, according to Postal Inspector George E. Brill.

Arrested in Boston last May, Wheeler was brought here on an indictment and has been in jail in default of $20,000 bail.

Most of the accounts are for $50, the average for each member being $65.55.

The largest sum to be sent out by any one bank will be distributed by the Prince Georges Bank & Trust Co., whose Christmas accounts will total about $126,000. This is probably the largest bank in the county now, since its merger with the First National Bank of Hyattsville last year. Its fund is about $19,000 more than last year's, showing an increase of around 15 per cent.

The Marlboro branch of the Eastern Shore Trust Co. will send out $6,200, about $1,300 more than last year. An increase of about $2,000 is reported by the First National of Southern Maryland, with $7,750, while the Clinton Bank has increased $500, their present accounts amounting to $6,000. The Citizens Bank of Laurel will distribute $30,000, 10 per cent more than last year's sum.

In Brandywine the Brandywine Bank will settle savings funds of $3,000, $500 more than last year. The Citizens Bank of Riverdale reports an increase of 40 per cent of the 1929 sum, with $10,000. Last year the Riverdale institution had only $6,000. The Bank of Bowie will send out $3,700 to its customers, $200 over the sum distributed last year.

The general election in the county cost nearly twice as much as the primary election, according to a report sent to the county commissioners by the board of election supervisors. The total cost was $21,667.29, $562.29 more than was expected. This deficit will be supplied by the commissioners.

The cost of the general election was $14,176.81, while the primary expenses were $7,690.48. To cover this, the commissioners appropriated $20,000 and the election supervisors supplied $1,305. The expenses listed included cost of voting booths, clerical help and printing.
